THE FRANCO-CHINESE WAR.

Kinpai Bombarded and the Forts Destroyed—M. Ferry's Explanations.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The Foo Chow correspondent of the Times says, "I have just returned from Kanpai. All the defences along the Min river are gone. The Chinese troops bolted. The French can bombard, but occupation of the mainland is impossible."

ADMIRAL COURBET'S OFFICIAL REPORT.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Admiral Courbet's official report is as follows:—Min river, 5.30 p.m., Aug. 28. The principal batteries on the Kinpai channel are destroyed, and we hope to destroy all the others this evening. The torpedoes barring the entrance to the river are being fished up and the explosives secured. The gunboats are able to leave the river by another channel. The Asp has been despatched to guard the telegraph cable.

THE MINGAN FORTS SILENCED.

FOO CHOW, Aug. 28.—The Mingan forts below here were finally silenced on Tuesday evening. Yesterday a heavy cannonade was kept up between the French fleet and the Kinpai forts, at the northern mouth of the Min river.

THE KINPAIN FORTS DESTROYED.

FOO CHOW, Aug. 28.—The Kinpain forts have been destroyed.

M. FERRY EXPLAINS.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—M. Ferry, in a conversation to-day, said:—"The English press, by egging China on, is siding against all Europe. The confidence it gives the Chinese may next be turned against England. The commercial nations are naturally uneasy at our action, but once resolved on redress we must deal blows which will tell." M. Ferry disavowed a policy of colonial conquest. "My whole duty," he declared, "is to finish enterprizes originally ill-conceived and ill-managed. We want the peaceful occupation of Tonquin, and we want to enforce on China the respect she owes us. European interests need not be alarmed at this. We are acting for the civilized world."

GREELY IN MONTREAL.

He is Received with Honor and is the Guest of the British Association.

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.—Lieut. Greely, of Actic fame, accompanied by Mrs. Greely, has arrived in the city. They were met at the station by Capt. Pim, who accorded them a hearty welcome to Montreal. They drove to the Windsor hotel, and shortly after were waited upon by a deputation from the British Association, and conducted to McGill University, which they inspected. Lieut. Greely has not entirely recovered from the effects of his terrible hardships, and seemed to be suffering greatly from the fatigue of the journey to this city. Dr. Duxton Ghillotoe, of Eng, and an eminent physician, enjoins perfect quiet for a week. It is expected that Lieut. Greely will follow his advice. During his stay in Montreal Lieut. Greely will be the guest of the Association, and an elegant carriage has been placed at his constant disposal, so that he may be enabled to visit all points of interest.

PETERBORO' THE CAPITAL OF ONTARIO.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Knowing your very patriotic desire always to forward the interests of this town and the whole Dominion at large, I feel sure you will grant me space in your valuable newspaper for me to suggest. I noticed on several occasions in the Ontario House last session the discussion on the new Parliament buildings some members advocating a change to Hamilton &c. But in my mind and I believe if put to a vote that the majority in the Province of Ontario will admit that our flourishing town of Peterborough is the place for the new Parliament buildings and capital of Ontario. I need offer no argument any further than to say that every member of our Local Legislature, without local prejudice, will admit that in a central and military point of view, &c., Peterborough is the place.

Our Court House and adjoining grounds would be a beautiful situation for the new Parliament buildings, and would very much resemble our capital site at Ottawa.

I hope our members will put their shoulders to the wheel, let there be meetings held all over Ontario, let funds for that purpose be forthcoming. I shall be glad to subscribe my mite to "roll the old chariot along."

I am yours sincerely,
JOHN BELL.

Peterborough, Sept. 26th, 1884.

A Heavy Storm in Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 28.—The heaviest storm in many years visited this province last night. The rain poured in torrents and the lightning was very vivid. Several houses were blown from their foundations, and sheds were blown down, sidewalks torn up, and the fronts of houses blown off. Lightning struck the Hudson Bay Company's storehouse and ripping up the roof did damage to the extent of about $10,000. In Headling, the English church was blown down, several houses moved off their foundations and grain stacks levelled to the ground and scattered over the prairies. Reports from other country districts show that the storm raged from Vermillion Bay, on the east, to Brandon, on the west, but that the severity of the storm centered in Winnipeg. A great deal of grain was lodged in some localities, but in others little or no damage was done. The wind blew at such a terrific rate as to blow a street car off the track in the city. This is the first big storm in many years.—Mail

Schools in Quebec.

The report of the superintendent of education for 1882-3 shows that during the year mentioned the number of school houses in the Province of Quebec was 4,864, a significant and notable increase of 424 over the number in existence in 1881-2. The schools under control are set down at 5,017, an increase of 560 over the previous year. In 1881-2, the number of pupils attending the schools was 236,699. In 1882-3, this number was increased by 6,024, making in all 242,723, while the average attendance for the latter year was 185,892, an increase of 5,429. These results are produced by a province which numbers only 1,359,027 of a population.—Montreal Post.

Sow Now for Spring Flowers.

While our gardens present a much greater variety than did those of a half century ago, there are some plants in which the old-time gardeners excelled. We do not see such beds of pansies, or of rocket larkspurs, as were then the pride of the gardners. Success with pansies is mainly due to sowing the seed in autumn. If the seed is sown in spring, by the time the plants begin to bloom hot weather comes, and the flowers become fewer and smaller. In order to have the flowers in spring, sow the seeds early in September. Make a spot of rich soil fine, and level the surface by pressing with a board. Sow the seeds, sift a little soil over them, and press down firmly with the board. When the plants are an inch high, transplant them to the place where they are to flower. The plants are quite hardy, and all the winter protection they need is a little brush to keep the snow from pressing too heavily upon them. The Rocket Larkspurs are, unlike tall ones, annuals. A bed of them is as showy as one of Hyacinths. Sow in a well enriched bed this autumn, but leave them to flower where they are sown. The bed may be covered with brush during the winter, and if the plants are too much crowded in any part of the bed next spring, thin them by cutting out the surplus. They do not transplant satisfactorily.—American Agriculturist for September.

SLANDERERS CORNERED.

THE Globe is making desperate efforts to persuade the public that it has not defamed, slandered and opposed the C. P. R. The last attempt in this way of Mr. Blake's organ is a laboured rejoinder to the reproaches showered upon it by the Montreal Herald, for even Reform journals are denouncing the unpatriotic course of the Globe.

For one thing, the Globe disputes the truth of the assertion that it has been decrying the lands of the company. This denial is the very height of impudence, for every body knows that the leading Reform journal has persistently called in question the fertility of these lands. The Globe has indeed to admit that it described a large portion of the land through which the railway passes as unfertile, but shelters itself under the plea that every one else thought so too. It proceeds to say:

"The C. P. R. Company have lately established experimental farms to test the possibility of cultivating these lands with profit. The very fact of finding such experiments necessary shows what was thought of these lands by every one."

This is a most dishonest argument. The fact is that the cost of these successful experiments was forced upon the company by the slanders of the Globe, which, having been widely circulated by those antagonistic to the settlement of our country, had to be disproved. Just in the same way our contemporary, by decrying the financial credit of the C. P. R., added to its difficulties in financing. Now even that experiment has proved these lands to be fertile, the Globe expresses no regret for its pretended gross ignorance, but in reality, wilful and malicious falsehoods. When Mr. Sandford Fleming published his opinion of the fertility of these lands, we remember that the Globe avenged itself by condemning the able author and his interesting work.

So too Mr. Blake's organ avers that "it did not magnify the Indian difficulties." In this there is a modicum of truth. In some cases the Globe or those it hires to traduce its country did not magnify Indian difficulties but invented them.

We are told also by the Globe that even Tory organs now admit that last year there was much dissatisfaction in the North West. Undoubtedly there was. In the first place there was the dissatisfaction of those Reformers who like the Globe were dissatisfied at being driven from power by the people, and equally dissatisfied at the progress and prosperity of the country under Conservative rule. Then there was the dissatisfaction of those who were most righteously dissatisfied with the Globe and its allies for their unpatriotic efforts to thwart the progress alike of the country and of its great national highway, and to frighten intending settlers from coming to Canada.

Fortunately, however, these unpatriotic malcontents have been disappointed and their ill-directed energies have been in vain. From the most impartial sources we learn that the C.P.R. is making marvellous progress in the completion of its great work, and is triumphing over the obstacles, alike of nature and of its unscrupulous opponents. So too the satisfactory reports of unprejudiced observers as to the country, are dispelling the foul assertions that have clouded its good name.

SOME Reform journals appear to think that because the Conservatives advocated the adoption of the National Policy in 1878, the Reformers have an excuse for decrying the country and circulating falsehoods about manufacturing establishments now. A year old voter could see the difference in advocating the adoption of a fiscal policy which would benefit the country and a systematic attempt to decry trade in general and manufacturing in particular.

WHILE the Reform journals are busy denouncing the N. P., will they pause a moment to tell us whether, if they should be returned to power, they would adopt the same tariff and jug-handled free trade policy which was in force during the time of the Mackenzie administration?

A by-law to levy the taxes and fix the rate, in accordance with the statement, was introduced and read a first time.

The Council went into Committee of the Whole on the second reading of the by-law, Councillor Menzies in the chair.

Mr. Cox, on the first clause being read, advocated having the estimated expenditure on streets and bridges reduced by building four bridges over the creek, instead of merely rebuilding the one on Hunter street, and raising the amount by issuing debentures. The bridges were needed, and it would be a permanent improvement, he thought that issuing debentures was a fair way to pay for them. By this means the cost of building the Hunter street bridge would not be placed on the roll this year, and the estimates would be reduced to that extent.

Mr. CAHILL said that the Simcoe street bridge needed to be rebuilt as much as the Hunter street one. He agreed with the Mayor that paying for them by issuing debentures was a fair way. If retrenchment in the expenditure was necessary it would have to be made in some other department than the streets and bridges.

Mr. COX said that the credit of the town was good, and that the money could be raised at 5 per cent., while the ratepayers would have to pay seven. People were not very able to pay high taxes this year, and the plan he advocated would take $2,000 off the roll.

Councillor YELLAND said that the Dalhousie street bridge was in a bad condition.

Councillor RUTHERFORD said that the Street and Bridge Committee had given instructions to have the bridge repaired. The expenditure this year in the fire department was $1,000 less than last year, but he expected that next year it would be raised again, as more apparatus would be needed. They could not reduce the expenditure on streets and bridges, as the town was extending. He never saw so many buildings going up in the town as there was this year. As to not being able to pay high taxes, people in Peterborough were never better able to pay them than this year. Wages were high and it was difficult to get men. The servants were the masters. The time would soon come when a more permanent system would have to be introduced in the laying of the sidewalks. He favored building the one bridge this year and next year the other bridge could be built, and as a lock-up would have to be provided and other improvements made, the whole amount could be raised by debentures.

Mr. Cox said that if the contract for the four bridges was let together the work would be done cheaper.

Councillor KENDRY favored adopting the estimates as they had been submitted.

Councillor KELLY said the rate was low as compared with last year and with surrounding towns. It was no use to strike a low rate one year and raise it the next; it was much better to have a uniform rate. They had got money from the sale of lots in the south part of the town and from the settlement with Ashburnham, and they were applying this to the building of the bridge. He believed in making permanent improvements by issuing debentures, but when they had received this amount he thought this a good year to build the bridge.

Mr. Cox said that he did not wish to have the estimates for the ordinary expenditure on the streets reduced, but to have the bridges built by issuing debentures.

Councillor DAVIDSON said that, although the town was growing, the assessment this year was only $2,000 more than last. The value of property in the town had increased. He had noted prices obtained at real estate sales, and property had been assessed at only 50 cents to 60 cents on the dollar of the amounts realized or the prices asked. He thought the ratepayers would be satisfied with the rate.

CHAPTER XXX.

Tears were stealing down Regina's cheeks, as she watched the anguish she felt powerless to relieve, and she began to realize the depth of woe that had blackened all her past.

"He promised to love, honour, cherish me, as long as life lasted, and Mr. Hargrove pronounced me his wife, and blessed me. How dared we expect a blessing? Cuthbert knew that he was defying, outraging his father's wishes, and I had earned my title by deception and disobedience. God help all those who build their hopes upon the treacherous sands of human constancy. Mr. Hargrove laid his hand upon md head, and said in a strangely warning tone, which I might have known was prophetic: "Mrs. Laurance, you are the youngest wife I ever saw, you are not fit to be out of the nursery, but I trust this union will not fulfil my. forebodings; that the result will sanction my most reluctant performance of this hallowed ceremony."

"How subpremely happy I was! how utterly proud of my handsome tender husband! I do not know whether even then, he truly loved me, or if he merely intended me as a pretty toy to amuse him during the tedium of college sessions. I am not aware whether grandmother had always intended to publish the marriage as soon as consummated, or whether her breach of faith sprang from some facts she subsequently discovered; but certainly she distrusted Cuthbert's sincerity of purpose, and taking Peleg into her confidence, despatched him to inform General Laurance of all that had occurred. From that hour Peleg Peterson became my most implacable and dangerous foe.

"Dreaming of no danger, Cuthbert and I had spent but three weeks of wedded happiness, when, without premonition, the sun of my joy was suddenly blotted out. A letter arrived speedily followed by a telegram summoning him to the bedside of his father, who was dangerously ill. Cuthbert was restless, suspicious, unwilling to leave me, or appeared so, and when we parted he took me in his, arms, kissed away my tears, implored heaven to watch over his bride, his treasure, his wife, and swore that at the earliest possible moment he would hold 'darling Minnie' to his heart once more. Oh, the wonderful charm of that beautiful treacherous face! Oh, husband of my love! father of my innocent baby!"

She threw herself into a corner of the sofa, and the dry sob that shook her frame told how keen was the torture.

"I saw him enter the carriage and drive away, and thirteen years passed before I looked upon him again. Of course the reported illness was a mere ruse to lull his apprehensions. His father received him with a hurricane of reproaches, threats, maledictions. He taunted, jeered him with having been hoodwinked, cajoled, outwitted by a 'wily old washwoman,' who had inveigled him into a disgraceful mesalliance in order to betray him, to fasten upon and devour his wealth. One letter only I received from Cuthbert, denouncing grandmother's treachery and announcing his father's rage, and threats to disinherit and disown him if he did not repudiate the marriage, which he stated was invalid on account of his sons's minority. That letter, the first and last I ever received from my husband, you can read at your leisure. Three days after it was dated he and his father sailed for Europe, and he has never returned to America.

"Although it was a cruel blow to all my brilliant anticipations, I did not even then dream of the fate designed for me. I loved on, trusted on, hoped, oh how sanguinely! About three months after my husband left me Uncle Orme sent money to defray our expenses to California. Grandmother, who foreboded the future, told me I had been sacrificed, abandoned, repudiated and urged me to accompany her. In return, I indignantly refused, charging her with having fired the temple of my happiness, by the brand of her betrayal of the secret. Recriminations followed, we parted in anger and she left me, to join Uncle Orme, but not before acquainting me with the startling fact, that Peleg Peterson had declared his determination to annul the marriage by furnishing infamous testimony against my character.'

"After her departure, a man who acted as agent for Gen. Laurance called to negotiate for a separation. He offered me five thousand dollars and my passage to San Francisco, on condition of my renouncing all claim to the hand and name of Cuthbert Laurance. It was open war, and how they derided my proud demand for recognition!

"Mr. Andre left college the week after Cuthbert was called so unexpectedly away, and disappeared; and grandmother died suddenly with rheumatism of the heart, when only a few miles distant from the harbor of her destination. I secretely quitted the village, where gossip was busy with my name, and went to New York. My scanty means rapidly melted away, and I hired myself as a seamstress in a wealthy family. Not even at this state of affairs did I lose faith in my husband, and bravely I confronted the knowledge that at no distant period I should be forced to provide for a helpless infant.

"One day, in going down a steep flight of steps with a heavy waiter in my hands, I missed my footing, fell,—and was picked up senseless on the tiled floor at the foot of the stairs. A physician living near was called in, and as I was only the seamstress, the information he gave my employer, induced her to send me immediately to the hospital—for pauper women. One of my ankles was fractured, and the day after my admission to the hospital, you were born—prematurely. In a ward of that hospital, surrounded by strange but kind sympathetic faces, you my darling opened your blue eyes, unwelcomed by a father's love, unnoticed by your wretched mother: for I was delirious for many days, and you were three weeks old, when first I knew you were my baby. Ah my daughter! why did not a merciful God order us both out of the world then, before it persecuted and bruised us so cruelly? I have wished a thousand times, that you had died before I ever recognized you as mine!"

"Oh Mother! Mother, pity me. Do not reproach me with the life I owe to you."

Regina's features writhed, and pressing her face closer against her mother's knee, she sobbed unrestrainedly:

"My darling—blessings often come thoroughly disguised that we brand them as curses, learning later that they garner all our earthly hopes, sometimes our heavenly. You are the one solitary comfort in all the wide earth, and but for you I should have given up the struggle long ago."

Softly she stroked the silky hair and tearful cheek, and leaning back continued:

"While I was still an inmate of the hospital, where I was known as Minne Merle, Peleg Peterson found me, and proclaimed himself your father. He was partly intoxicated at the time, and was forcibly ejected; but the excitement of that dastardly horrible charge threw me into a relapse, and I was dangerously ill. Lying beside me on my cot, I watched your little tiny face, through the slow hours of convalescence, and your tiny hands seemed to strengthen me for the labour that beckoned me back to life. As I knew that my only safety lay in hiding for a time from my enemy, and destroying all trace of my departure from the hospital, I assumed the name of Odille Orphia Orme, which had belonged to a sister of my grandmother.

"I was not sixteen when you were born, and having had my head shaved during my illness, my hair grew out the bright gold you see it now, instead of the dark brown it had hitherto been. A strange freak of nature, but a providential aid to the disguise I wished to maintain. I wrote to Cuthbert, informing him of your birth, praying his speedy return; but no reply came—and again and again I repented the petition. At length I was answered by the return of all my letters, without a line of comment. Then I began to suspect was what was in store for me, but it threatened to drive me wild; and I shut my eyes and refused to think, set my teeth, and hoped, hoped still. The two years had almost expired, and when Cuthbert was of age, he would fly to his wife and child, solacing them for all they had endured. I could not afford to doubt; that way lay madness!

"When you were fourteen months old, I put you in an orphan asylum, where I could see you often, and took a situation as upper maid and seamstress in a family on Fifth Avenue. I was so anxious to astonish Cuthbert by my grace and intelligence, when he presented me to his father, and I exulted in the thought that even he might one day be proud of his son's wife.

"How I struggled and toiled, sewing by day, reading, studying by night. Finding Racine, Euripidies and Shakespeare in the library I pursued them carefully, and accidently I discovered my talent. The ladies of the house on one occassion had private theatricals, and the play was one with which I chanced to be familiar. At the last rehersal—on the night of the play, one of the young ladies was suddenly seized with such violent giddiness, that she was unable to appear in the character she personated and in the dilemma I was summoned. So successful was my performance that I saw the new path opening before me, and began to fit myself for it. I gave every spare moment to dramatic studies, and was progressing rapidly, when all hope was crushed.

"Cuthbert's birthday came, days, weeks, months rolled by, and I wrote one more passionate prayer for recognition; pleading that at least he would allow me to see him once again, that he would just once look at the lovely face of his child; then if he disowned both wife and child, we would ask him no more. How I counted the weeks that crawled away; how fondly I still hoped that now, being of age and free, he would fulfil his promise."

Daily Evening Review

FRIDAY, AUGUST 29, 1884.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Cricket Match.

A friendly game of cricket will be played on the Ashburnham grounds to-morrow between teams from Peterborough and Lakefield.

Baseball Match.

A baseball match will be played on the Ashburnham grounds on Tuesday, Sept. 2nd, between teams from the Silver Stars and the Peterborough Cricket Club. No doubt this will be an interesting match.

Oddfellows' Pic-Nic.

We are requested to state that on account of the lowness of the water in the river the Oddfellow's picnic to Idyl Wild will not come off. Parties who have received invitations will therefore govern themselves accordingly.

The Central Park.

The Central Park is now in good condition. The old sheds have been pulled down and carried away; the grounds have been raked over and levelled; and everything looks fresh and green. Councillor Rutherford, who had charge of the work, deserves credit for the prompt and expeditious manner in which the operation of cleaning up was done.

A New Cutter at the City Clothing Store.

Our genial friend LeBrun, at the above popular establishment, has secured the services of Mr. R. G. Kilpatrick, as cutter, and is, as usual, ready with a complete new stock of Fall Goods, which he will be pleased to make up in the finest styles for all those desirous of wearing nothing but elegant and neat-fitting clothing. Call and leave your measure and get the latest cut.

An Equine Fall.

This morning as Mr. C. E. Starr was leading a young horse into Messrs. Fitzgerald & Stangers horse-shoeing establishment it suddenly became frightened, jerked the halter out of Mr Star's hand and started down street. Some persons at the post office ran out and attempted to stop the animal. It shyed in towards the Post Office and crossed the sidewalk, but in doing so slipped on the wet boards and fell on its side in the gutter. It was, except being covered with mud, uninjured.

Football Meeting.

A meeting of the Peterborough Football Club was held at the Grand Central Hotel on Wednesday evening. The meeting was well attended and the following officers were elected:—A. St. A. Smith, President; W. H. Budden, Vice-President; P. E. S. Cooper, Sec-Treasurer; J. Weller, Captain; J. H. Carnegie, Sub-Captain; R. B. Rogers, J. Morris, H. Carnegie, Committee. Practice will be commenced on Monday morning at six o'clock. The Club will play the Torontos here on or about the 11th of October.

The Course.

The race course at Chemong Lake was measured on the ice last winter by Mr. R. B. Rogers, C. E., thus the competitors in the races may be sure of having to row an exact mile or a mile and a half as may be stated. The course for the sailing race is three miles with a turn; for the canoe race one mile straight away; for the single scull races one and a half miles straight away, and for the double sculls one mile straight away. Mr. Fobert is kept busy in looking after the details. Everything promises that the regatta will be a success.

Opening of the Driving Park.

The first grand opening of the Peterborough Driving Park will be held on Thursday next, September 4th, at 2 o'clock P.M., when the following sporting events will come off:—

Foot Race, (quarter mile)—For the championship Barlee medal.

Byecicle Race (one mile)—1st prize, handsome silver cup

Gentleman's Trotting Race.—Mile heats, best 2 in 3, in buggies, open to town and county of Peterborough. 1st prize $10, second prize $5.

Running Race.—Half mile, best 3 in 5, open to all the horses owned in the Town and county of Peterborough. 1st prize $15, second prize $5.

Entries to be made to the Secretary, Mr. A. Elliott, up twelve o'clock (noon) on September 4th. The horse races are to be governed by the American Turf Club Rules. Entrance fee 10 per cent on purse. Admission to the grounds 25 cents.

The Coming Concert.

Tickets for the Boating Club concert are now on sale in various places in town. To judge by the programme, all who secure a ticket for this concert will not regret the expenditure.

The Weather Prophet.

It will be seen by yesterday's weather report that Mr. G. W. Morgan's barometer indicated the rain storm this morning. When the barometer goes down rain is almost sure to follow.

The Weather.

The readings of the Thermometer and Barometer in Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store today were as follows:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
Nine o'clock	62°	28.78
One o'clock	70°	28.75
Three o'clock.	66°	28.74

To Be Rebuilt.

We understand that Mr. R. Kingan will have his store on Hunter street, which was destroyed by fire, rebuilt at once. The block which was occupied by Mr. Joseph Griffin and "Uncle John," and which belonged to the Hall estate, has been sold to Mr. John Lynch for $3,200. Mr. Lynch will rebuild this block also immediately.

The Paint Brush.

Mr. A. D. Fancher has called the paint brush into requisition. The front of his hotel is being freshened and embellished by receiving a fresh coat of paint. The base of the front is painted black; the facade, olive green, and the pannelling and ornamentations are colored old gold. Mr. W. H. Watson is engaged in completing the work.

Child Burned.

On Thursday morning a little three year old daughter of Mr. F. Lefavre, who lives in the South Ward, while playing with some matches set her pinafore on fire. Her dress quickly caught the flames and before it were extinguished the bosom and neck of the little child was badly burned. She is under the careful attendance of Dr. King, who says that she will recover.

Personal.

Mr. Chas. Leonard, who is practising law in Toronto, and who has been spending a few weeks on the waters of our back lakes, is at present in Peterborough.

Mr. W. H. Morrey, of Ingersoll, who has for for the past few weeks been in this town, and during that time has satisfactorily acted as referee in several lacrosse matches, took his departure last evening. He went west.

It Is Probable.

—That the Ontario and Quebec bridge will be preserved from rust now that it has received a coat of paint.

—That the drivers of the watering carts will be in good spirits notwithstanding the gloomy day—the streets do not need watering.

—That the hackmen at the Grand Trunk Railway station feel good humoured since a third electric lamp has been put up—on their side.

—That the Ontario & Quebec station will be completed in three weeks.

—That it will look well when illuminated with five electric lamps.

—That there will be a large number of people at the Railway Employee's picnic at the Summit to-morrow.

—That the Chemong Lake Regatta will be a success.

IS

It not really wonderful how much discussion there has been and still is as to what constitutes the most important article of a gentleman's dress. But only think for a moment and you will be compelled to acknowledge that the neck tie is the vulnerable point of material covering. Shabby gentility has nothing so characteristic as its tie. There is always some unnatural hang to it, and an unwholesome gloss suggestive of repeated brushings and long use. The last effort of decayed fortune is expended in nicely adjusting its delapidated tie. Ruffianism in all its various forms is always shabby about its neck wear, and his position is greatly decided by this fact. A man, therefore, should always keep up the standard of his dress, and his tie above all things, should be of the best taste and art. It is reported of a celebrated duke saying, the best dressed officers of the army were the best. It should also be remembered that a great many celebrated men were very particular about their neck wear. There was Byron, an accomplished man, he would propably be called a "swell" now. There was Lord Palmerston in his younger days, Benjamin Disraeli and many such men, men who have rocked this planet like a cradle, yes! and left it swinging to this day. Still there is no reason why you should go to your tailor's and run up large bills which will render pockets a superfluity in your next suit, or why you should go to stores where you pay large prices when you can get all the newest styles of ties at much lower prices. A gentleman can own eyes prove this. Why, he can get a good looking scarf, and one that will wear well, for 25c., or if he wishes the very best.

SOCIAL

STANDING

DETERMINED

BY HIS

TIE

that money can buy or artistic taste suggest, he can getelt at ANDREW MCNEIL'S, Tailor and Clothier, Gentleman's Furnishings, etc., George street. See our window for cheap ties, come inside for finer ones. It will be a pleasure to show them to you, and you will be pleased to see them.

Truth Bible Competition

NO. ELEVEN.

THE FINAL ONE!

Closing September 15th.

A NEW PLAN.

For Persons Residing Anywhere in the World Outside the City of Toronto.

The Largest List, and Most Valuable Ever Offered by any Publisher.

RESIDENTS OF TORONTO INADMISSABLE.

A SMALL FARM FREE.

SPECIAL CLUB OFFER!

Four Pianos, Three Organs, Silver Tea Sets, Sewing Machines, Gold Watches, Silver Watches, and Innumerable other Valuable Rewards

DON'T DELAY SENDING IN YOUR ANSWERS.

At the solicitation of many friends Truth announces one more—the final—Bible competition. Owing to the fact of so many valuable rewards going to citizens of Toronto, this competition will be open only to persons living outside the city of Toronto. Any one residing in any other part of the habitable world will be eligible to compete for these magnificent rewards. The questions—which are supplied by an eminent Presbyterian minister—are very difficult, but the rewards are valuable. We hope the publisher of Truth will meet with the success his enterprise so richly merits. Everything he has offered in previous Bible Competitions has been promptly and cheerfully handed over to the successful ones the moment they are known. We most heartily commend the paper to our readers. They will find it all it is represented to be. Full and complete lists of all those who gain rewards are given in Truth the week following the close of each competition. There will be no chance, and no postponement in any way; everything will be carried out exactly as stated.

HERE ARE THE QUESTIONS.

1.—Where is Gold first made mention of in the Bible?

2.—Where does it first state in the Bible that there was only one language and one speech on the whole earth?

3.—When is Inn first referred to in the Bible? by the word inn is meant a place of rest and refreshment, commonly known now as an hotel).

Everyone competing must send one dollar with their answers, for six months subscription to Truth. And aside from the rewards themselves they will find that they have made the best investment of one dollar they ever did. Truth is full and big value for the money. Bear in mind that you pay nothing extra for the privilege of competing for these costly rewards, as you will get Truth for six months in any case for your one dollar, which is the regular subscription price, and will also get one of these rewards, provided you answers are correct, and reach Truth office in time. Don't delay.

The five hundred and four costly articles beginning with the piano, that follow No. 1 of these middle awards, will be given to the five hundred and four persons who send the next correct answers following the middle or centre reward that takes the farm. The land mentioned above could be divided up into building lots and sold to great advantage, as there are no vacant houses in the town of Clifton or Niagara Falls, as it is now called. Then, that even the last ones may not feel that they are to be left out, Truth will give a series of

CONSOLATION REWARDS.

312 to 401.—Ninety Solid Triple Silver-plated Butter Knives	90 0

The further you live from Toronto the better you can compete for these last or consolation rewards. Bear in mind that it is the last correct answer received at the office of Truth that gets number one in these consolation rewards. The offer is open only to the 15th September, and as long as your letter bears the post mark, where mailed, of the date of 15th September, it will take its place in the order received at Truth office. Fifteen days after date of closing will be allowed for letters from distant points to reach Toronto, but don't forget your letter must not bear a later post-mark than September 15. All competing must send with their answers one dollar for six months' subscription to Truth, which will be sent to any desired address for the twelve months. Wherever you live, outside Toronto, you can compete at any time between now and the closing day for either the first or middle rewards, and as well as, of course, for the consolation rewards. Some one will get those five acres of land—why not you? Look up your Bible now, and see if you can find the answers to these questions. It will do you good, apart from the opportunity you have of obtaining a valuable reward in addition to Truth

SPECIAL CLUB OFFER.

If twenty-five persons join and send $50 each one of the twenty-five whose answers are correct will get their choice of a solid rolled gold brooch, new and elegant design, worth at retail two dollars; a Chambers' Etymological Dictionary, worth about same amount; a World's Universal Cyclopædia, or a volume elegantly bound of Shakespeare's Complete Works. Of course, each of the club will have the same opportunity of gaining one of the rewards in the regular list (in addition to the certainty of one of the prizes aforesaid), as though they had sent in singly. This is simply an extra inducement to clubs.

The rewards in last competition were very widely scattered over Ontario and Quebec. In fact every Province was represented in the last, not excepting British Columbia. A great many also went to the States.

No information will be given any one beyond what has above been stated. So don't waste time by waiting, but send in your answers and money now. If you happen to be too late for the first, you may be fortunate enough to obtain a middle reward, and that is where the biggest ones are. Truth directs special attention to the fact that clergymen are not permitted to compete, neither are persons who in previous competitions won prizes exdeeding one hundred dollars in value. This we think exceedingly fair, and as no Torontonians are allowed to compete, the field is now open for a fair and square race for these rewards to any one, as Truth says, on the habitable globe, outside Toronto. No money will be received by telegraph or in any way but through the post-office or by express. One dollar only required Try your skill. You are sure of good value for your money anyway. Address S. Frank Wilson, Truth office, 33 and 35 Adelaide street, Toronto, Canada.

If it Were Possible

To get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring debility, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medical value than any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking the Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as the people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer because people have been so often humbugged by the week decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make the people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by those unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

Well Rewarded.

A liberal reward will be paid to any party who will produce a case of liver, kidney or stomach complaint that Electric bitters will not speedily cure. Bring them along, it will cost you nothing for the medicine if it fails to cure, and you will be well rewarded for your trouble besides. All blood diseases, biliousness, jaundice, constipation and general debility are quickly cured. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Price only fifty cents a bottle. For sale by Taylor & McDonald.

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D., New York City.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box For sale by Taylor & Macdonald.

UNANIMOUS APPROVAL OF MEDICAL STAFF.

Dr. G. T. Cornstock, physician at Good Samaritan Hospital, St. Louis, Mo., says: "For years we have used it in this hospital, in dyspepsia and nervous diseases, and as a drug during the decline and in the convalescence of lingering fevers. It has the unanimous approval of our medical staff."

SO MODEST A VIRTUE

AS

GOODNESS

Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

Certainly, if you are always careful to avoid accidents, otherwise better leave Lock, Stock and Barrel at home. But hunters' luck is proverbial, it does not always supply the wants of the Inner Man. For this important consideration I offer a full supply of Requisities:—

Canned Goods, in Meats, Soups, Sauces, Pickles, Vegetables and Fruits, and a Luxury in Condensed Milk.

Without which, once enjoyed, a man will leave his tea and coffee untasted.

Go then, by all means, but don't forget the Requisities while securing the Outfit.

Enjoy your trip and be happy.

W. J. MASON

To Dyspeptics.

The most common signs of Dyspepsia, or indigestion, are a sense of fullness after eating, stomach, nausea, flatuleney, water-brash, heart-burn, vomiting, loss of appetite, and constipation. Dyspeptic patients suffer untold miseries, bodily and mental. They should stimulate the digestion, and secure regular daily action of the bowels, by the use of moderate doses of

Ayer's Pills.

After the bowels are regulated, one of these Pills, taken each day after dinner, is usually all that is required to complete the cure.

AYER'S PILLS are sugar-coated and purely vegetable—a pleasant, entirely safe, and reliable medicine for the cure of all disorders of the stomach and bowels. They are the best of all purgatives for family use.

THE FRANCO-CHINESE WAR.

Remaining Chinese Works at Kin Pai Destroyed—Native Uprising Not Feared.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 29.—European residents of Shanghai remain unmolested. Many Chinese have become alarmed and are leaving. The Chief Magistrate and consuls have issued placards urging the natives to remain in their homes, as the French have no present intention of attacking Shanghai or Woo Sung.

EXPLANATION NECESSARY.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—Figaro, commenting upon the increase of English troops in Egypt from 6,000 to 14,000, says:—"Explanation is necessary. If it is designed to stop the passage of the French through the Suez Canal in the event of an Anglo-Chinese alliance, France keeps 51,000 troops in Algeria and Tunis, who are ready to seize Cairo when ordered."

THE DESTRUCTION COMPLETE.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 29, 4 p.m.—The French fleet has destroyed the remaining Chinese works at Kin Pai channel. It is believed that the fleet left the Min River to-day, but its destination is uncertain. It seems probable it will come to Shanghai.

AWAITED WITH CONFIDENCE.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—Gen. Millot telegraphs to Paris that the Chinese are preparing to invade Tonquin. He awaits their advance with confidence.

REASSURING.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Advices received by leading China houses from Foo Chow and Shanghai show that no dread is entertained of a native uprising. Business is being proceeded with as usual. In London the premiums on trading vessels in China seas, which had been advanced to war rates, have fallen to nominal rates, and general commercial confidence prevails. An early settlemant of the difficulties is looked for.

The Prairie Province.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 29.—Hon. Alex. Mackenzie returned last night from the Rockies. He speaks highly of the country, and especially of Regina, which has been defamed by unpatriotic papers. The opinion he had previously formed of the country west of Moose Jaw was changed as he witnessed practical proof against his early belief. He visited the C.P.R. experimental farms and found them all producing excellent crops. He will be presented with an address on Tuesday at the Opera house, when Sir R. Cartwright will also be present. To-morrow the party visits Stonewall, and on Monday goes to southern Manitoba.

Sir Hector Langevin was banqueted at Brandon on Thursday. In his address he invited the farmers to see him on his return, so that he can represent their actual wants to the Cabinet Fleming, the war horse of the Farmers' Union, was present at the banquet and made a non-political speech.—Mail.

Children's Corsets to suit all ages, and most improved makes, now in stock at Turnbull's.

More Than Hay.

A curious case of sharp practice was developed on Monday in London. A gentleman who is about leaving the city for Montreal and who is disposing of some of his goods and chattels, sold a quantity of hay at $10 a ton to the Hendrie Cartage Company who do the teaming for the Grand Trunk Railway. Four loads of fodder had been weighed and the usual tickets furnished the driver by the weigh scale clerk when the sharp eye of a Grand Trunk Railway driver detected the prostrate form of a stalwart man on top of the loaded waggon. Being closely questioned, the man owned to having been weighed on each of the four loads. The stalwart on being weighed separately was found to tip the beam at 175 lbs. A little multiplication proved that $3.50 would have to be deducted from the apparent value of the hay and new tickets were made out to this effect.

The Growth of St. Marys.

An old resident of St Marys and now of Guelph who has been absent for seventeen years years, pays a high compliment in a letter to the Argus or the improvements which have taken place in the Stone Village since he was there. He says: The new and elegant churches which of late years have been erected are important evidence of the stability and devout character of the people. It would be difficult to point to finer structures in the cities of Ontario. The increase to the number and style of dwelling houses caught my eye everywhere. One, two and three houses peered out amongst the trees, giving the town a substantial air, and to me it spoke of increased wealth and happiness amongst the inhabitants.—Coaticook Mercury (Grit).

A Fearful Death.

LUCKNOW, Aug. 28.—A shocking accident occurred on Tuesday at the lime kiln on the 3rd con. of the Township of Kilnoss, by which Mr. William Fraser, aged 65 years, met his untimely death. It appears that the old gentleman went into the top of the kiln to remove some unburned stones, and while stooping over a large stone fell upon his back, completely crushing him with its ponderous weight. When found about four p.m. he was lying face down with the large stone upon him. Although there had been no fire in the kiln for some days, the flesh on his face and body was almost roasted from the heat of the lime.

Cattle Plague in the United States.

[illegible]—Aug. 29.—Post: Law says that the cattle plague, having been allowed to reach the West, it is no longer safe to purchase stock cattle that have been carried by rail or other public conveyance; that have been in public sales, markets, fairs or other assemblages of cattle, or that have been in contact with cattle so exposed. Butchers and dealers handling fat stock destined for slaughter should on no account allow them or their products to come in contact with stock cattle. All public carrying companies should cleanse cattle carrying cars and boats and disinfect them with lime.

Four Men Arrested.

HAMILTON, Aug. 29.—The police have arrested four young men whom they believe are concerned in the Concession street outrage on July 27th last. It will be remembered that upon that date several men attacked a young man and woman, severely beating the man and brutally outraging the young woman. Their names are Frederick Rowe, Aaron Levis, Edward Pollington and Charles Hempstock.

COLLIERY ACCIDENT.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—A terrible accident occured to-day at Blackstone coal pit, near Paisley by which seven persons were killed.

WATERMEN OFFENDED.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The Thames watermen who offered their services to the Gordon expedition resent the fact that they were overlooked and assistance sought in Canada. Stanley had a long conference with General Wolseley yesterday. General Wolseley takes farewell of the Queen to-morrow.

RIOT IN NAPLES.

NAPLES, Aug. 29.—Fierce opposition to the transference of cholera patients to the hospital prevails among the populace. Forcible opposition was yesterday offered as a person stricken with the cholera was being conveyed to the hospital. The rioters wounded and otherwise maltreated the policemen. Crowds of women assailed the schools, fearing that their children would be taken to the hospital if they became ill. The Syndic has asked the Archbishop to help to enlighten the prople.

CHOLERA IN FRANCE.

MARSEILLES, Aug. 29.—There have been 32 deaths from cholera in the southern departments of France during the last 24 hours.

FRAUDS DISCOVERED.

CAIRO, Aug. 29.—Frauds amounting to £80,000 have been discovered in the Ministry of Finance. Foreign officials of high standing are implicated.

PRINCE ALFRED AT DUBLIN.

DUBLIN, Aug. 29.—The Duke of Edinburgh with the Channel fleet is visiting Dublin harbor. This has caused a great stir among the people, and the Duke has been well received. Thousands of persons flocked to Kingstown to visit the fleet, and the evenings are made brilliant with balls, fireworks, and illuminations. The Freeman's Journal says such occurrences indicate how loyal the Irish might be if they were accorded their just rights.

THE NILE.

ASSOUAN, Aug. 29.—Seven steamers have passed the first cataract. The Nile is rising steadily, and has already risen four feet at Wady Halfa. The two thousand labourers collected to haul the steamers through the cataracts are reported to be starving. Two days rations have been sent. The question of provisions is becoming serious.

MORE ACTIONS.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—It is reported that the prosecutions are impending against the proprietors of United Ireland for publishing articles accusing the members of the Irish Executive of deliberate suppression and manipulation of the evidence against Cornwall and others, in connection with the trials just closed.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

HAMBURG, Aug. 29.—To-day a locksmith named Bornemann, entered the office of Moritz Kaner, a money changer, stabbed him in the neck, and then proceeded to open the safe. Laner reached the window, smashed the glass and shouted for help, upon which Bornemann fled without securing anything. He was captured after a violent struggle, and many weapons were found in his possession. He lived a long time in America.

PAPAL ENCYCLICAL.

ROME, Aug. 29.—An encyclical letter of the Pope, directed against the French Government in adopting a new divorce law, is ready for promulgation. The Pope reminds the French people, already frequently admonished, against laws contrary to the Church passed by their rulers. He instructs the bishops of the various dioceses as to the course they should pursue in order to maintain the principles of the Church in regard to the sacrement of marriage.

A TERRIBLE CYCLONE

BARDSTOWN, Ky., Aug. 29.—A storm this morning did much damage in Nelson County to crops and houses. At Bloomfield Broadbent's carriage factory was destroyed; the bridges were all washed away, thousands of shade trees torn up by the roots, and other injury done. Rollker's new foundry was almost demolished. The steamers J. V. Throop and Silver Thorn were badly damaged—the former almost wrecked. Several churches suffered severely, also a new schoolhouse. The steamer Belmont was lost and ten to fifteen persons were drowned.

A Bogus Railway.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 29.—A fraudulent attempt to induce English capitalists to invest in the bonds of the Newcastle and Middlesex Railway, which has no corporate existence, has been discovered. Advertisements were inserted in the London newspapers offering twelve thousand six per cent. first mortgage bonds of one hundred pounds each. The road was to be completed by October 1st, and the money obtained used for rails and rolling stock. The prospectus exactly describes the Newcastle and Northern railroad, and uses the names of some prominent persons without authority.

An Old Boy

The St. John Sun is responsible for the following story:—A cord wainer, aged 104, and his son, aged 85, arrived in the city the other morning by the schooner "Mystic Tie," from Annapolis, on a visit to some friends. During the day, the son, while inspecting the "burned district," wandered away from his father, who rushed around for some time, asking every one he met, "Did you see my boy?" The reunion, which took place later on was very affecting.

TOWN FINANCES.

THE financial statement presented to the Town Council at its meeting on Thursday evening is, as Councillor Davidson remarked, a very satisfactory exhibit. The sound financial standing of the corporation is one of the most important advantages that Peterborough possesses. The rate of taxation this year is low, as compared with other towns, it being 12 2-10 mills on the dollar, or 1 2-10 mills lower than last year.

It is true that the town received this year $1,000 from the sale of reserved land, and $750 by a settlement with the village of Ashburnham, which was a special revenue and will not be permanent, but the estimated expenditure includes the cost of building an iron bridge over the creek on Hunter street, so that, if this special revenue had not been received, and this permanent improvement not made, the rate would still have been about the same. The amount received from the sale of land, which might be counted as capital, has been applied to making an improvement of a character usually paid for by the issue of debentures.

The supplementary statement read by the Chairman of the Finance Committee, of the assets and liabilities of the town, was also one that should prove the healthy condition of the town's finances. The liabilities of the town, in the form of debentures, is $180,550, while the assets, including the real estate owned by the corporation and the stock in the Midland Railway, exceeds the liabilities by $67,294.

As there is a strict provision in the rate by-law that no department shall be allowed to exceed the estimates, and thus make deficits liable, and as the town is growing and the amount of assessable property will increase with the necessarily increasing demands on the town treasury, there is no reason why, with a careful management of the affairs of the corporation, the taxes should not be kept at the low rate at which they now stand.

With the ample railway accommodation which this town now possesses, its unsurpassed water privileges, and a rate of taxation below that of any other neighboring town, it is no matter for surprise that Peterborough is progressing and that it will continue to advance is an assured certainty.

THE REFORM USURPATION.

MANY of the Reform journals are endeavoring to twist the decision of the Privy Council into a condemnation of Sir John Macdonald, when in truth it is the course of the Reform leaders that is thus condemned. Because the Privy Council declared (as we have always maintained) that the award was invalid for want of the action of the Dominion Legislature, these Reform critics pretend that Sir John was at fault for not passing a measure to ratify the award. This contention shows the addiction to tyrannical abuse of power by these sham Reformers.

The constitution places such matters under the control of the Legislatures. Sir John is not the Legislature of Canada, and if he had attempted to act for Parliament he would have been guilty of a similar fault to that of Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. Mowat, when they usurped for the Executive the powers given to the Legislature. Mr. Mowat's action as to the award was indeed sanctioned by the Legislature of the Province, but that of Mr. Mackenzie was not sanctioned by the Parliament of the Dominion. A succeeding administration is not bound to take steps to procure a bill of indemnity in favor of its predecessors, who have usurped powers not given to them by the Constitution. That usurpation the highest court of the realm has condemned.

Even parliamentary action would not have been satisfactory, for it would only have made a boundary, not have decided what had been the legal boundary. That, as Sir John Macdonald pointed out years ago, was a matter for the decision of the courts, but Mr. Mowat's obstinate refusal kept us out of our rights till he was at length forced by Conservative action to adopt the Conservative policy.

INJURING CANADA.

We have received a number of communications, from business men and persons of standing in different parts of Ontario and Quebec, taking exception to statements which have been recently made as to Canadian affairs, by several journals on both sides of the Atlantic. As for the reports put forth respecting our industries other than textile, describing their alleged languishing condition, many of these have been contradicted or corrected in letters from the proprietors of mills and factories. But we find that erroneous statements in this and all other directions are injuring Canada abroad. Letters which we have ourselves seen, from Liverpool and Manchester, state that the policy of depreciation of Canada, adopted by certain Canadian journals is doing much harm to her interests there And we have been told by correspondents of Birmingham and Glasgow houses that, according to old-country letters, "immigration to Canada is clearly being hindered by the accounts which reach here, taken from your public journals, as to the bad state of your manufactures and the glut of all sorts of labor."

One gentleman tells us that he has seen, in a local paper published in Elgin, Scotland, a warning against going to Canada, "where, according to their own papers, things are so bad." And a correspondent in the north of England writes to ask us whether we are really in such a state of "financial and industrial collapse as some American and even Canadian papers not only predict but predicate."

A grave responsibility rests upon those who give currency to exaggerated stories of Canadian dulness and decay. The truth about such matters wrongs no one, but to go beyond the truth for the purpose of making a point, when by so doing the country at large is injured, seems to us an inexcusable thing. The work done for this country by our emigration agents, Provincial or Dominion, in influencing persons from the older countries to come over and possess our lands, is liable to be largely undone when inflated tales of dire distress are told by faithless heralds amongst ourselves. And these tales are taken up only too readily by the American emigration agents, or the emissaries of western railroads in the United States, and used to persuade intending emigrants to avoid Canada and prefer the neighboring Union.

Happily there are now in Canada many prominent men from the United Kingdom who will see for themselves, in the course of visits to our different provinces, and by the personal inspection they are making of our industries, what is the actual state of affairs. But it is none the less humilitating to be dependent on friendly visitors for the correction of false statements sent abroad by Canadian journals.—Monetary Times.

LINDSAY.

THE OPS DRAIN.—The tender for the construction of the Ops drain put in by Mr. J. Sawey has been accepted the figures being the lowest, $2,350. Thanks to the popularity of the worthy reeve, Mr. D. Walker, this work in which Mr. Walker has interested himself for the past two years, is now in a fair way of being completed; and those who were unwilling to support the scheme are now the strongest friends of the undertaking.

THE STORM.—From a number of reports more or less authentic it is known that the storm of Thursday made things lively on the inland waters. It blew a perfect hurricane on Sturgeon lake, levelling trees, overturning lumber piles and very near overturning the steamers that happened to be afloat. The Mary Ellen was driven ashore just above the spring on Sturgeon Point. The Esturion was caught about mid-lake, but though it was a trying ordeal the steamer passed through it safely, only a few cups and saucers being broken.—Post.

A NEW DEPARTURE.—The Salvation Army Wednesday evening made a new departure. Each soldier on this occasion came out torch-light in hand and on the formation of the regiment marched through the principal streets. The sight of so many torches was not bad but the commotion made by the noisy drums, the shouting of some of the officers and the shrill yelling and whistling of the small boy was sufficient to make one think all bedlam had broken loose. A march was finally made to the barracks, where the torches were discarded and "knee drill" indulged in. Whatever might be thought of the religious phase of the affair the novelty certainly attracted large crowds of people to witness it.—Warder.

MILLBROOK.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.—On Thursday afternoon the storm was much more severe, a mile south of here, than it was in Millbrook. At Mr. Wm. Redmond's, the large shed near the house, was struck by lightning, at the west end and the hay in the mow was set on fire. Fortunately a couple of men were close by, and Mr. Redmond in the house, only a few feet away, and the fire was speedily extinguished. We also learn that Mr. Francey's barn and Mrs. Brown's barn, both to the east along the line were struck, as were several large trees, along the line.

NEW BUILDINGS.—The contractors are getting along well with the foundation of the new St. Thomas' Church. Mr. Belcher, of Peterboro', is the architect; Mr. John Alford, of the same place, is contractor. The same contractor is building the fine new residence, on what has long been known as the "Gardiner Lot" a little south-west of Mr. W.G. Russell's machine shop. It is progressing rapidly. The Rev. W.C. Allen, Curate of Cavan, recently bought the lot, and the dwelling is to be ready for occupation this fall. Mr. Belcher is the architect. The village municipal authorities are erecting a substantial building, on the town lot, in rear of the Town Hall, for a residence for our efficient steam fire engine, the hand engine and the hose reel.—Messenger.

A Backboard Policy.

The Toronto Globe assures us that a change of Government at Ottawa would soon remedy all ills to which Manitoba and the Northwest are heirs and so put a stop to all revolutionary tendencies. If the Globe would but go a little further and, laying aside generalities, would tell us just what is the policy of the Liberal party in general and its Northwest policy in particular we should be in a better position to judge in the matter. We do not remember to have heard from any of the leaders of the party any clear declaration of views and purposes in regard to the vexed questions that just now interest us so deeply. Something more than negative criticism, however keen, and a general hostility to the existing Government and the C. P. R. will be necessary to allay the anxieties the Northwest and secure its confidence.—Moosejaw News

A Curious Watch.

Mr. Wingfield, J.P., of Parkdale, is the possessor of a great curiosity in the shape of a watch manufactured in China. It is over one hundred years old, and presents the outward appearance of an old-time English watch. The works are constructed on a similar plan to the more modern American timepiece. On the case inside is the name of the maker in Chinese characters. The owner says that it cannot be purchased from him for any amount of money.—Mail.

Self Binders.

On Friday last there was a trial of self-binding reapers on Jas. Sangster's farm, near Ormsrow, in a field of oats with some peas mixed through it. The names of machines were the Chatham, Little Brantford, Patterson Bros'., and Frost & Wood's. Such was the interest manifested in the competition, that 250 persons were present. Four judges were selected. Thos. Drysdale, D. Finlayson, E. Deon, and Robt. McIntosh. All the machines seemed quite fit for work. The perfectness with which the sheaf was gathered up, tied with a cord and thrown off, was surprising. The judges awarded the Chatham 1st prize, the Little Brantford 2nd, and Patterson Bros'. 3rd. The Chatham tied a hard knot, the others a loop knot.

The Yellow Leaf.

Passengers by rail and river have noticed that here and there all over the country a maple tree has already donned the crimson colors o autumn. In many places where these appear there have been no frosts to cause this early change of color. One theory accounts for it by the long continued wet weather having pushed the leaf growth to maturity at an earlier date than usual.—St. John Telegraph.

DECORATION.

The following is a full report of of the lecture delivered by Mr. T. Arnold Haultain, M. A., on "Decoration," in the school room of St. John's Church on the evening of Monday, August 25th :—

The subject, Decoration, upon which I have the honour of addressing you this evening, Mr. chairman and ladies and gentlemen, is one so wide and inexhaustible that I feel I owe you an apology for venturing thus upon so arduous an undertaking. You, Mr. Chairman, have been kind enough to say—and truthfully—that I have given to this subject not a little observation and study. And indeed, had I not done so, I should not have presumed to have asked your presence here this evening.

Please do not imagine from this, however, that I am about to delve into all the profundities and mysteries of this no unimportant branch of the fine arts. To tell you the truth, even that small sphere in fancy needle work, seems to me to be a fearfully and wonderfully made science. I am continually getting confused between crewel work, and macrame work, and appliquee work. And when I hear of such things as hem stitches, cross stitches, button-hole stitches, herring-bone stitches, I am utterly bewildered.

No; I assure you I intend merely to discuss with you this evening a few of the simpler and more fundamental laws of decorative art to show why we decorate; how we ought to decorate; to point out how we may distinguish true, right decoration from decoration falsely so called; and to discover what should be the highest aim of this so delightful and so refining an art.

In attempting to do this, I trust that I shall obtain your sympathy and interest; for, as Coleridge has said, "sympathy and interest are to a lecturer like the sun and the showers to nature—absolutely necessary to the production of blossoms and fruit."

Before I commence I must unburden my mind of two things that are weighing upon it and making me uneasy. I very much fear that you will think from the bulk of my MS. that I intend to keep you here until to-morrow morning. The fact is, my hand writing has been compared to a crab crawling over the paper.

Secondly, I sincerely hope, very sincerely hope you do not for a moment imagine that this thing (a red screen), this hideous thing is one of my "practical illustrations" of decoration! It is enough to give one the scarlet fever to look at it.

To proceed then: I need scarcely tell you that almost all decoration—I will explain why I say 'almost' presently—that almost all decoration is founded upon laws, upon accurate scientific principles: that there is a right and a wrong for every stitch of the needle, every touch of the brush, every stroke of the chisel; that every design, from the frescoes of the Vatican down to the pattern on a carpet slipper, should be guided in every minute particular by known rules. And further, that it is the duty of every decorator to make himself or herself acquainted with these rules.

I wish at this point to let you into a secret—one that I discovered not many months ago; a secret that some of you will be surprised at, and one which, when I tell you, I beg you will not whisper outside this building.

There are a great many people who not only have not the remotest intention of ever trying to learn any of these laws of decoration, but actually do not know that there are any such things in existence!

Let me tell you how I found this out.

I had occasion once to design and manufacture an easy chair; and wishing to work a group of poppies, I found myself suddenly brought to a stand still by the difficulty of drawing them. In despair I stepped into a fancy needle work shop, explained my difficulty, and politely asked if there was any possible way of getting over it. In the twinkling of an eye, before I finished my laments, a great big drawer was placed before me, and in it—what do you think? thousands and thousands of the very things I wanted, all done ready for use—poppies, lilies, humming birds, Bunthotres, sunflowers—everything. The only thing that was necessary to use all these beautiful patterns was simply a little filosel and the knowledge of how to button-hole stitch. What quantities of admiration I then learned I had quite thrown away upon designs that I had fondly imagined had been original; what useless enthusiasm; what misdirect praise; what empty compliments. From that day to this, under every piece of embroidery I expect to see the spectre of machine-made designs on crash, or towelling, or drugget, or chintz, or cretonne, or glass cloth, or kitchen duster. A good design, I grant you, should live, should be perpetuated; but that the same design should be used for every imaginable description of decoration, irrespective of its congruity or incongruity—Oh! lamentable.

To proceed, then, I must tell you at the outset that there are two grand antagonistic schools of thought on the subject of the functions of art: on the purposes of art, what art should aim at. The one, headed by Mr. Ruskin, holds that, to use his words, "all arts should do us material service." In other words, that no artistic thing should exist unless it is of some actual practical use to us. The other school, among the members of which is Sir Frederick Leighton, thinks, on the contrary, that art should not be so limited. "Indeed," says Principal Shairp, "the idea of imposing on [art] any aim beyond that of expressing the delight it has in the objects it loves, and the thrilling emotions which spring from the contemplation of these, is alien to the very nature of poetic or artistic inspiration." This, however, need not much concern us to-night. If you agree with Mr. Ruskin and yet like to scatter Japanese fans and sun-shades about your room, you will have to write "Scratch my Back" on them all; if you like to see plaques hanging on your walls, you will be obliged to say they are painted soup plates, ready to "do material service" if an extra number of guests should happen to drop in for lunch; if you like to wear beauty spots (I hear, by-the-bye, that these are coming into fashion again), you must say that they are on your cheeks or your chins to hide unsightly moles. If, on the other hand, you agree with Sir Frederick, you need make no such excuses.

It is time now to enquire: What is Decoration? Decoration may be defined in three words: Beautifying the useful; i. e., changing or adding to a useful article, so that, while still retaining its utility, it shall, at the same time, be pleasing to some other senses—the eye, the ear, the touch, the nose.

Thus, the walls of our rooms, for example, are useful articles. We change these by means of wall papers; we add to them by cornices, by dados, by borders, by sateen cloth, by tapestry, by curtains, by pictures—and so decorate them. So with chairs: We turn and polish their legs; we cover them with damask and velvet, and, at last, stick untidies on them—I beg pardon, tidies.

Let me show you some practical examples of decoration.

Here is a purely useful article (umbrella): decidedly more useful than is it ornamental—a hackneyed phrase peculiarly applicable to this particular specimen. This is what is commonly called a "Sairey Gamp." Now, if we beautify this at present not very pretty thing—you smile as if it would be rather a difficult task!—well, let me say, if we change it, or add to it so that it shall, while still shading us from the sun, be a little more pleasant to look at, we shall get something like this (parasol). There, that, I think, is a true type of decoration proper. Some more useful things (pillows). I need not tell you what these are, at all events they are useful, very useful—especially to the school-boy when there is a pillow-fight on the tapis. But they are decidedly undecorated; so much so that we always hide them from view by means of pillow cases. Let me show you what these come to when we change them or add to them so that they shall be pretty. Here are their decorated cousins (sofa cushions). That is another example of decoration proper.

Here is another very useful pair of things (boots). One could hardly "trip the light fantastic toe" on these things. Their decorated sisters will probably be some delicious little things like these (dancing shoes). Are they not poetical? One can quite believe in the poetry of motion after seeing these.

Here is another useful thing (black apron), very useful. Smile not at it, ladies and gentlemen, many a rustic maid could toy most charmingly with one of its not too elegant corners, a feat that with this thing (lace apron)—exquisite though it be—would be well nigh impossible.

Yet again, this affair, I don't quite like to call it a pocket-handkerchief (pocket-handkerchief) was quite indespensible to our snuff-taking grandfathers. This (lace pocket-handkerchief) is what our grand-fathers' granddaughters—shall I say—carry? This perhaps is even more poetical than the shoes. It could hardly be used as an argument for the evolution theory; could it? Surely this cannot be the result of a "struggle for existence" and the "survival of the fittest." It is useful to carry a little scent about, at all events.

At this point I wish to place before you a thought which has often occurred to me—we have found that the two chief factors in decoration are utility and beauty. That to produce a perfect object we have to unite these two separate qualities. Does not this world seem altogether a world of separations? Metaphysicians tell us that it is only through separation that we know anything at all—that I only know that this thing exists because it is not that; and that they both exist because they are separate from me. And between each of us human beings is there not fixed an impassible barrier? Can any one really tell to another his inmost thought? As Carlyle wrote: "No man can explain himself, can get himself explained." And do you know those beautiful lines of Matthew Arnold's?:—

> Yes, in this sea of life enisled,
> With echoing straits between us thrown,
> Dotting the shoreless watery wild
> We mortal millions live alone.

And is not the whole of life one long, incessant attempt to join these, to bring them together, to unite them into one? What is friendship but this? What is love but this? And, to come back to our subject, what is art but this? There is around us so much that it is unbeautiful, untrue, that we fruitlessly, vainly, futilely try to join something beautiful, something true to it. Yet can we not in the mysteriousness of our own souls image to ourselves, somewhat dimly perhaps, a world in which there shall be no separateness, no separation; where we shall know even as we are known; where all shall be beautiful just because it is useful, because it is true? If we believe this, then we can appreciate those sublime lines of the poet Keats:—

> Beauty is true, truth beauty; that is all
> Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know.

We have now, I think, got a clear idea of what decoration is. Let us try and discover what is its origin: why we are impelled by some instinct, as it were, to ornament everything upon which we can lay our hands; why it is that we are not satisfied to drink out of tin cans, to eat off deal boards, to wear blankets, to sit on stumps, and to carry "Sairey Gamps."

My explanation is this:—

There is implanted in our nature a sort of æsthetic hunger or craving, which demands to be satisfied by being liberally supplied with pretty things. It is a hunger of perceiving something nice, just as ordinary hunger is a desire of receiving something nice.

I see no reason why there should not be this sort of æsthetic hunger. Are our eyes only given us to see where we are going? Are our fingers only for grasping, or for feeling our way in the dark? Is the only use of our ears to listen to—to—dry lectures on decoration? No; assuredly no. The eye delights in seeing beautiful forms; the ear delights in melodious and harmonious sounds; the hand delights in a warm, soft touch. All the senses crave for these delights.

There is, however, you must know, another theory of the source of the fine arts. Man, say philosophers like Herbert Spencer, man has been gifted with a superabundance of power; when he has laboured sufficiently to earn his daily bread, when, that is, he has exerted enough muscular force to procure something to satisfy his hunger and thirst, there is left over a large amount of energy which must find a new field of action. And this, say these philosophers, finds vent in the fine arts. In the lower animals this excess of energy exhibits itself in gambols and capers; amongst monkeys in mischievousness; amongst babies in making general nuisances of themselves—especially in railway carriages; amongst boys in teasing their sisters; amongst these sisters in retaliating upon their brothers, or perhaps, when they grow a little older, upon other girls' brothers; amongst grown-up people generally, I think, in making bores of themselves—a species of occupations amongst which, I fear very much of you will reckon lecturing on decoration! This is what these philosophers call the "play instinct," and it is to this "play instinct" that they trace the source of the fine arts.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:

DEAR SIRS,—I ought to have acknowledged lone ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We reported at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants tell us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Advancing Rapidly.

The Bobcaygeon Independent says that "since Peterborough has ben placed on a main line of railway between the east and the west, there is no holding the place."

The Turf.

A matche race has been arranged between Mr. Thompson's pony and Mr. E. Brown's "Fanny B," for $100 a side. The race will take place in the driving park on October 8th, and $25 has been posted with Mr. J. E. McIntyre, the stakeholder, as a forfeit.

The "Saved Army Trumpet."

The Saved Army Trumpet, the organ of the Saved Army, has been removed from Picton to Peterborough. Mr. Joseph McClelland will hereafter have charge of the paper, and we believe that the Army could not have placed its journal in better hands.

A Mistake.

Mr. Alex. Elliott, one of the judges for the Chemong Lake regatta, wishes us to call attention to the fact that a mistake has been made in the wording of the large programme. The programme states that "two silver cups" will be awarded to the winners of the double canoe race It should be "two silver medals."

Railway Men's Insurance.

The employees of the Grand Trunk Railway have, says the Port Hope Times, completed the organization of the "Grand Trunk Railway Insurance and Provident Society." The directors of the company have consented to contribute the sum of $10,000 per annum towards the funds of the society. Hitherto compensation has only been given in cases of injury, illness or death, resulting from accident, but it is proposed to hereafter make allowance in cases of illness resulting otherwise than from accident, but not the result of dissolute practices or immoral conduct. The insurance fund of the society is intended to provide for payments at death, whether resulting from accident or natural causes, and the rates have been fixed on the lowest basis on which it is calculated the society can be self-supporting.

A Famous Lady.

Among the equestriennes now travelling with Forepaugh's great Circus is the famous Lizzie Deacon, the young lady whose beauty, grace, daring and eventful history attracted the attention of Elizabeth, Queen of Austria. The valuable, horses, diamonds and dresses presented by the queen to the fair equestrienne and the open display of friendship manifested attracted universal attention and caused immense crowds to assemble wherever she appeared in public. She is attracting just as much attention in this country, judging by the articles which have been published about her. When Forepaugh arrives here on Monday, Sept. 15th, the public will have an opportunity of passing their own judgment upon the merits which have won her the friendship of so many distinguished people.

OUR SCHOOL BOOKS have always been as cheap as any in town. They are now and ever will be. Our trade is too large to allow of lower prices outside. Errors made by children in purchasing wrong books we gladly rectify. A. L. DAVIS & Co.

The Slaughter of Fowl.

The slaughter of fowl does not appear to have ceased. On Friday nigat Mr. Thos. Coe lost a number of chickens. Their appearance indicated that they had been killed by a weasel.

P.B.C.

The regular monthly meeting of the Club will be held at the Boat House on Monday evening next. The report of the Committee as to caretaker's building will be received. All canoe owners who propose take part part in the illuminated parade on Tuesday, are requested to report so as to ensure a large turnout.

A Severe Wound.

Mr. Joseph Milligan, while working at Rogers' dam on Friday, met with an accident that will compel him to refrain from working for a few days. He was accidentally struck with an adze, making a long cut in the forearm. Dr. Clarke was summoned and dressed the wound, putting in several stitches.

The Railway Pic-Nic.

The annual pic-nic of the employees of the Midland division of the Grand Trunk Railway is being held to-day. The excursion train from Midland, with employees and their friends from that village and other places along the line, arrived here at eleven o'clock. It consisted of fourteen coaches, drawn by two locomotives. The Peterborough party, a good number, was taken on and the train proceeded to the Summit, where the pic-nic is held.

Garden Party.

Mr. Geo. A. Cox having kindly placed his grounds at the disposal of the St. Paul's Ladies Aid Society for the occasion, they will hold a garden party there on the evening of Friday, Sept. 5th. The Fire Brigade Band will be present. There will be a refreshment table. The grounds will be illuminated with the electric light. Admission 15 cents, children 10 cents. Proceeds in aid of the general fund of the Society.

A Pointer for Mr. Belleghem.

The Lindsay Post says:—

"Some new means will have to be devised if we are ever to be able to overtake and corrall the enterprising burglar. Mr. Belleghem, an estimable furniture dealer of Peterboro, chased one of these nocturnal visitors for some distance the other night, and though he threatened guns and pistols and dirk knives and other things the burglar stopped not, This was all wrong. If Mr. Belleghem had just quoted a few of his low prices for his excellent furniture, the marauder would have at once retraced his steps to take advantage of the unparalleled offer. But the fact is we're always giving these Peterboro' people points, such is our superior intelligence."

Hot, Cold, Shower, Russian or Salt Water.

All persons bathe more or less the year round, particularly in the summer season. That the laws of nature call on us to keep the body clean is manifest, for "cleanliness is indeed next to Godliness." Mr. Fred. Potvin, at the fashionable bon-ton hairdressing and shaving parlour of the Grand Central, has now got his new bath rooms in first class running order. Already the public are beginning to patronize them in goodly numbers, and when they become fully established, the proprietor will no doubt be amply repaid for his outlay. To say that they are splendid is drawing it mild—they are "immense." If you for one moment doubt the assertion visit the tonsorial establishment, where you will find three artists ready to supply you with a clean shave, tidy hair cut, sea foam, a shampoon, or any of the above variety of baths.

It Is Probable.

—That a roller skating rink will be built in Peterborough early this fall.

—That the farmers will not like so much wet weather.

—That the small boys will begin planning how to get into the circus.

—That the Grand Trunk engines will be supplied with water from the waterworks.

—That W. J. Griffin will shortly open out a new stock of boots and shoes near his old stand on Hunter street.

That the football players will have to make a tremendous effort if they get on the ground to practice at 6 o'clock next Monday morning.

—That we will have southerly wind and cloudy to fair warm weather with focal rains, followed by fresh west and north-west winds, and clearer winds.

—That Peck's Bad Boy was not much worse than our own bad boy. Better go and see for yourself next Tuesday evening in the Opera House.

Personal.

The following, from the Markham Economist, will be interesting to Mr. Pattyson's friends in this county:—

"The Rev. W. A. V. E. Pattyson delivered a very eloquent discourse on "The Great Wonder" at the Methodist church in this village. The church was well filled notwithstanding the excessive heat. His discourse, a continuation of the same subject, on Sunday morning next at the same place, will doubtless draw a crowded house."

The Bethany correspondent of the Port Hope Times says:—

"Mr. Thomas Lee, one of the first settlers of this village, has sold his residence to Dr. T. G. Brereton, and removed with his family to Peterborough. Apart from the loss socially of his estimable daughters, we will miss Mr. Leefvery much. Although a man of decided opinions and strong political views, he was a good citizen—ever ready to assist in anything that had for its object the advancement of the village and the public good. Before their departure Mr. Lee was presented with an address and a costly gold chain and seal, and the Misses Lee with a beautiful silver tea service, as a memento of their friends in Bethany and Manvers. May success be theirs—say we."

H. P. Hapgood, Business Manager, Peck's Bad Boy Company, is stopping at the Oriental. His company appears at the Opera House on Tuesday, September 2nd.

Ald. F. C. Denison, of Toronto, has been offered and accepted the command of the 600 Canadian voyageurs to be employed in the relief of General Gordon. Mr. Denison is Major of the Governor-General's Body Guards, and was aide-de-camp to General Wolseley during the Red River expedition of 1870.

General Manager Van Horne, of the Canada Pacific Railway, passed through town on the Ontario & Quebec in his official car on Thursday. He came from the west and went to Montreal.

Mr. Wm. A. Dresser, Mr. A. McNeil's popular assistant, has gone to Clayton, N. Y., where he has obtained a lucrative position in a clothing house.

POLICE COURT.

SATURDAY, Aug. 30.—Mr. J. Stevenson, J.P., occupied the bench this morning.

A WAGES CASE.

Harriet Johns charged John Holmes, hotel keeper, Burleigh, with non-payment of $24 wages due her.

Mr. W. H. Moore appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. R. E. Wood for the defendant.

After hearing the evidence, judgment was given awarding Mrs. Johns $17.

The Collegiate Institute and Public Schools will open again on Monday, after the summers vacation.

IS

It not really wonderful how much discussion there has been and still is as to what constitutes the most important article of a gentleman's dress. But only think for a moment and you will be compelled to acknowledge that the neck tie is the vulnerable point of material covering. Shabby gentility has nothing so characteristic as its tie. There is always some unnatural hang to it, and an unwholesome gloss suggestive of repeated brushings and long use. The last effort of decayed fortune is expended in nicely adjusting its delapidated tie. Ruffianism in all its various forms is always shabby about its neck wear, and his position is greatly decided by this fact. A man, therefore, should always keep up the standard of his dress, and his tie above all things, should be of the best taste and art. It is reported of a celebrated duke saying, the best dressed officers of the army were the best. It should also be remembered that a great many celebrated men were very particular about their neck wear. There was Byron, an accomplished man, he would propably be called a "swell" now. There was Lord Palmerston in his younger days, Benjamin Disraeli and many such men, who have rocked this planet like a cradle, yes! and left it swinging to this day. Still there is no reason why you should go to your tailor's and run up large bills which will render pockets a superfluity in your next suit, or why you should go to stores where you pay large prices when you can get all the newest styles of ties at much lower prices. A gentleman can own eyes prove this. Why, he can get a good looking scaff, and one that will wear well, for 25c., or if he wishes the very best.

SOCIAL

STANDING

BY HIS

TIE

that money can buy or artistic taste suggest, he can geteit at ANDREW MCNEIL'S, Tailor and Clothier, Gentleman's Furnishings, etc., George street. See our window for cheap ties, come inside for finer ones. It will be a pleasure to show them to you, and you will be pleased to see them.

SO MODEST A VIRTUE

AS

GOODNESS

Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

To Dyspeptics.

The most common signs of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are an oppression at the stomach, nausea, flatulency, water-brash, heart-burn, vomiting, loss of appetite, and constipation. Dyspeptic patients suffer untold miseries, bodily and mental. They should stimulate the digestion, and secure regular daily action of the bowels, by the use of moderate doses of

Ayer's Pills.

After the bowels are regulated, one of these Pills, taken each day after dinner, is usually all that is required to complete the cure.

AYER'S PILLS are sugar-coated and purely vegetable—a pleasant, entirely safe, and reliable medicine for the cure of all disorders of the stomach and bowels. They are the best of all purgatives for family use.

The Collegiate Institute.
The Collegiate Institute opened this morning. A number of pupils from other places have arrived, and Dr. Tassie, the Principal, has received communication from others who will arrive during the next few days. The small building is used as the Collegiate Institute and the larger building as the Central Public School. The staff is now complete and no doubt everything will go on harmoniously.

Remember the P.B.C. Concert on Wednesday Evening—Miss Clench and Mr. Warrington—Secure your seats at Smart & Son.

Excursion to Montreal.
On Thursday, Sept. 4th, the Canadian Pacific Railway will issue return tickets to Montreal, good to return up to Sept. 13th, from Peterborough and all points on the Ontario and Quebec Railway, for $4. The tickets will be good for any of the regular trains on that date, and they will allow the holders to stop off at Ottawa on the return trip.

The Weather.
The readings of the Thermometer and Barometer in Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store today were as follows:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
Nine o'clock	66°	29.15
One o'clock	67°	29.15
Three o'clock.	68°	29.12

The Cells.
It is now more than a week since the cells have contained an inhabitant, not even a solitary tramp has rested his weary limbs on the "down pillows" of our lockup. Some one has ventured to remark that the culprits are too well acquainted with the state of the lockup and refrain from being placed therein for a night's rest.

P. B. C.
There will be a meeting of the Peterborough Boating Club this evening at 8 o'clock. Business of importance will be brought forward for consideration.

A Midnight Chase.
This morning at one o'clock as two of Mr. D. Belleghem's workmen were standing on the corner of Hunter and Chambers streets, waiting for some material so as to go on with a job a Faucher's Hotel, they spied one of the night watchmen, and, fearful of being run in, they made tracks up Chambers street. The night watchman thinking them to be burglars or incendiaries, pursued them. The knights of the plane, however, were too fast for the night watchman, which alone saved them from a night in the cells, Moral: Don't stand on the street corners, its dangerous.

DON'T FORGET IT.—Cingalese is widely known as the best hair renewer ever introduced to the public. It has never been known to fail in restoring and imparting a beautiful glossy appearance to the hair. Sold by J. D. Tully.

AH! We get up feeling badly, didn't rest good, don't want breakfast, no appetite, no energy, bad taste and breath, guess we are bilious, Two doses of Zopess will tone up our liver and our ambition, and set us right. Ask J D Tully.

The Last of the Season.
The last canoe parade of the season will be held to-morrow evening. The committee have secured the services of the Fire Brigade Band, which will take up their stand on Burnham's Point and enliven the proceedings. We are informed that it is expected this will be the most numerously attended parade that has yet been held. The committee have spoken to a large number of the canoeists, and each one has signified his intention of being present. It is probable that Miss Leonora Clench will come here the night before the Boating Club Concert, and be present at the canoe parade.

It Is Probable.
—That we will have fine weather for a while
—That our nightwatchmen will have their eyes on the kazoo fiend.
—That the Cornwall club will meet the Peterboroughs some time this fall.
—That a lacrosse match between the Peterboroughs and Checkers of Beaverton will be played here next week.
—That a half holiday will be arranged on Sept. 11th so as to let the townspeople be present at the Chemong Lake regatta.
—That we will have light to moderate winds, mostly west and south; fair slightly warmer weather, with light showers in a few localities.

A Novel Match.
A novel baseball match will be played on the Ashburnham ground to-morrow afternoon between the Silver Stars and a team taken from the Cricket Club. This match, it is expected, will be worthy of patronage. The cricketers have been strengthened by a pitcher and catcher from Port Hope and the Silver Stars have placed their best men on the field, so as to test their qualities before going to the baseball tournament which will be held in Lindsay on the 17th of September. The following is the names of the Silver Star team:—

Harry Dunn	F. Billings
W. Metheral	T. Sanderson
J. J. Lynch	W. Dayman
W. Pidgeon	D. Cushen

W. H. Watson.

(By Telegraph to the Review.)

It is said that 40 cents on the dollar was paid, and that the Syndicate now have the undisputed control of the paper.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1884.

WHAT IT COSTS.

Our good neighbours south of the international are now enjoying all the delights of a Presidential election. It is a state of affairs to which they must be pretty well accustomed, for as the term is only for four years, while the preliminary excitement lasts for over a year, and it takes them nearly a year to settle down again, about half the time they are more or less directly under the influence of the turmoil. This must be very unpleasant in many ways, but we would at present more especially call attention to the cost. The nominating conventions that chose the respective party candidates must have caused a heavy outlay, and even they were preceded by the machinery for chosing the delegates. From the time of the nominations till the election itself the expenditure must be erroneous, even if only legitimate expenses are included such as speakers, canvassers, printing, &c. But even this direct cost is not so great as the indirect. You cannot now take up a commercial or trade journal published in the United States without finding some reference made to the interference with business by the Presidential campaign, and expressions of opinion that people will not settle down steadily to business again till after the election is over. The effect of this upon the industries and commerce of the nation are incalculable.

If all this loss and expenditure is added to the salary and other expenses of the Presidential office, it will be found that the chief ruler of the United States really costs the people far more than our Governor-General costs the people of Canada. And yet there are some Canadians, only a few, it is true, who would have us adopt such a system. One handful would have us annex ourselves to the States, and so share their fate in this as in other respects. Another handful would have us claim our independence, when we would have to elect our chief magistrate by some such means. Nearly all of these are modern "Reformers," more or less disguised. Conservatives are too loyal and too sensible to indulge in such folly.

We need only allude in a few words to the fact that the United States Constitution, which these wiseacres would have us imitate, is far less liberal than our own, making the President an autocrat who can choose his own cabinet and keep them in power in spite of all opposition, while our Governor-General is in local matters controlled by the advice of his ministers who are dependent for their political existence upon the confidence and support of the representatives of the people.

THE Globe, in its anxiety to make a point against subjects of Her Majesty receiving decorations from their sovereign, affected to sneer at the order of knighthood conferred upon Sir William Dawson, the Canadian scientist, and it blundered, as usual. The Montreal Gazette points out that the same distinction was conferred upon Sir [illegible], Sir W.D. Dawson (now attending the meeting of the British Association in Montreal), Sir A. A. Dorion and Sir Wm. Richards. The order of knighthood is an honorable one, and the conferring of it upon Sir Wm. Dawson was a fitting recognition of his valuable services in the cause of science.

THE New York Sun calls Gen. Butler a "growing candidate." We did not know that the veteran Benjamin was so youthful that he had not yet obtained his full stature.

OMEMEE.

KICKED.—On Saturday, while Mr. Jas. Johnson, of Emily, was working around his horses in the stable, one of them managed to give him a severe kick on the breast,

FIRE IN EMILY.—We regret to learn that on Tuesday the barn and outbuildings of Mr. W. Miller, the deputy reeve of Emily, took fire and were totally consumed. The fire had been for some days in a swamp near by and the wind carried it to the building. We have not as yet been able to ascertain the loss but it will be considerable. Mr. S. Cornell carried the insurance on it.—Herald.

THE FARM AND GARDEN.

If seeds are to be kept over a year they should be kept in a cool location and exposed to the light and air. Keeping them in the darkness weakens vitality, perhaps from a tendency to grow which darkness incites, but unaccompanied by moisture enough to put forth leaf and root.

A writer in a well-known agricultural paper recommends the feeding of peas to hogs; says they are superior to corn, because they supply all the wants of the system, and make a firmer, more healthful flesh. He says that a crop of from forty to sixty bushels per acre may be raised.

Don't neglect the turkeys because they are said to be good foragers, but feed them regularly and keep them growing. Don't be satisfied with fair sized birds, but secure the largest and best by judicious care and feeding. It will not pay to feed corn during the summer months unless one desires the greatest amount of fat. Oats and wheat form the best articles of food.

THE pasture system does not do away with the necessity for mowing. The stock eat only the wet grasses, leaving the course stuff and weeds to grow without check. Unless mowed at midsummer to prevent weeds seeding the pasture will soon become very foul especially with Canadian thistles, the seeds of which will be blown all over the neighborhood.

Value of Buttermilk.

More than half the pigs in the country get their daily supply of buttermilk, and yet poor men must pine without it, no matter how great his sense of privation. A splendid prize was recently offered in England for the best drink with which to replace beer. After the extensive investigations which have been prompted by this offer have exhausted themselves the simple answer will be buttermilk. Philantrophists have established coffee counters and so tried to make a counter attraction. Coffe may be all very well as a makeshift for people with robust nerves, but for a nectar more delicate or an elixir more healthrestoring than good cool buttermilk one must go to the Elysian fields, for it is not to be found upon this earthly orb. Why, then, can it not be got? The coffee houses commenced keeping it about a week ago, but the demand has far outrun the supply. One goes in hope only to come away in indignation. Milkmen, of course, do not supply it. They would not for the world have it supposed that they ever saw or heard a churn. It is about time that some arrangement was made by the creameries to bring their buttermilk to town. It is surely worth as much to feed men as to feed pigs.

Good Prices for Cattle.

The course of the cattle market has been a surprise to many well-informed feeders. It was naturally expected that a "break" in prices would come about the last of may or first of June; but prices have been well sustained. Those who had good steers and held them until July have usually done well, unless, indeed, the cattle had already been long fed. A case has come to our knowledge of a central Illinois farmer who sold one lot of steers about the last of May after four months full feeding of corn retaining another lot to be grazed during the summer and fed in the fall. These had been grain fed about two months before being turned on grass. An offer within twenty cents per hundred of the price obtained for the others induced him to sell. The second lot certainly gave the larger profit. Could assurance be given that prices would be sustained as they have been this year, a good profit could be made by spring feeding.—Breeders Gazette.

A Big Yield.

A local paper of Dakota is responsible for the following:—A Dakota farmer in 1881 planted a single grain of spring wheat and from it grew twenty-two stalks, each bearing a full head of wheat, yielding in all 860 grains of wheat; 700 of these were planted the next year, producing one fifth of a bushel of splendid wheat. This was planted last spring, yielding seventeen bushels, making 1,020 pounds of wheat from one grain in three years.

Canned Goods.

In addition to the canning of salmon and lobsters, there is a good deal done in New Brunswick in the way of preserving fruit and vegetables. They can corn, tomatoes, berries, and meats at the Fredericton and Sheffield factories. Probably 6,000 cases of corn, 1,000 of tomatoes, and 1,000 of blueberries will be turned out this season. The corn and tomatoes are used in in the local and western markets, the berries go to Boston and New York, the meats to England; "pork and beans" are also canned. Fifty hands are employed at Fredericton and 25 at Sheffield. Mr. Nutt, of Annapolis, N.S., also does a large business in canning beans and corn.

A Boy Carried off by A Catfish

On Friday of last week a boy named Forbes living at Rock Falls, was fishing from the dam and hooked a catfish. He was unable to pull it in, and after struggling awhile the fish turned and started down stream. The boy went over the dam head first, holding on to the pole, and and started for the Mississippi River, the catfish in the lead. As they went past the paper mill some of the workmen saw the boy in the water, and went to his rescue in a boat. He was still holding the pole, and hooked to the line was a catfish, which they captured. The boy weighed eighty-five pounds, and catfish thirty-five pounds nine ounces. Thus it is demonstrated that a catfish can get away with more than twice his weight of boy.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

My motive is not one of money only, but for science and the good of suffering humanity.

To convince the public and prove the sceptical that the Spirometer is the best instrument ever invented for the treatment of diseases of the air passages, and that it is all I have ever claimed for it, anyone suffering from the above named diseases who calls at the Caisse House Saturday or Sunday, Sept. 6th or 7th, and consults the surgeons of the International Throat and Lung Institute, will be given a Spirometer free, the medicines alone to be paid for. I do this to show the confidence I have in the treatment, and to convince the medical profession and others who are still sceptical (notwithstanding the thousands of people who have been cured by it) that the Spirometer I have invented and the medicines and treatment prescribed by the surgeons of the International Throat and Lung Institute are curing and will cure a larger percentage of these diseases than any other treatment in the world.

If it Were Possible

To get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring debility, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medical value than any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking the Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as the people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so often humbugged by the week decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make the people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by these unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

It is based on scientific principles and easily demonstrated to the comprehension of every intelligent person, that a truss without steel springs or hard substance, having healed Inguinal and Umbilical as well as Varicocele, at the advanced ages respectively of from 65 and 95 years, must and will stand the test against all Spring Trusses to children as well as adults. Prof. Hotchkin having had 30 year's experience has become master of his profession, and defies the Hernia he cannot hold in its place.

Prof. Hotchkin has invented an apparatus to hold the piles in their proper place, which has been as successful as his other inventions. Go and see for yourselves.

DECORATION.

The Continuation of Mr. Haultain's Lecture Delivered on August 25th.

I cannot myself quite agree with them in this view. This so-called "play instinct" might just as well be called the "tease instinct," the "bore instinct," the "flirt instinct," the "make-oneself-a-nuisance instinct." How then does it give rise to art?

No; decoration owes its growth to a desire on the part of the senses to be gratified. The senses are made to distinguish beauty from ugliness; they are not content with a mere absence of hideousness; they long to be pleased. In other words, to put it correctly: certain combinations of form and colour and sound produce pleasurable sensuous impressions, and these pleasurable sensuous impressions the healthy brain incessantly seeks for and sets the mind to work to produce such stimuli as shall give rise to them.

I have used the adjective æsthetic. I must say a few words on it. In the ordinary acceptation of the term, it is generally applied to a class of imbecile young ladies and gentlemen who are supposed to satisfy their hunger by gazing at sun flowers; who quench their thirst by drinking in the odour of lilies; who are therefore dyspeptic; who "live up to" old china; who pose themselves in the most excruciatingly agonizing attitudes; and to whom all things are either "precious" or "utter."

Now, ladies and gentlemen, that is an entirely erroneous signification to attach to the term. Æsthetic comes from the Greek words aisthetikos, aisthesis, aisthanomai, to perceive, to feel, to be sensible of. An æsthetic person, therefore, is one who keenly observes nature, perceives her beauties, and appreciates them.

I hope this will, once and for all, eradicate the false meaning that has been given to this really good word.

Let us hurry on to our next point.

I have laid a good deal of stress, you will notice, on the fact that almost all decoration is founded on laws. Let me explain at this point why I say almost. It is because art is infinite, and because man has now again approached so near to absolute perfection, that it has been impossible to explain how he did it—he transcended all laws, left them far behind him. A sentence from Ruskin will explain what I mean: "The differences in the accuracy of the lines of the Torso of the Vatican * * from those in one of Michael Angelo's finest works * * rests on points of such traceless and refined delicacy, that though we feel them in the result, we cannot follow them in the details * * *. But suppose that the best sculptor in the world, possessing the most entire appreciation of the excellence of the Torso, were to sit down, pen in hand, to try and tell us wherein the peculiar truth of each line consisted. Could any words that he could use make us feel the hairbreadth of depth and distance on which all depends?" This is the province of art which is under no rule, under the sway of no monarch. Yet wait, here is a question: Is not this the realm of the true genius, of him who has "swallowed all formulas," to use the quaint phrase of the Marquis de Mirabeau, so frequently quoted by Thomas Carlyle? This is an absorbingly interesting topic, but we cannot linger on it to-night.

To come back. Decoration is founded on laws. Their name is legion; and I fear we cannot, this evening, make the shortest excursion into even the confines of this extensive kingdom. We would have, to begin with, to go thoroughly into the anatomy of the eye; into the anatomy of the ear; we should have to discuss the whole science of acoustics; the whole science of the combinations of colours; we should have to consider first the laws of horizontal flat surfaces; then of convex surfaces; then of concave surfaces; and when we had accurately learned all these, we should have to apply them to, and modify them according to, all the various branches of decorative art—iron working, brass working, clay working, glass working, stone working, wood working, needle working.—I see you are getting frightened already! Well, let us dismiss at once all idea of discussing these with just this one thought:

All the laws of decoration are derived from nature. Man cannot create, he can only copy; he does not form, he only transforms. And, since the only things of which he has any absolute knowledge are the things of nature, all he can do is to copy her, to follow as closely as he can in her footsteps.

We can trace this even in the minutiæ of art: thus, why is it, do you think, that we instinctively use what are called "conventional forms." for borders, the borders of our mats, carpets, tidies, handkerchiefs, &c., conventional forms such as geometrical figures, Greek patterns, different shapes, angles, lines, curves, etc.? Because this is what we see in nature. Stand on the top of a hill and look around you. Your horizon—the border of the picture presented to your eyes, is made up of mere shapes and outlines: tiny square fields; curving hill tops, winding rivers, indented coasts, angular hedge rows.

Again, the general way of fitting up a drawing room now-a-days, is to place a piece of carpet or matting in the centre of the floor, stained boards or parquetrie all round the sides, then a dado, followed by Morris wall paper or sateen cloth, then a border, and a tinted, painted, or white washed ceiling.

Now this is merely an imitation of Nature. Your carpet is the grass and flowers at your feet; your parquetrie the "conventional forms" I have mentioned; your dado shrubs or trunks of trees; your wall paper their foliage; the border the delicate twigs and blossoms already fading into mere outlines; your ceiling, of course, the sky.

This view is, I grant, open to criticism; but that it is plausible I think you will allow. I must tell you also that the germ of this last theory is not my own.

Nevertheless, without going so deeply into the intricacies of mere theory, we can utilize some of the simpler rules in a practical way.

Suppose, for example, that we wanted to design scientifically a summer carriage robe, some light thing for a pony-chaise—a "lap-robe" is to not collect just to keep the dust about it? First of all we want something light and dust-colored. Let us take Tussore silk. Now, we must put something pretty upon it. It is summer time and we use it out of doors; suppose we work a group of flowers. The Tussore silk is of a pale yellow color, and the complementary colour to this—a point to be remembered—is a sort of indigo fading into violet. Let us use crysanthemums: they are pretty; they are fashionable; they are summer-like; they can be easily grouped. To give a finish to the whole, and also, remember, to obtain a color complementary to the green stems and leaves, let us add a bright red lady-bird or butterfly. The border may be of conventional forms—say blades of grass.

There, do not think we have been successful with our scientific carriage robe?

There are, however, two grand and fundamental laws of art which underlie all others, and which, even at the risk of being wearisome, I feel compelled to touch on.

The first is that of congruity. Congruity is like that Venus-girdle without which all ornamentation would be unattractive and barren, were it never so beautiful. No however exquisite and chaste a design can ever make up for want of congruity. Without this subtle, intangible quality all enrichment is meretricious, vicious. You ask me what I mean by congruity? Can anyone tell me what beauty is? what truth is? Neither can I tell you what congruity is. But this I will say: that to be capable of judging of what is congruous, harmonious, in good taste, in the highest sense of the term, in any one single branch of the fine arts, one must not only have been for years trained in all the details of that art, and everything which, however remotely, is connected with it, but must also have inherited keenly sensitive and highly educated organs of sense.

I think we are getting rather out of our depth here. Let us pass on to my second fundamental law.

Have you ever considered why it is the drawing-room, that is the room always specially chosen for decorating: why it should be the room upon which the whole artistic talent of the family is expended; in which nearly all the pretty things of the home are collected?

I once asked this question of a cynical misanthrope. His answer was: "To get the gew-gaws out of the way!" Don't mind him; he was a grumpy old Philistine. Yet there was a grain of truth in his reply. "Where you rest, there decorate," says Ruskin, and it is the room to which we withdraw from all the labours and anxieties of the day that we quite properly profusely decorate.

So, too, do we quite properly make as pretty as we can our dinner tables, our boudoirs, our gardens. In fact, we are accustomed to take at all events short rests in so many different places that I do not think we need adhere too strictly to this rule. For instance, in our offices, workshops, kitchens, where now and again there occurs a few minutes' leisure, it is a great relief to have something pretty to help to take the mind off one's work, and to put one into a good temper. Remember this, masters and mistresses. How many successfully served-up joints, think you, have owed their excellence to the calming effects of a pretty engraving or a gay print on irritated and weary nerves?

So, too, in our bed rooms: to those afflicted with that newly discovered malady, the chief symptom of which is an unconquerable aversion to getting up in the morning, a neat dressing table before which to meditate and dawdle, a gay splasher before which to yawn oneself awake, an elegant mirror in front of which to rub one's eyes, are by no means to be disparaged.

You will expect me, perhaps, ladies and gentlemen, to say something on that most intricate and recondite part of all decoration—women's dress. I fear I must disappoint you. Such knowledge is too wonderful for me. There are men, I know, members of what novelists are so fond of calling the "sterner sex," but which I prefer to call the "miss guided sex"! "miss" with two s's, if you please—there are some miss-guided men, I say, who have the courage to aspire to such wisdom; but for me I am content to say it is too high for me, I cannot attain unto it.

There is one garment, however, which ladies wear which is so—so awful in its ugliness that I cannot forbear from launching out against it. It is this thing, the mackintosh. I wonder if the man who first propounded the theory that the origin of all dress was adornment had ever been brought face to face with a lady in a mackintosh. But perhaps—and I address my gentlemen hearers—perhaps you have never taken particular notice of the garment to which I refer; or perhaps, and with more likelihood, it has been brought to your notice by a fair, sweet wearer whose graceful figure you so knew by heart, that this lustreless external covering was by you completely ignored, and the eye of memory was so satisfied that the eye of sense was willingly temporarily blind. If so, happy are you. For a moment, however, rid yourself of these sweet impressions, consider the article—the mackintosh, the circular, the waterproof, or whatever else you like to call it—consider it as it is in itself: the dull, black thing; huge at its base, tapering gracelessly to the top; reflecting no bright tints, betokening no personal traits; homogeneous, amorphous, hideous. Does it not sin against all right principles of art? In Egyptian and oriental architecture we might, perhaps, find something like it: the Propyla, the Sphinxes and the Pyramids of Egypt; the Pagodas of Burmah, the Kyoungs of China, and the Goporas of India seem to countenance a divergence from the slender, graceful Greek style. But even these buildings are highly decorated. And so I say to you, ladies, Do decorate this thing.

Have I maligned too much so necessary an article of dress? It has some few merits I do not deny. Fair cheeks glowing from the rainy gusts never, perhaps, look brighter than with this so sombre a back ground. Daintiest little boots might escape appreciation but for this uncomely robe. But still, I say again: Please try and decorate it a little.

I come now to the last and most difficult part of our subject: What should be the highest aim of decorative art? This I consider no light or trivial question to ask, and by no means an easy one to answer. It is, on the contrary, as I hope directly to show, a most serious one. Nay, carried to its fullest extent, I cannot but believe that it is one and the same as that tremendous question: What should be the highest aim of life?

Let us, for a few moments, look at this matter quite seriously.

From one point of view, the highest aim of decoration is to rightly, truly beautify, to consistently adorn every the most trivial object. Nothing is of too little importance to ornament; no thing can be so insignificant as that it may be carelessly enriched.

From another point of view, we may put the question so as to mean: What is the highest thing decoration can do?

There may be some, perhaps, who think that to erect and to beautify to the utmost pitch of perfection that human ingenuity and human skill can accomplish, some grand and noble cathedral, the aisles of which from century to century shall reverberate with the sounds of worship and of praise—there are some perhaps who think that decoration can go no further. But, tell me: Need the worship be any the less fervent, need the praise be any the less joyous, if they be up-raised, not on tesselated marble floor, not beneath frescoed dome, not within resounding nave, but under the open shrine of Heaven, in the dwelling place of the Most High Himself, that boundless abode furnished with the myriad matchless beauties of his own creating?

There are others, perhaps, who think that, just as painting can do nothing greater than to preserve for us the portrait of some noble human being, so decoration cannot conceive a higher aim than to adorn, and to enhance the charms of, some lovely woman.

But here again crops up that fatal question. Will decoration add to her worth? Will it make her more loving? Will it make her more lovable? For do not these two words "loving" and "lovable" contain the whole of what is woman's sphere in this world? If you ask me what women's duties are, I shall say, to love; and if you ask me what women's rights are, I shall say, to be loved.

Yet again, there may be those who think that the science of decoration could attempt nothing purer than to beautify this beautiful woman's home.

But, know you not those lovely lines:—

"Wherever a true wife comes, this home is always around her. The stars only may be over her head; the glow-worm in the night-cold grass may be the only fire at her foot: but home is yet wherever she is; and for a noble woman it stretches far around her; better than 'ceiled with cedar or painted with varmilion,' shedding its quiet light far, for those who else were homeless."

Yes; each of these holds out a tempting goal. But—they are limited to the senses, to the material world, to what we can see, and touch, and hear. Can decoration go thus far only? This is material decoration. Can we not have immaterial? This is physical; is there no such thing as moral decoration?

Yes; there are all these.

What is literature but an intellectual product capable of decoration? What is the novel, what is epic poetry, what is drama, but history, real or imaginary, decorated? What is lyric poetry, elegiac poetry, but the emotions embellished? And, to go still higher, what is character, conduct, our every-day life, our behavior, our manners, but a moral product, capable of decoration? As there is an æsthetic hunger, so also is there an intellectual hunger: a craving to be fed on beautiful truths, on glorious thoughts, on brilliant discoveries. And is there not a moral hunger also, a "hungering and thirsting after righteousness"?

If so, if you grant this, then I cannot but believe that the appeasing of this moral hunger is the supreme consummation of all decorative art; the highest cognizable point towards which all decoration should soar.

Let us then try to satisfy this healthy moral craving; let our smallest action be adorned with grace; let our manners be ornamented with politeness; let our behaviour be enriched with consideration; let our conduct be enobled with benevolence; let our every thought, word and deed be decorated with kindness.

Market and Sell Early!

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one of the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone. * * * *

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer."

The above we clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its common sense points. Alexander has already marketed and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexanders. Call and be convinced.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1884.

THEIR ANNUAL OUTING.

EMPLOYEES OF THE MIDLAND DIVISION PICNIC AT THE SUMMIT.

A Reunion of the Train-Hands—The Summit Populated by 1,700 People—A Gala Day—The Sporting Events Well Contested—Unexceptionable Weather.

At six o'clock on Saturday morning, a train started from Midland with the seats occupied by a fair representation from that village, bound for the Summit, where the employees of the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk Railway had decided on holding their annual picnic. The train stopped at all the important intermediate stations and took on passengers; Orillia, Lindsay and Omemee contributing largely. When leaving Omemee the train had swelled to fourteen coaches, which were drawn by two engines. At ten minutes after eleven the engines came puffing up to the Grand Trunk station. It took about two hundred Peterborough people just five minutes to get into the cars and take their seats, and then the train sped on. Before long the people from the north began to show signs of hunger. Valise after valise was opened, and almost everything, from a sandwich to a piece of apple pie, was fished up from the bottom. One solitary brown Indian sat in the end seat of a car and meditatively sucked an orange. Groups of four spread a newspaper over their knees and introduced euchre. Just then the whistles blew and we were at Frazerville. After a brief stop another start was made. Careless young fellows hummed snatches of popular songs; girls wondered if it was going to rain; but the older and more sedate railway men talked over railway matters of weighty importance. Meanwhile the train was speeding through a lovely country. Fields of golden grain waved in the breeze and hundreds of stock dotted the stubble. The harvester paused from toil, leaned on his rake and counted the coaches. In the green meadows fat cows lay ruminating, and lazily wondered at the unusual length of the train. Pretty little white-washed log farm houses peeped through the apple orchards and momentary glimpses of the bushes were caught as the train dashed through a short piece of swamp. The whistles again sounded and we drew up at the Millbrook station. Although the sky threatened rain when we left Peterborough the sun was now beaming benignly on everything and everybody. The engines were watered and oiled; more watermelons and picnickers were taken on, and after a short run the Summit was reached at 12 o'clock. The 46th Battalion Band from Port Hope was already on the ground making the woods reverberate with melody. The Port Hope contingent (about 600) had started at a quarter to 9, and at 9.30 were making themselves merry at the grove. Quite a number of farmers from the adjacent country arrived in carriages and buggies shortly after 12 o'clock; the regular down train brought a few more picnickers, and altogether it was estimated that no fewer than 1,700 people were on the grounds.

THE GROVE

is situated close to the railway track, in the Township of Cavan, in the County of Durham, and is chiefly composed of overspreading oaks and clumps of pines (their "soft and soul-like sounds," however, were not to be heard on account of the noise and clatter), and walks [illegible] promiscuously. It is indeed well adapted for a picnic. Although the ground is not entirely free from underbrush, yet there is a naturalness about the place that makes it peculiarly pleasant.

THE APPOINTMENTS

were complete. Hot and cold water free of charge was to be had in abundance; a large dancing platform had been built under the broad branches of a sturdy oak; a band stand had been erected, and a large canvas had been spread, under which Mr. J. Roland and six efficient clerks dispensed refreshments of almost every description. Several swings hung from lofty pines; tables and seats were scattered with studied negligence, and everything betokened that an energetic committee was in charge.

THE DINNER

was now partaken of. The snowy cloth was spread on the ground, and covered with edibles that would open the eyes of the proprietors of some of our pretentious hotels. "Syndicate" parties occupied the tables, and here and there the groups of three and four were to be seen quietly munching under the shade of a little tree. Thin old ladies with spectacles sipped their cold coffee and gossipped confidentially; fat, retund women sought the shelter of some low bush, and fanned themselves with their hats. Dinner was speedily despatched, and a short time elapsed before the sports. The train men now came together and warmly shook each other by the hand, inquiring at the same time (if married men) as to the health of his wife and children. Questions like "Hello, Jim, I haven't seen you since last year! What engine have you got now?" "Why, Fred, old boy, lay it there; where have you been? What run are you on, now?" were frequently heard. Peaceful, middle aged men—evidently after a good dinner—sat on long fallen trees and calmly puffed the fragrant leaf; hammocks hung here and there containing sleeping babies; groups of girls wearing large straw hats trimmed with ferns, strolled carelessly around, and during the time between the selections of music, the red coats of gay members of the 46th were seen through the trees with something "interesting" hanging on the sleeve. A proud old son of Scotia strutted up and down and played the bagpipes in defiance of the 46th. The ubiquitous popular song man and the Salvation Army news girl offered their sheets at reduced prices. While far off in some remote sylvan bower lovers cooed in fancied security.

THE SPORTS,

in which only railway people were allowed to enter, were interesting, particularly the cat race, the married women's race and the committee men's race. After the latter a good deal of good natured banter was indulged in. At the same time merry dancers were whirling in the "muzy" on the platform, to the music of the 46th Battalion Quadrille Band, and toy races were being held for children. Soon after the toy races, the tinkling of the miniature dulcimer and the noise of the tin horn mingled with the sound of the bagpipes. The following is a list of the events on the programme, the names of the winners and the prizes given:—

COMMITTEE MEN'S RACE.—1st J. McMullin, 2nd J. Young,—5 entries. Prizes, 1st $2, 2nd $1.00.

After the sports were over the lunch baskets were again resorted to. Tables were spread and tea was taken. The booth was crowded, and the dancing platform was well filled. Mr. Wm. Chislett acted efficiently as master of ceremonies. At 6 o'clock the engine of the Midland train gave a prolonged whistle, and before the echoes died away the coaches were nearly filled. The 46th band struck up a parting air and the train slowly moved out. Shortly afterwards the Port Hope train drew up, and took away the rest of the picnicers. A quick run was made to Peterborough, which was reached just as old Sol was sinking in the west.

NOTES.

The blue badges of the C.E.T.S. were conspicuous, and it was noticable that not one man on the ground was under the influence of liquor.

Some hungry young men from Peterborough very ungallantly stole a basket belonging to a fair one from Port Hope, ate the contents and then returned it. When the girl came she looked into the basket, lo, it was empty. She exclaimed, "That just the same trick as was played on me last year!"

Although there was not half the number present at the picnic as was at the last year's picnic, yet perhaps, it was more representative of railway men.

Messrs. Capt. Janes. A. W. Spooner, P. R. Randall, C. P. Fisher, J. Storer, W. Reynolds and J. Rainsford acted as judges, and John A. Cheer, chairman of pic-nic committee, and John McMillen, secretray, were on the grounds [illegible] welfare of everyone.

Cheap Excursion.

The Grand Trunk Railway have issued notices that they will, on Thursday, September 4th, issue return tickets to Montreal for $4. The tickets will be issued from the following stations:—Peterborough, Millbrook, Bethany, Keene, Hastings, Stirling, Campbellford, Hoards and Madoc. The tickets will be good to return up to September 13th, and passengers holding them will have the privilege of stopping over at Kingston on the return trip. The tickets will be good to travel either by way of Belleville or Port Hope. This excursion affords an excellent opportunity for visiting this great Canadian city, either for business or pleasure, or for business and pleasure combined. The excursion, if taken by the day trains, will afford a full view of the beautiful scenery of the St. Lawrence river. No doubt many will take advantage of this cheap rate to see Montreal and to enjoy a pleasant trip.

The DAILY EVENING REVIEW is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

A Good Method.

It takes just three minutes to supply an engine with water from the water pipe at the Ontario and Quebec station. We understand that the engines at the Grand Trunk station will be supplied with water by a similar apparatus.

Football Practice.

There was a good attendance this morning at the foot ball practice on the Ashburnham grounds; some twenty members of the club having turned out at the early hour of 6 o'clock. The next practice will be held on Wednesday morning at the same hour.

Thursday's Races.

The races at the Driving Park on Thursday will, no doubt, be witnessed by a large number of people. The track was in fine condition, level and firm. Mr. A. Elliott the secretary of the Driving Park Company informs us that the entries for each race are numerous.

The Chicken Thief no More.

That chicken thief has at last come to grief. The melancholy event occurred on Sunday morning at 9 o'clock, when his weaselship attempted to promenade up and down George street. One of our young sportsmen, wishing to keep up the credit of the gun, shot the animal opposite Howden's butcher shop.

At the Driving Park.

A grand stand is being erected in the Driving Park. It is close to the entrance gate and when completed will be capable of accommodating 1,500 people. Mr. T. Rutherford, the contractor, is pushing the construction of it speedily forward, and it is expected that it will be ready for use by Thursday, the 4th, when the Driving Park will be formally opened.

Personal.

The Rev. J. W. R. Beck is expected to return home in a few days.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, our Police Magistrate, returned to town on Saturday. He looks well after his brief holiday at Stoney Lake.

Mr. W. Lech, jr., departed this morning over the Ontario and Quebec Railway to seek his fortunes in the west. Mr. Lech is a young man of a good social standing and will be missed by his numerous friends.

Opening of the Driving Park.

The first grand opening of the Peterborough Driving Park will be held on Thursday next, September 4th, at 2 o'clock P.M., when the following sporting events will come off:—

Foot Race, (quarter mile)—For the championship Barlee medal.

Bycicle Race (one mile)—1st prize, handsome silver cup

Gentleman's Trotting Race,—Mile heats, best 2 in 3, in buggies, open to town and county of Peterborough. 1st prize $10, second prize $5.

Running Race.—Half mile, best 3 in 5, open to all the horses owned in the Town and county of Peterborough. 1st prize $15, second prize $5.

Entries to be mede to the Secretary, Mr. A Elliott, up twelve o'clock (noon) on September 4th. The horse races are to be governed by the American Turf Club Rules. Entrance fee 10 per cent on purse. Admission to the grounds 25 cents.

Obituary.

We regret to record the death of Elizabeth, wife of Mr. James Hayes, of Otonabee. She enjoyed good health for her age, which was 60 years, till a few days before her death from heart disease. She was a daughter of Patrick Barry, of Middleton, County Cork, Ireland, and came to this country with her family forty-two years age, almost the same time as her husband, whom she married a few years later. Besides her husband she leaves four sons and three daughters, with a large circle of friends to mourn her loss. She was burried in the Roman Catholic Cemetery, Peterborough, on Sunday, the large attendance showing the esteem and affection of her neighbours.

"Long Felt Wants."

We purpose giving from day to day a series of long felt wants, which will no doubt prove interesting to many of our readers.

We Want

Improved railway appliances for the prevention of accidents; air navigation, and smoke abatement; a hall in which an umbrella will stand for ten minutes; shorter sermons; a separate promenade for women with perambulaters; something to make a man rise early on a cold winter morning; something to prevent him wishing he was in bed again when he has succeeded in doing so; an apparatus which would cause a baby to cry in the deaf and dumb language; a pen that can spell a means of lighting the kitchen fire by pulling or turning a handle at your bed-side; some system by which men of leisure only should be called on to serve on juries. We also want every intending purchaser of fall clothing to inspect the best assorted stock in Peterborough, which can be [illegible]

SO MODEST A VIRTUE

AS

GOODNESS

Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

A Gun?

Certainly, if you are always careful to avoid accidents, otherwise better leave Lock, Stock and Barrel at home. But hunters' luck is proverbial, it does not always supply the wants of the Inner Man. For this important consideration I offer a full supply of Requisites:—

Canned Goods, in Meats, Soups, Sauces, Pickles, Vegetables and Fruits, and a Luxury in Condensed Milk.

Without which, once enjoyed, a man will leave his tea and coffee untasted.

Go then, by all means, but don't forget the Requisities while securing the Outfit.

Enjoy your trip and be happy.

To Dyspeptics.

The most common signs of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are an oppression at the stomach, nausea, flatulency, water brash, heart-burn, [illegible] constipation. Dyspeptic patients suffer untold miseries, bodily and mental. They should stimulate the digestion, and secure regular daily action of the bowels, by the use of moderate doses of

Ayer's Pills.

After the bowels are regulated, one of these Pills, taken each day after dinner, is usually all that is required to complete the cure.

AYER'S PILLS are sugar-coated and purely vegetable—a pleasant, entirely safe, and reliable medicine for the cure of all disorders of the stomach and bowels. They are the best of all purgatives for family use.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

THE GLOBE AT PRESENT.

Yesterday it (the Globe) made allusion to "a lazy lout of a Presbyterian!" There is many a good honest old Scotch Grit in this province who will not relish the title.—Hamilton Spectator.

WHERE THEY ALWAYS ARE.

Mr. Edgar may be unscrupulous enough to make a handy wire puller for a party bearer but lacking the other talents, he will prove simply a dangerous blunderer, who will constantly be leading his party into mistakes.—Toronto World (Indep. Ref.)

DENOUNCED BY ITS FRIENDS.

If anybody thinks the Globe is the mighty Grit engine it was, let him read in hundreds of little Grit papers, all over the country, unstinted denunciation of the Globe's recent lapse into communism.—Hamilton Spectator.

MR. BLAKE AS SECOND FIDDLER.

An opposition contemporary observes that "it's no matter what kind of a fiddle Mr. Blake plays, so long as his music is good." Yes, but the music isn't good, that's the difficulty. It's like "sweet bells jangling," in different keys.—London Free Press.

NO GREAT VICTORY.

We cannot recognize the result as a conclusive test. In the face of the figures we have given talk about "great and glorious victory" is the merest rubbish. Mr. Fielding represents Halifax by the forbearance of certain Conservatives. His success is not due to any increased strength of his party. When another occasion affords we believe the Grits of Halifax will find themselves sadly mistaken if they calculate upon the present result as a "finality."—Picton Standard.

NOT TO HIGH THEN.

Will the N. P. organ tell us how it is that the parties in charge of the Government machine have allowed prices to rule so low.—London Advirtiser (Reform.)

THE NARROW MINDED GLOBE,

We opine that free trade with the West India Islands would be worth more to the Eastern Provinces than a dozen Pacific railways on which so many millions of our money has been expended. Can it be because the advantage would be perhaps more to the eastern than to the western provinces that the Globe opposes the proposition? If our Toronto contemporary will accept the views of the journals in the east it will find that not one, Liberal or Conservative, has yet spoken against the West India scheme.—St. Johns, N. B., Telegraph (Reform.)

MR. MACKENZIE AND THE GLOBE,

We said nothing against Mr. Mackenzie. We have as high an opinion of that gentleman, perhaps hagher, if the truth were known, than those who now control the Globe.—Ottawa Sun (Indep.)

A GOOD RESULT.

As an estimate of the smothness with which the federal system works, it is interesting to observe that of the 6293 acts that have been passed by the various provincial legislature since 1867 when the confederation was accoomplished, no more than thirty-one have bhen vetoed by the federal authorities.—Westminster Review.

A SCENE OF HORROR.

A Circus Car Containing Sixty People on Fire—Many Burned to Death.

GREELY, Col., Aug. 29.—The burning of a circus car a few miles north of Greely was attended with indiscribable horrors. The burned car was near to the engine in a train of 17 cars conatining Orton's Anglo-American circus which left Fort Collins about midnight for Golden, over the Greely, Salt Lake and Pacific road. The train was nearing Windsor, a small station near Greely, running about 25 miles an hour, when the engineer discovered the car to be on fire, and reversed the engine. There were sixty men in the car, arranged in three tiers of berths on either side. The forward side door was closed, and the men in the bunks were sleeping against it. The rear side door was also closed, and the men who awoke discovered the lower unoccupied berth next to it, containing the rubbish, to be on fire, filling the car with smoke and cutting off escape in that direction. The only means of egress was through a small window between the car and the engine. John Pine, of Edgeton, Wis., and Elmer Millet, Iowa, crowded through the opening and tried to pass in water from the engine tank. Owing to the suffocating gases it was difficult to arouse the sleepers. Some were kicked and bruised in a shocking manner, and pitched out of the window. The screams of those unable to get through the blockaded aperture were terrifying. In the wild glare of the flames the sight of the burning victims outside, who writhing in agony, caused the wild beasts in the adjoining car to become frantic with terror, making the scene appalling. The performers, who occupied the rear car, gazed with white faces upon the awful spectacle. In the midst of the confusion three heroic souls appeared equal to the occasion and bravely cut their way to their companions, to find them already in the agonies of death. Albert Lake, in charge of the animals, and his friend Kent walked over the cactus in their bare feet pouring buckets of oil on the blistered unfortunates and wrapped them in blankets. An old Pacific Coast soldier named McDonald, formerly of Forepaugh's show, was terribly burned, the flesh hanging in shreds. The heartrending cries of the men on the prairie, the smothered appeals of the dying within the car, the roar of the flames, and the howling of the animals, made the scene [illegible] roasting flesh, the distant cry of the coyotes added to the general horror of the scene. The voices of the dying grew fainter and soon ceased. Meanwhile the engine had gone to Greely for assistance, and it returned with Dr. Jesse Hawes. Many of the rescued in being pulled through the small window had their limbs broken, or joints dislocated. Hands and feet were burned off, and roasted trunks of bodies were found in one place, legs in another, and piles of roasted, shrivelled carcasses were pulled out of the ruins. At daylight a flat car carried the charred bodies into Greely for interment. The burned bodies were placed in a huge coffin seven feet wide and ten feet long in Greely cemetery. Rev. Mr Reed, Presbyterian Church, conducted services. A coroner empannelled a jury who were unable to learn the cause of the fire or any important facts, as the managers, with the remainder of the company, left immediately for Golden to fill the afternoon engagement. It is impossible to get a complete list of the dead as many were engaged but a day or two and were unknown.

AH! We get up feeling badly, didn't rest good, don't want breakfast, no appetite, no energy, bad taste and breath, guess we are bilious, Two doses of Zopessa will tone up our liver and our ambition, and set us right. Ask J D Tully.

ATTEMPED SUICIDE.—About four o'clock on Wednesday, Ada Utman, aged about 15, daughter of Henry Utman, of Stirling, was in the kitchen of her father's house when she suddenly made an outcry, and called for her mother to get some milk, as she had taken a dose of Paris green. She herself hurried down cellar and got some eggs, which she mixed with the milk and swallowed. On her father asking what she took the Paris green for, she replied that she "thought she needed some salts." Medical assistance was quickly summoned, and by means of antidotes, a stomach pump, etc., much of the poison was brought out. She is expected to recover.—News-Argus.

TORONTO.

ELOPEMENT CASE.—Considerable excitement has been caused in the north-west portion of the city by the elopement of Jonathan Madell, a builder and contractor, of Lippincott street, and Mrs. Josie Martin, wife of Jacob L. Martin, cabinet maker. Madell leaves a wife and two young children, and Mrs. Martin a husband and two grown-up daughters. The runaway pair were both members of the choir of the College street Baptist Church, Mrs. Martin being the organist. On Friday Mrs. Martin told her husband she was going to Hamilton to visit some friends. Mrs. Madell had been sent to the country with her children about a fortnight ago, and Madell left on Friday, telling his partner that he was going to see his wife. A letter from Mrs. Madell addressed to her husband first aroused suspicion, and then it was ascertained beyond doubt that the pair had left together for New York. Madell, who is a good musician, took his harp with him. Mrs. Madell returned from the country with her children this morning and is almost heartbroken. Mrs. Martin was also pianist and choir conductor in the West End Christian Association, and Madell was a member of the association choir.

LENNOX.

THE Toronto Globe of Monday has the following editorial note:—

"Would the Peterborough REVIEW kindly favour us with its view of the Lennox contest and submit reasons for the defeat of young Mr. Blackstock? The rest of the organs seem to have exhausted their stock of reasons in explaining Sir John's recent failures, and are utterly helpless in the hands of this last disaster. The editor of the REVIEW was on the ground,—will he not go to their assistance?"

We will endeavour to answer the question of our contemporary, even though it is not true that "the editor of the REVIEW was on the ground," so we cannot speak from personal experience.

Though "young Mr. Blackstock" is an able man, and would, we are convinced, have made an excellent representative, he was at the disadvantage of not being so well known in the county as his opponent, who had previously canvassed the electors. Then the election, being only for a portion of the term, did not create the interest of a general election, and too many Conservatives were careless of the result, not being spurred on by the incentives used in the case of Reformers. But apart from these causes we believe that the chief reason why Mr. Blackstock was unsuccessful in this divided constituency was that he and his friends did not use money while the Reformers did so, in addition to the influence of the official electioneerers in the pay of Mr. Mowat and his colleagues. It will be remembered that when Sir John Macdonald was unseated, the evidence, though given only by witnesses for the petitioners, disclosed the fact that for every bribe offered by indiscreet and too zealous friends of the Premier, several such attempts were made by the Reformers. All impartial observers were convinced then that the corruption by the Reformers was wide spread and systematic, though fortunately for them it was not investigated. We believe that they made use of the same unlawful means at the recent election, thereby procuring Mr. Blackstock's defeat.

We only give our "view" at the request of the Globe, not being in the habit of crying "bribery" after every defeat, preferring to wait till the facts are ventilated. The past history of the Reform party as shown by the records of our courts of law, proves that many of its leading members combine brazen-faced hypocrisy with the grossest corruption.

AN UNTRUTHFUL CRITIC.

THAT wonderful journal, the Port Hope Guide, had eight lines of original matter in its editorial columns on Saturday, and they were all, every one of them, devoted to a criticism of the REVIEW. We will not copy the entire editorial matter of the paper, but here is the pith of the able article:—

"The Peterborough REVIEW * * * don't seem to know that its candidate was defeated. There was not a line about the Lennox election in last evening's REVIEW. How is this, Mr. REVIEW."

The Port Hope Guide "don't" seem to have had its spectacles on its editorial eyes on Saturday, for in the REVIEW of the previous evening,—the issue to which it refers—there was an item regarding the result of the Lennox election, with a double heading, giving the majorities received by the candidates at each polling division and the total majority received by Mr. Hawley. Our argus-eyed contemporary was as correct in this instance as it usually is. When it attempts to be original it is invariably reckless and almost always incorrect in its statements. The Guide should drop its bad habits and be more careful—and truthful.

OUR CONSTITUTION.

THE Montreal Witness, in its remarks on the paper contributed to it by Mr. Benjamin Sulte on "The Future of Canada," shows that it holds more correct views as to Dominion and Provincial jurisdiction than some of its Reform brethren. It is hardly correct, however, as to the veto power or the danger of centralization. The Witness says:—

"Mr. Sulte has undoubtedly detected the tendencies of and drawn the proper conclusions from the experiment of the confederation of Canada. But the guarantee which he believes the provinces possess against centralization of power on the part of the Dominion does not exist. Our constitution was formed during the time when the United States was plunged in the most painful war ever fought, perhaps, over the question of State sovreignty, and to avoid the possibility of an appeal to the arbitrament of the sword, the Dominion was invested with the sovereign power, and it is to the provinces that power was regarded as delegated. It is only such powers as are expressly delegated by the British North America Act that belong to the provinces. It is for the purpose of preventing the provinces from going beyond the jurisdiction granted them that the power to veto provincial legislation is given to the Dominion Government."

REVIEWS.

THE MANHATTAN.—The September number of Manhattan shows the influence of the tourist season, by its papers describing widely separated localities. Ada Bakounine gives a graphic account of "The Misericordia of Florence," the long established Brothers of Mercy of that fair city. J. W. Davis gives us more than "A Glance at the Hungarian Capitals." Ernest Ingersoll in a "Californian Acadia," shows us that even this new world is not without its romances and antiquities. R. S. Day describes the attractions of "A corner of the Gulf of Mexico. D. Ker discourses "On a Siamese Pagoda," and Kate Field concludes her "Diary in London." Nearly all of these papers and some that we have yet to mention, are profusely illustrated in a most effective and artistic manner. As usual in Manhattan, literary subjects are accorded prominence. H. F. Randolph strongly defends "The Grave-diggers' scene in Hamlet," and J. L. Allen appreciatively describes "Balzac and the Literary Circles of his Times." John Barnard's interesting "Retrospections of the American Stage," are continued. The serial story, "Trajan," maintains its interest, and a telling illustration of a scene in it forms the frontispiece. There are several lively tales and some poetry of unusual excellence, which, with "Town Talk," and reviews of recent literature, make up an excellent number.

HANDBOOK OF CANADA.—Among other effects of the present meeting at Montreal of the British Association for the Advancement of Science is the publication of a handbook for the Dominion of Canada." This little work has been very ably prepared by Mr. S. E. Dawson, one of the local secretaries of the Association, who has obtained the assistance of the best informed specialists for the scientific and other departments. In the small space which would adapt it for the pocket, it is replete with such information as an intelligent visitor would require, and even "old inhabitants" might learn something from its pages. It contains some excellent maps, geographical and geological, to facilitate the understanding of the letter-press. The publishers, Messrs. Dawson Bros. of Montreal, have done their share to render this volume both useful and attractive.

COBOURG.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—On Tuesday, at Campbelltown, a little girl named Fanny Hie, daughter of Mr. Hie, carter, who was attending the Congregational S. S. picnic there, had a narrow escape from drowning. She was playing about the scow jumping from it to the tug when she fell into the water. It was only by the merest chance she was seen, and she had sank twice before an attempt could be made to save her. The engineer of the tug, whose attention was called to her danger, was instrumental in rescuing her from the water, and restoring her to her overjoyed father.—World.

GOT IT BACK.—One day last week a quantity of silver-plated knives, forks, and spoons were discovered in the woods west of the town and close to the G. T. Railway, by Jas. Squires. When found they had the appearance of having been burried some time and would not have been noticed but for the rain, which had washed away the sand exposing the property to sight. The "find" was consigned to Chief Rankin's care, who at once endeavored to find the rightful owner. He learned that Mrs. Grover, of Colborne, had some silverware stolen some time ago and he wrote her. She came up on Tuesday last identified the property as hers, and took it home.—Sentinel-Star.

Making the Granaries Ready.

The weevil infested our wheat granaries several years ago, and since then we have been careful to scrub them out once each year with boiling-hot salt-water. If the bins are not all empty when threshing time approaches, prepare those that are empty for the reception of grain, and transfer the old grain to these, and scald the bins just emptied. First, scrub the floor and sides with the boiling brine, being careful that it fills all the crevices. When this has well dried, prepare a thick white-wash, and with it coat the entire interior of the bins, fillings the the cracks with it. The day before threshing, take an old broom and sweep off the thickest of the white-wash. Since adopting this plan, we have had no pests in the granaries.

If the mice have gnawed holes through the sides, tack pieces of sheet-iron or tin over these, and place well trained cats in the granary. It is much better to have the boards jointed than to place lath over the cracks, as the inclosed cracks will be inhabited by pests, very difficult to reach and destroy.

The loss occasioned by pests is not measured by what they consume. Mice may not eat much but they leave crumbs plentifully behind them, which detract from the appearance of the wheat and lower its price, when it is sent to market. Weevils may not destroy much grain, but many millers will not buy grain infested with them at any price.—J. M. STAHL, of Mo., in American Agriculturist for September;

REST AND SLEEP.

From the Christian Intelligencer

He sees when their footsteps falter, when their hearts grow weak and faint,
He marks when their strength is failing, and listens to each complaint;
He bids them rest for a season, for the pathway has grown too steep,
And folded in fair, green pastures, He giveth His loved ones sleep.

Like weary and worn-out children, that sigh for the daylight's close,
He knows that they oft are longing for home and its sweet repose;
So He calls them in from their labors ere the shadows around them creep,
And silently watching o'er them He giveth His loved ones sleep.

He giveth it, oh! so gently, as a mother will hush to rest
The babe that she softly pillows so tenderly on her breast;
Forgotten now are the trials and sorrows that made them weep,
For with many a soothing promise He giveth His loved ones sleep.

All dread of the distant future, all fears that oppressed to-day,
Like mists that clear in the sunlight, have noiselessly passed away;
Nor call nor clamour can rouse them from slumbers so pure and deep,
For only his voice can reach them, who giveth His loved ones sleep.

Weep not that her toils are over, weep not that her race is wou;
God grant we may rest as calmly when our work, like hers, is done;
Till then we would yield with gladness this treasure to Him to keep,
And rejoice in the sweet assurance, He giveth His loved ones sleep. E.

INFELICE.

By AUGUSTA J. EVANS WILSON

Author of "St. Elmo," "Beulah," "Micaria," etc.

CHAPTER XXX.

"You were two years and a half old, and I went one Sunday to visit you.

"How well I recollect your appearance on that fatal day. I kissed your dainty feet and hands, your lips and eyes—so like Cuthbert's and I know as I carressed you my heart swelled with the fond pride that only mothers can understand and feel, and I whispered—Papa's baby! Papa's own darling! Cuthbert's little baby!

"It was late when I got home, and the lady with whom I lived, sent for me in great haste. Guests had unexpectedly come from a distance, dinner must be served, and the butler had been called away inopportunely to one of his children, who had been terribly scalded. Could I oblige her by consenting to serve the visitors at table? She was a good mistress to me, and of course I did not hesitate. One of the guests was a nephew of the host, and recently returned from Europe, as I learned from the conversation. When the desert was being set upon the table, he said: 'No—I rather liked him; none are perfect and he has sowed his wild oats and settled down. Marriage is a strong social anchor, and his bride is a very heavy looking woman, though enormously rich I hear. It is said that his father manoeuvred the match, for Cuthbert liked being fancy free."

"The name startled me, and the master of the house asked: "Of whom are you speaking?" "Cuthbert Laurance and his recent marriage with Abbie Ames—the banker's daughter." My mistress pulled my dress and directed me to bring a bottle of champagne from the side table. The bottle fell with a crash, and in the confusion, I tottered towards the butler's pantry—and sank down insensible.

"After that day I was a different woman, hard, bitter, relentless, desperate. In the room of hope reigned hate, and I dedicated the future to revenge. I had heard Mr. Palma's name mentioned as the most promising lawyer at the bar, and though he was a young man then, he inspired all who knew him with confidence and respect. Withholding only my husband's name, I gave him my history, and sought legal advice. A suit would result in the foul and fatal aspersion, which Peleg was waiting to pour like an inky stream upon my character, and we ascertained that he was in the pay of the Laurances, and would testify according to their wishes and purposes. There was no proof of my marriage, unless Mr. Hargrove had preserved the license, the record of which had been destroyed by the burning of the court house. Where were the witnesses? Grandmother was dead, and it was rumored Mr. Audre had perished in a fishing excursion off the Labrador coast.

"Mr. Palma advised me to wait, to patiently watch for an opportunity, pledging himself to do all that legal skill could effect; and nobly he has redeemed his promise to the desolate, friendless, broken hearted woman who appealed to him for aid.

"I succeeded, after several repulses, in securing a very humble position in one of the small theatres, where I officiated first with scissors and needle, in fitting costumes and in various other menial employments; studying ceaselessly all the while to prepare myself for the stage. The manager became interested, encouraged me, tested me at rehearsals, and at last, after an arduous struggle, I made my debut at the benefit of one of the stock actors. My name was adroitly whispered about, one or two mysterious paragraphs were published at the expense of the actor, and so, curiosity gave me an audience, and an opportunity.

"That night seemed the crisis of my destiny; if I failed, what would become of my baby? Already, my love, you were my supreme thought. But I did not, my face was a great success; my acting was pronounced wonderful by the dramatic critic to whom the beneficiary sent a complimentary ticket, and after that evening I had no difficulty in securing an engagement that proved very successful.

"A year after I learned that Cuthbert had married a second time, I went to V—— to see Mr. Hargrove, and obtain possession of my license. The good man only gave me a copy, to which he added his certificate of the solemnization of my marriage; but he sympathized very deeply with my unhappy condition and promised in any emergency to befriend you, my darling. A few hours after I left the parsonage it was entered and robbed, and the license he refused me was stolen. Long afterward I learned he suspected me."

Here Regina narrated her discovery of the mysterious facts connected with the loss of the paper, and her first knowledge of Peleg Peterson. As she explained the occurrences that succeeded the storm, Mrs. Orme almost scowled, and resumed:

"He has been the bete noire of my ill-starred life, but even his malice has been satisfied at last. Anxious to shield you from the possibility of danger, and from all contaminating influences and association, I carried you to a distant convent; the same with which grandmother had threatened me, and placed you under the sacred shadow of the nuns' protection. Then assured of your safety, and that your education would not be neglected, I devoted myself completely to my profession. From city to city I wandered in quest of fame and money, both so essential to the accomplishment of my scheme; a scheme that goaded me sleeping and waking, leaving no moment of repose.

"Shortly afterwards one night in Chicago, having overtaxed my strength, I fainted on the street, en route from the theatre, and while my servant fled for assistance, I was found by Mr. and Mrs. Waul, and taken to their home. Their kind hearts warmed toward me, and no parent could have been more tenderly watchful than they have proved ever since. They supplied a need of protection, of which I was growing painfully conscious, and I engaged them to travel with me.

"Once I took three days out of my busy life, and visited the old family homestead of Gen. Laurance. The owner was in Europe, the house closed; but standing unnoticed under the venerable oaks that formed the avenue of approach to the ancestral halls of my husband, I looked at the stately pile, and the broad fields that surrounded it, and called upon Heaven to spare me long enough to see my child the regnant heiress of all that proud domain. There I vowed that cost what it might, I would accomplish my revenge, would place you there as owner of that noble inheritance.

"Through Mr. Palma's inquiries concerning the records, I ascertained that this property had been settled upon Cuthbert, on the week of his second marriage. You were ten years old when I determined to go to Europe and consummate my plan. Peleg had disappeared, and I knew that the other agent of the Laurances had lost all trace of me. You were so grieved because I left for Europe without bidding you good-bye! Ah my sweet child! You never knew that it was the hardest trial of my life, to put the ocean between us, and that I was too cowardly to witness your distress at the separation that was so uncertain in duration.

THE SCHOOLS.

The Re-Opening—Result of the Promotion Examinations in the Ward Schools.

The Collegiate Institute and public schools re-opened on Monday under a new regime as regards the Institute, and with some important changes in both. Dr. Tassie, the new Principal, has elected to conduct his department in the ward school, commonly called the little building, whilst the rooms in the top story of the Central school, vacated by the Institute, have been re-seated and re-arranged to subserve the interests of the advanced classes in the public chool.

Owing to the increased public school population attending the central, it has been found necessary to utilize what was formerly the boys' winter play room in the basement. This has been fitted up as a class-room for the junior primary department, to be presided over by Miss Errett, whose services it was found necessary to call into requisition to avoid having the primary department of nearly a hundred little ones kept by one teacher.

In what must now be known as the Institute there are two stories and two rooms in each. The north-east one on the first floor will be the Principal's room, and the one in which henceforth the Board of Education will hold their meetings. These rooms have all received a thorough cleaning, the blackboard re-painted, and such repairs made to render them pleasant and cheerful class rooms. An addiitonal teacher has been engaged in the West Ward School, otherwise the ward schools remain as last term.

The following is the promotion list of the June examinations:—

They then crossed the river in a ferry boat and were escorted to the cititdel, at which place they will be put up while in Quebec.

Farmers Shipping Cattle.

The Crompton farmers are sending their cattle to England on their own account, Messrs. Bliss Pomroy, Mc Intosh, Hartwell, and a number of others, shipping five hundred head the first of September. Mr. Doak, of this place, will ship fifty head about the middle of September, in charge of his farmer, Mr. Bleay (and Mr. Hinton) who takes the opportunity to re-visit his old home. The depression will have a serious effect in the townships, where the cattle interest is so large, and our farmers will now have to make up their minds to accept lower prices than have ruled for some time.—Coaticook Observer.

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one of the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone. * * * * *

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer"

The above we clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its common sense points. Alexander has already marketed and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now neerly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexanders. Call and be convinced.

Daily Evening Review

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1884

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Canoe Parade.

Don't forget the illuminated canoe parade this evening. The Fire Brigade Band will be present. A bird's eye maple paddle will be presented for the best illuminated canoe. Col. Harry Rogers and Col. J. Z. Rogers will take command.

Remember the P.B.C. Concert on Wednesday Evening,—Miss Clench and Mr. Warrington—Secure your seats at Smart & Son's

More Machinery.

Mr. W. Wand, Ashburnham, has received a consignment of new machinery for his planing mill. He has now a planing machine in which, if you place a rough door at one end it will come out at the other end planed, sand papered, and ready for the paint brush. The machine is manufactured by Messrs. Cowan & Co'y, of Galt, Ont.

For the Dominion Exhibition.

Seven different kinds of canoes were shipped this morning over the Grand Trunk by the Ontario Canoe Co. to the Secretary of the Dominion Exhibition Committee. The Dominion Exhibition will open in Montreal shortly and it is expected the Peterborough canoes will sustain their high reputation. They are really a fine lot.

Half a Century Ago.

Mr. Robert Harper says that half a century ago to-day, on Sept. 2nd, 1834, he in company with Edmund Chamberlain and the late Robt. Nichols landed about where the locks now are and for the first time saw what was then Peterborough—the primeval forest—with a few shanties here and there. Some of their sports at a ater period consisted of canoe racing over a course now occupied by Simcoe street.

The Accommodation.

All those who attend the Chemong Lake regatta may rely on getting the best hotel accommodation. Mr. Febert has also secured abundant stable room; so that all who drive up may have their horses comfortably stabled. The beautiful Chemong Lake Park has been beseiged by private picnic parties during the summer, and a fine view of the entire race course may be obtained from it.

Our Staff.

We have to thank the Lindsay Post for acknowledging our consistency as well as the reference in the following paragraph to a member of our staff:—

"The staff of The Post extend their congratulations to Mr. S. R. Armstrong of the Peterboro DAILY REVIEW on his advancement. Mr. Armstrong has been the very efficient local reporter for that paper for some time and a vacancy occurring in the staff has been placed in the responsible position of assistant editor. In this respect the management of our contem. is consistent with its horrid N.P. professions. It does not send abroad and import a colleague when equally good material can be had at home."

New Tailoring Establishment.

Mr. Hugh Ross, well known in Peterborough as an excellent cutter, has opened out a stock of gent's furnishings in a commodious shop next door to W. Lech's fur store. The shelves of the store are well filled with fashionable tweeds. A handsome little dressing room has been fitted up in the rear of the front shop; and Mr. Ross himself handles the shears. The store is illuminated at night by electric light; the window is tastefuly dressed; a spacious workshop if adjacent to the cutter's table; and no doubt Mr. Ross, with his genial manner and good work, will secure his share of public patronage.

Match With the Mets.

Now that it is definitely arranged that our Lacrosse team is to meet the Metropolitans, of Ottawa, on the 9th Sept., the boys should go to work and practice as much as possible. Surely their ignominious defeat at Brockville is fresh in their memories. The Cornwall Club make it obligatory on the team selected to play a match, to practice running and be rubbed down each evening for two weeks before the match is played. If our 'crossemen will get right together and put in solid practice, perhaps there will be a different tale to tell when the Mets. come to Peterborough.

Board of Education.

A regular meeting of the Board of Education will be held at 7.45 o'clock this evening.

The Bad Boy.

The Peck's Bad Boy Company will give a performance at Bradburn's Opera House to-night.

Regatta on Little Lake.

At a meeting of the Boating Club last night it was definitely arranged that the fall regatta would be held on the Little Lake on the 18th of September. The booms will be removed and a straight course laid out from the Ashburnham wharf to the bend in Crescent street, Peterborough.

The Weather.

The readings of the Thermometer and Barometer in Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store today were as follows:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
Nine o'clock	65°	29.13
One o'clock	75°	29.13
Three o'clock	74°	29.09

Excursion to Midland.

Quite a number of our citizens availed themselves of the opportunity presented by patronizing the excursion to Midland to-day. The train left the Grand Trunk depot shortly after 6 o'clock this morning. The excursionists will no doubt enjoy the fresh breeze from the Georgian Bay.

A Window Blind Item.

Mr. E. Green, the window blind manufacturer, has just commenced running his new slat cutter. It consists of a ponderous knife, which moves up and down, clipping off slats at the rate of 100 per minute. Mr. Green has now every facility for the manufacture of the celebrated blind, and can turn out as much work in one week as he formerly did in two months.

Government Printing Bureau.

The Millbrook Messenger says:—

"Our readers have probably noticed that the Dominion Government, with the object of establishing a Printing Bureau, have sent a Commission of three to the United States, to gather information about the various Public Printing Offices. The people of this part of Canada will join with us in hoping that, when selecting a Government Printer, the Ministers will not overlook the present Proof Reader to the House of Commons. Mr. Robert Romaine has the universal respect of all parties, and the many Canadian printers who have learned their trade from him, will testify that his technical knowledge is unsurpassed. For such a position, a spotless reputation is indispensable. We have yet to hear the first word spoken against Mr. Romaine's character."

Awakened by "Burglars."

One of our prominent merchants, who sleeps over his store, was, a few nights ago, awakened by a noise which sounded like some person trying to unfasten the shutters of the back shop. He stealthily stole, revolver in hand, down the back stairs and listened for a moment. The noise stopped. In a few minutes it again commenced. The merchant rushed to the window with the revolver cocked, when lo! a mouse, which had been captured by a trap that stood on the sill, was trying to get out. The merchant was so chagrined and disgusted that he forthwith plunged the poor mouse into eternity.

Harvest Festival in Smith.

A Harvest Home Festival will be held on Tuesday, 9th September, at McConkey's Point, Chemong Lake. A dancing platform will be provided, so that young and old, if so inclined, may enjoy a pleasant whirl. Hot and cold water may be had free of charge. In the afternoon a regatta will be held, and handsome prizes will be given to the winners of the different races. A programme of sports has also been arranged, and the Indian Brass Band will preside at the band stand. Mr. J. C. McConkey has been chiefly instrumental in arranging the festival, and the committee composed of himself and Messrs. J. G. Davis and A. Nichols will see that everything in the programme is carried out satisfactorily.

"More Wants."

We want a door bell that announces to the kitchen whether the ringer be a lady caller or a tramp; a doctor in every town for the sole benefit of the poor, to be supported by the Government; a plumber that will bring all his tools to a job to start with; a cure for sea sickness; a non-intoxicating beverage to take the place of Dow's ale; a meerschaum, or any other kind of pipe for gentlemen (not to be found in Rubidge's), that consumes its own smoke and makes no ashes; a machine for jumping a fellow out of bed, washing, dressing, giving him his breakfast, and propelling him on his way to work; a few new ideas put into the heads of all men who have been in the habit of paying exorbitant prices for their clothing, to convince them that the place to buy and save money is at ANDREW MCNEIL'S, tailor, clothier and gent's furnishings, George street.

An Accidental Youth.

Mike Foley second son of Mr Foley, foreman of the section men having charge of the Midland railway tracks within the corporation of Whitby, is going about this week with his left arm in a sling. In jumping over a hurdle on Saturday he broke that member. This is but one of a long list of accidents which has befallen the youth. Not long ago he broke his right arm, before that he fell from a butternut tree and broke his nose and his life has ever been full of diverting incidents of but little less importance than these. He is a fireman on a Midland Ry. locomotive running out of Port Hope.—Whitby Chronicle.

Strength of the Expedition.

The Gerden relief expedition will be composed of 8,000 British troops 2,500 Egyptians, 950 river boats manned by 400 Canadians, 300 Vroomen, and 2,000 Egyptians Nubians. The cost of the campaign is placed at £8,000,000. Gen Wolseley has a carte blanche for British troops in Egypt to the number of ten thousand. When all is arranged the force will be 15,000. Only strong men will be taken. Several correspondents will accompany the army.

Suit for Libel.

ORILLIA, Aug. 31.—Peter Murray, publisher of the Orillia Times, was arraigned at the Police Court on Saturday morning to answer to a charge of criminal libel, preferred against him by John Curran, of the Orillia News-Letter. Judgment was reserved.

The DAILY EVENING REVIEW is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

C. M. B. A.

Address and Presentation to a Member of Branch Thirty.

Quite a pleasing incident occurred in connection with the proceedings of Branch 30, C.M.B.A., Peterborough, at their regular meeting held on Monday, the 1st instant. The members had heard that trustee John Donegan was about to leave for Cornwall, and they determined not to let him go without manifesting towards him their sentiments of good will. Accordingly they procured from Mr. J. P. Tansey, jeweller, Montreal, a very beautifnl gold pin, on which appropriate Catholic emblems were engraved. When the proper moment arrived the members arose, and the President, turning to Mr. Donegan, presented him the pin in the name of the members, and also the following ad lress:—

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—We the members of Branch No. 30, Peterborough, of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, have heard with deep regret that you are about to take your departure from amongst us.

This regret is, however, to some extent modified by the agreeable intelligence that such departure is occasioned, not by any dislike to our thriving town, but by the fact that your abilities in your own sphere of life have received a well deserved recognition at the hands of an enterprising manufacturing firm in Cornwall, who we learn have offered and from whom you have accepted a situation much more lucrative and more in keeping with your merits than your present one.

We desire, however, before you go, to place upon record the fact that since the formation of Branch 30 you have been second to none in your efforts to promote its growth and to facilitate the performance of business at meetings of our branch.

As a trustee of our branch you have been indefatigable in seeing that none but persons who comply with the requirements of our constitution are admitted as members of our society.

As a friend and brother we have always found you true and sincere and the sentiments of friendly feeling and brotherly love which you have always testified towards us, have found a strong responsive echo in our own hearts, but particularly so on this occasion, when going as you are to new fields of labour, some of us at all events can not hope to again clasp your hand in the warm grasp of friendship.

Such being our feelings toward you, you cannot therefore be surprised if we take advantage of your last evening with us to give expression in a more tangible form to our sentiments of regard.

We present you, therefore, with this pin, not, indeed, for its intrinsic value, which is but slight, but with the hope that whenever you wear it you will rest content with the earnest assurance now given that it is the tribute of that warm feeling which animates us towards yourself, and that you will be able to give a kind thought to the members of this branch.

When you gaze upon the emblems with which it is adorned, emblems typical of the Catholic faith, you will be able to reflect that in our prayers you and yours are not forgotten.

To yourself and family we wish continued and increasing prosperity and happiness, and we feel confident that your well known business capacity and integrity will always ensure for you those desirable ends.

Signed on behalf of the members of Branch No. 30.

JOHN O'MEARA,
President.

M. SULLIVAN,
Rec. Sec'y.

Mr. DONEGAN, who was completely taken by surprise, said he had not expected to receive from the branch such a flattering testimonial. It was impossible for him to express fully the gratitude he felt for the kind sentiments contained in the address he had just listened to. He assured the members that though he felt that the regret expressed by them at his departure was great, it was not greater than his own in being obliged to go. He had found warm hearted and affectionate friends in Peterborough, and had derived great benefit from his association with them. Were it not for the fact that he had been offered a position which, in a pecuniary point of view, would tend greatly to his advantage, he would not think of leaving. He would still remain a member of Branch 30, at all events until the organization of a branch at Cornwall. He had heard that a branch was being formed there. He hoped this was true, and he would be glad to give to the persons who had the work in hand the benefit of his own experience and to assist them in completing the good work. He would never forget branch 30, and hoped to hear of its continued advancement. Were the principles which guided its actions and the actions of its sister branches more thoroughly understood the C. M. B. A. would become Catholic in a broad sense indeed in the sense of being universal. He was overjoyed to learn that their venerable and much loved Bishop had looked into its rules and found that they were in accordance with the teachings of the Catholic Church. Nothing indeed could be more in accordance with such teaching than the object of their society, which was to promote in its members sobriety, integrity and frugality, and to provide a fund for the widows and orphans of deceased members. Their good Bishop had expressed himself in sentiments of approval of such objects, and he expected to find that his approbation would result not only in an increase membership in branch 30, but in the formation of branches in all the parishes of his Lordships diocese. He knew something of the efforts their President was making to establish branches elsewhere, and he trusted that these efforts would not fail through the apathy or indifference of parties addressed. The allusions to his own efforts to promote the growth of the present branch he felt were hardly deserved; inasmuch as he had only done his share and others had worked equally hard, nevertheless he was pleased to know that his efforts had not been overlooked. He reciprocated the kind and friendly feelings contained in the address and would always look back with pleasure to the happy days he had spent in Peterborough.

The business of the meeting was then concluded.

A Compliment To Canada.

Sir William Thomson in section A, to day anounced that the President and officers of the British Association, now in session at Montreal, had decided to offer a gold medal in the faculty of applied science in McGill University, in order to commemorate the present meeting. The President, Lord Rayleigh, had consented to act as Honorary Treasurer, and a list of subscribers had been commenced, headed by the President. Sir William Thomson said he was pleased that a British Association medal should commemorate this visit, and asked every English member present to join in the subscription. (Applause.)

In speaking of the commemorative medal Sir Henry Lefroy, in his section, said, amidst cheers, the meeting in this colonial city of the Empire was a unique feature in the history of the Association, and it would be agreeable, he believed, to every Englishman now attending the meetings to thus peacefully commemorate their novel but agreeable experience.

POLICE COURT.

TUESDAY, Sept. 2.—Mr. D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate, presided at the Police Court this morning.

ASSAULT.

Mrs. Mary McGee charged Napoleon Doig, a boy of 8 years, with having committed an assault upon her little 7 year old daughter, by slapping her in the face.

Mr. E. B. Edwards appeared for the defendant.

The MAGISTRATE said that he would not impose a fine on so small a child, neither would he send him to gaol.

The case was dismissed with costs.

SO MODEST A VIRTUE

AS

GOODNESS

Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

Three o'clock	80°	29.16

The Market.

The market this morning was, considering the season, fairly attended. Tomatoes are coming in in large quantities and sell for 40c. per peck. Plums sell for from 6c. to 10c. per quart, and apples are plentiful. Scarcely any butter, eggs, or fowl was offered for sale. The new wheat has not yet commenced coming in.

Uncommonly Quiet.

It is told of a man who is employed in one of our large manufacturing establishments, and who resides in the west part of the town, that he has not seen the town hall but twice, and that in the last five years he has only been twice on the business part of George street. He must be of a quiet and domestic turn of mind.

THE MOWAT & CO. PLOT.

RESUMPTION OF THE SITTINGS OF THE COMMISSION ON THE BRIBERY CHARGES

Not Daring to Question Sir D. Macpherson on Their Slanderous Charges Again—Summoned Only for Annoyance—A Blank Day.

The Royal Commission met again on Monday.

Sir. D. MACPHERSON having been summoned, asked to be examined at once, as his duties called him to the Northwest. He repeated this request several times during the day, but in vain.

S. H. BLAKE, Q. C., counsel for Mr. Mowat, and hero of the recent attempt to obtain from a Peterborough man of $50 on false pretences, refused repeatedly to examine the Minister of the Interior, although summoned to give evidence, until certain telegraph clerks had been examined.

The COURT left the matter in Mr. Blake's hands, acting doubtless on the secret instructions received from Mowat & Co., and regarding the matter as a prosecution by them instead of an investigation into the conduct of themselves and others.

Mr. BADGEROW, M.P.P., could throw no new light on the subject.

Mr. MCMAHON, M.P.P., said that he had a conversation with Mr. Bunting as to the probability of certain members deserting Mr. Mowat.

Mr. J. BAIN and Mr. T. TRADEAU proved payments to Mr. Wilkinson as a Government valuator.

Mr. ERMATINGTER had been summoned but Mr. Blake declined to question him. He denied the evidence of Mr. Cascaden that he had feigned surprise when Mr. Bunting came into the refreshment room of the House.

The Court then adjourned.

Artistic Sign Painting.

Mr. J. N. Watson has been for the past few days doing some fancy sign painting on a plate glass window in Mr. J. McClelland's jewellery store. The lettering is of gold and has rainbow shading for a background. The shading consists of eight different shades of color. It is a very attractive window and does credit to Mr. Watson's taste and workmanship.

It Is Probable.

—That few persons remembered that yesterday was the date on which the fair used to be held.

—That a correspondent who writes regarding the state of Charlotte street, between the railway and Park street, describes its condition correctly, and that it should receive attention.

—That we will have moderate to fresh south and south-west winds, and fair warmer weather.

—That the football players feel better since they commenced their six o'clock practice.

—That they will make it warm for the Torontos when they come here this fall.

—That Miss Leonora Clench will perform before a large audience to-night.

—That there will be a meeting of the Lacrosse Club at the Little Windsor Hotel at 8 o'clock this evening.

ENNISMORE.

From our own Correspondent.

WEATHER NOTES.—During the first few days of August nothing of a particular change took place from July, only on the morning of the 9th there was a sharp frost, when from that it changed to one of the hottest spells ever felt Canada. The hottest at sunrise was on the morning of the 18th, namely 80°, and at sunset on the 20th at 85°. The coldest morning was on the 25th, the thermometer falling to 38°, the temperature of the month being 62°. Rain fell on twelve days to the depth of 2 inches and 80-100 of an inch. It thundered on four days with some hail on the 23rd. We had two severe gales, on the third and 21st respectively, leveling fences and grain. Perhaps it my be interesting to some of your readers receiving an account of the hot spell we lately passed through. Between two and three o'clock on Thursday, the 14th, the thermometer rose to 90° in the shade, wind south; on the 15th to 94°, wind south; on the 16th to 94°, wind south; on the 17th to 97°, wind south-east; on the 18th to 97° wind south-west; on the 19th to 94°, wind south-west; and again on the 20th to 97° wind south, and on the 21st to 93°, wind south-west. I believe for the month of August it is unequaled in Canada.

BOBCAYGEON.

NEW MACHINERY.—Mr. W. Bick has placed a new shingle machine in his mill. It is of the latest improved pattern, and does its work to perfection. The machine is from the shops of Wm. Hamilton, of Peterborough.

GOOD DRIVING.—Mr. A. L. Adam, clerical assistant of Rev. Mr. Steel, a few days ago drove from Sturgeon Point to his home at Atherly, a distance of 50 miles. He started at 5 o'clock in the morning, rested two hours on the way, and was home to dinner at 1 o'clock.

LOSS.—On Tuesday Mrs. Eastwood, of Whitby, who is summering at the Commercial House, was taken seriously ill, and a telegraph was sent for Dr. Eastwood. As the train service was unavailable, the doctor rode his horse from Whitby to Lindsay and caught the evening boat. The horse was brought down on the boat, and standing in the chill night air, after the heating of the journey of 48 miles, brought on inflammation, from which he died on Wednesday night. The horse was a valuable one. Mrs. Eastwood is recovering.—Independent.

The Central Ontario Railway

One train will start in the morning from Trenton station connecting with the Grand Trunk from the east and proceed north to Coe Hill. The other train will leave Coe Hill in the morning, and connect with Picton train, the noon express, and the mixed, returning to Coe Hill in the afternoon. Both trains will make connection with the Ontario and Quebec. It is hoped also to make connection with the Grand Junction.—Courier.

THE MOWAT "BOOM."

THE Toronto News claims to be the organ of the Democratic party, has a great admiration for the American system of government, and advocates the independence of Canada. To bring about this revolution the News does all in its power to create a feeling against the Federal authority. It denounces the veto power of the Dominion, in favor of which the Hon. George Brown and other Reform leaders took strong ground.

The News is just now engaged in booming Mr. Mowat and the proposed demonstration in his honor. This is quite natural. The News wishes to break down our present system of government and to wreck our Confederation, hoping that by so doing it will hasten a political change that will lead to independence. Mr. Mowat did a great deal to assist in creating a feeling antagonistic to the Dominion by refusing to refer the boundary question to the Privy Council, and by making an effort, though a feeble and costly one, to take forcible possession of the territory claimed. The independence organ evidently believes that by so doing Mr. Mowat has earned its gratitude, and it tries to repay him by freely advertising the demonstration. But the News can see reasons for honoring Mr. Mowat that loyal and patriotic Canadians cannot agree with. They feel that if the Ontario Premier had been less obstinate, and had thought more of the country than he did of a cry for his party, he would have years ago agreed to a reference of the question to the tribunal which has recently rendered a decision on the points of difference between this Province and Manitoba, and if he had done so the clique that advocate disruption would not have been so gushing about this demonstration. They would then have had nothing to thank him for.

There is another reason, though perhaps not as strong a one, why the News and other Toronto papers wish to boom this demonstration. The capital of this Province, though a flourishing city, is a selfish one. The papers published within its limits do all in their power to advance the interests of their annual exhibition, to the detriment of other exhibitions. The committee in charge of the Mowat demonstration have chosen a time when the exhibition will be open, expecting, no doubt, that the exhibition would assist them. The Toronto papers, the News included, are as shrewd as the committee, and they wish to make the demonstration assist the exhibition. By booming the demonstration they hope to bring more people to the city, to the advantage of the exhibition and the city generally. It is a case of "scratch my back and I'll scratch yours."

The majority of the people of Ontario, however, have no reason to feel grateful to Mr. Mowat for keeping them out of the possession of territory which belonged to them for so long a time, nor for giving the advocates of disruption and independence an opportunity to denounce our system of government, and they will not feel particularly grateful to him and to the Provincial Reform Association for assisting the Toronto Industrial Exhibition to the detriment of the Dominion and Provincial Exhibitions and other fall fairs.

THE Ottawa organ of the Reformers objects to Canadians being called "Her Majesty's subjects." Whom does the Free Press acknowledge as its sovereign? Have the Reformers hurrahed about Mr. Mowat until they imagine he is king?

THE Reform Brockville Recorder, referring to the rumour published by the Ottawa Sun that the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie was to be offered a position in the Dominion Cabinet, says that Sir John Macdonald would not make such an offer.

THE inventor of the kazoo is a Mr. Frost, of Cleveland. It was a cold day for the world when he thought of this nuisance.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

LET THE GRIT LEADERS SPEAK OUT

How can men who have not courage to boldly avow in clear and explicit language their convictions, expect to win the confidence of the nation.—London Advertiser (Reform).

CELABRATING A DEFEAT.

Mr. Mowat has suffered a crushing defeat, and his supporters are going to celebrate the event as a victory. It reminds us of Napoleon sending orders to Paris to celebrate his victories and to chant te deums while he was on his retreat from Moscow.—Hamilton Spectator.

INJURING CANADA.

At present the influence of the Globe is wielded in a manner which it at once injurious to the party for which it pretends to speak and damaging to the best interests of Canada abroad. On this point there is some very reliable an very late testimony.—Montreal Herald (Ref.).

WHERE ARE THEY?

What has become of all the bloated sugar monopolists? We were told that sugar under the National Policy would become so high in price as to be almost beyond reach of the poor, and yet the luxury can be obtained at any grocery in town for six cents per pound. Can some of our free trade friends tell us when it was as cheap under their jug-handled free trade tariff.—Woodstock Times.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD

The Premier's Fortieth Year in Public Life.

Sir John Macdonald has now been forty years in public life, during the greater part of which he has swayed the destinies of this country. It is proposed that a career so eventful—so big with the fortunes and fate of Canada—shall not be permitted to close without a suitable acknowledgement of the great and lasting services rendered by Sir John to the Canadian people; and that the testimonial should be so shaped that all, irrespective of politics, should share in its development and success. We hope that this intention will be carried into effect. No man deserves better than Sir John such a manifestation of national appreciation and gratitude, as no man has laboured so unselfishly for the public weal; and the history of this great country will do him justice long after all that is mortal of him has mingled with its mother earth. Sir John Macdonald, like all men, has his faults; but his desires to advance the interests and promote the prosperity of Canada has never been questioned. While others were accused of an itching palm, Sir John's purity in this respect has never been doubted; and this singular freedom from sordid and corrupt motives it is which commands the respect of even his political opponents. Let the fortieth year of his public life, then, be marked by such an outpouring of heartfelt gratitude and respect as will convince Sir John Macdonald that the sacrifices he has made for his country have not been unnoticed, but are remembered and appreciated by Canadians, ever willing, ever anxious, to give honour to whom honour is due.

FOUR DAYS ON A RAFT.

Terrible Sufferings of Four Sailors on the Lake.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 1.—A Muskegon, Mich., spacial says the crew of the wrecked schooner, W. W. Brigham, were picked up in mid-lake on Thursday by the schooner Walter Smith, and landed here yesterday. The unfortunate men tell a terrible story of their experience. The names of the men are Jas. O'Leary, Patrick Powers, Richard Bird and Edwin Anderson. The Brigham left here last Saturday for Chicago, loaded with lumber. When she reached mid-lake a violent storm arose, and the schooner nearly swamped. The men stood at the pumps nearly all night, during which time the storm increased. At about 10 o'clock on Monday the Brigham capsized, turning completely bottom up. The men clambered upon the floating lumber and with the aid of a piece of rope made a temporary raft. Every sea swept over them, and their sufferings cannot be told. Hunger and sleep pressed them at times, but the men were fighting for life and thought only of clinging to the raft. Tuesday dawned without succour, and it passed so slowly that it seemed an eternity to the half-famished men tossed about on the waves. A vessel was seen, but the only signal they had, an old oil coat, failed to attract attention. Another weary night and Wednesday dawned upon the third day of the raft without any better prospects. On Thursday morning the schooner Walter Smith, bound from Muskegon to Highland Park, rescued the shipwrecked crew. Capt. Smith noticed some objects on the water which he took to be human beings, and bore down on them. Aid came in the nick of time, for the suffering sailors could not have held out much longer. They are here destitute.

Highway Robbery in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Sept. 1.—As Mr. Ward, steward of the Metropoiltan Club, was proceeding to his home along Craig street, one of greatest thoroughfares of the city, about 11 p.m. on Saturday, he was attacked in the vicinity of the Viger gardens by two highwaymen who knocked him down and committed a murderous assault on his prostrate and unconscious body. They then stole his valuable watch and chain with all the money he had in his possession and made good their escape. Singular to say the bruised and bleeding victim was allowed to lie on the sidewalk almost dead until after one o'clock when the policemen on the boat came to his assistance. The gentleman was still in a state of unconsciouesness, but soon came to again and was taken home. He remained in bed in a perilious state, being attended by medical men, who believe he has received dangerous injuries, international as well as externally.

A Tramp Burned in a Barn.

BARRIE, Sept. 1.—Last night the barns of Mr. Geo. Ball, of Kempenfeldt, just at the eastern suburbs of the town, were discovered to be on fire. The occupants of the house were unable to stay the flames, which had made considerable progress before being noticed, and the buildings and contents were entirely consumed. A stranger in the person of a hard-looking tramp was noticed in the vicinity, and on being questioned admitted that he and two companions had been having an orgie in the hay loft, which took fire when one of them proceeded to light his pipe. When asked where his chums were, the man said, "Well, one of 'em's some miles off by this time. I guess the other feller's in among the flames—at least what's left of him." Sure enough the story was true, the charred remains of a human body being found among the embers after a short search.

The British Association.

The proceedings of the British Association on Monday were confined to the reading of papers in the different sections. In the Mechanical Science Section, Mr. W. Smith, Deputy Minister of Marine, read an interesting paper on the light-house system of Canada, showing that the cost of maintaining the service was provided, not by a tax upon shipping, as in Europe, but by a direct charge upon the revenue of the country.

The Leading Rewards are Lot 50 x 150 at Toronto Junction, Pianos, Organs, Sewing Machines, Gold and Silver Watches, Silver Tea Sets, &c.

The proprietor of the Ladies Journal now announces a magnificent list of rewards for correct answers to Bible questions. It is surprising how little is known of the Bible. The questions are not so difficult this time as last, and we should be glad if there was a hearty response so as to encourage the proprietor of the Journal to persevere in his good work. It was announced in the June issue of the Ladies' Journal that the competition which closed last month would be the last for the present, but it has been decided to try one more.

All money must be sent by post office or express. No information will be given to any one more than is stated here. So send on answers, and don't waste time writing. Do not send postage stamps unless six cents is added for the discount. Remit by postoffice order, scrip or small coin.

THE BIBLE QUESTIONS:

1.—Is Diamond referred to in the Bible? If so, state first reference.

2.—Is Emerald made mention of in the Bible? If so, state first reference.

3.—Is Sapphire spoken of in the Bible? If so, state first reference.

These all refer to the precious stones.

Now, any one having a knowledge of the Scriptures ought to be able promptly to answer these questions with a little study, and so secure some one of those rewards. Bear in mind every one competing must send FIFTY CENTS with their answers for which the Ladies' Journal will be sent one year to any address. If you answer each of the questions correctly and your answers are in time you are sure to secure one of these costly rewards.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

MR. KIDD, HEAD MASTER OF THE SOUTH WARD SCHOOL, RESIGNS HIS POSITION.

Communications and Accounts — Public Schools' Inspector's Report — Trouble with the Janitor—The Chairman of the Property Committee Resigns.

A regular meeting of the Board of Education was held on Tuesday evening.

PRESENT,—Mr. Jas. Stevenson, Chairman, and Messrs. Cox, Dumble, Sawers, Kendry, Wrighton, Denne, Errett and Rutherford.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

INQUIRIES.

Mr. SAWERS asked if the Chairman of the Property Committee had resigned.

Mr. ERRETT said that the matter would come up at the proper time.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following accounts were received and referred to the Finance Committee :—

REVIEW Printing Co.....$ 2 50
W. O'Connor, attendance at entrance examination..... 30 00

The following communications were read :—

From W. R. Kidd, tendering his resignation, in accordance with the school by-law No. 53.—Committee on Appointments.

From Josie Ellsworth, requesting an appointment, should any vacancy occur in the Public Schools.—Committee on Appointments.

From the Boiler Insurance Company of Canada, asking that the boiler belonging to the Collegiate Institute be prepared for inspection.—Received.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

Mr. DUMBLE said that Mr. J. Stratton, Inspector of Public Schools, had requested him to present the following report :—

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education :

GENTLEMEN,—At the close of the last term I withheld a report in order that I might be better able to give full particulars of the result of the examinations, but the Department of Education has not furnished me with their decision on the papers submitted to the Central Board of Examiners. I am not therefore able to state the number that succeeded. Dictation was to many a difficult subject; the paragraph given was really difficult for children. The very large number of candidates required three examiners, each of whom would have his peculiarities of distinctness; and this may have had, indeed I think had, something to do with some of those who failed in that subject. For all the other subjects the marks taken were very fair.

I may here state that I think the Board would do well to take into consideration the propriety of charging a fee for the entrance examinations, as the expenses attending it are increasing, owing to the very large number of candidates, many of whom do not hope to succeed, thus causing an increase of labor on the examiners, and a consequent increase of cost to your Board. It took fully fifteen days to get through the papers this year, and this, with the cost of stationery, etc., is no inconsiderable sum, amounting to nearly $1 per candidate. The matter is, however, in your hands.

Taking into consideration the ages of the pupils, the advances made in the different divisions is fully up to reasonable expectation, except in penmanship. I hope to see more attention given to this subject. I visited all the rooms at the opening and I find them filled almost to their seating capacity everywhere.

For the West Ward School the average of those present would be fifty for each room. For Miss Hall's room about sixty. The desire was to divide the number as equally as possible, but this cannot always be done if proper classification of pupils be maintained.

For the South Ward School the average of those present was between 46 and 50, but an increase in the rooms was expected. A few brushes are needed for this school.

After enquiry no complaints of any kind were made.

During the recess Mr. Errett procured some new seats for some of the primary divisions, and had them put in position. They are a decided improvement on the old ones, and are much better arranged as to the distance apart for small children. The old ones were set so far apart that the children had to lean their bodies over to write on them. This evil has to a large extent been remedied in the new arrangement.

I have no changes to propose at present.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
J. STRATTON.

The report was adopted.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE.

Mr. ERRETT, Chairman of the Property Committee, then made a verbal report. He stated that the room in which they were had been reseated, also another one in the same building. The seats in the room for the preparatory class had been rearranged and the walls calcimined and the room well fitted up. The removal of the Collegiate Institute classes to the small building had made it necessary that there should be an interchange of the seats. The flues in the chimneys did not draw satisfactorily. Mr. Tighe, the Janitor, had not done his duty. He had told the carpenters that Mr. Errett had no power to engage them and that they should look out for their pay. When ordered to clean the yard and pile up the wood he had refused to do so. He then tendered his resignation as Chairman of the Property Committee.

THE JANITOR.

Mr. ERRETT moved, seconded by Mr. COX,—That Messrs. Dumble, Kendry, Stratton and the mover be a Committee to enquire into the charges made against the Janitor as to his insubordination, impertinence and neglect of his duty and to report to this Board at its next meeting.

The motion was lost on the following division :—

YEAS.—Messrs. Errett, Cox and Rutherford.—3.

NAYS.—Messrs. Dumble, Sawers, Kendry, Wrighton and Denne.—5.

Mr. RUTHERFORD asked for further information regarding the charges laid against Mr. Tighe.

Mr. WRIGHTON moved, seconded by Mr. COX,—That Mr. Tighe be heard.

Mr. TIGHE said that there was not a particle of truth in the report. In answer to the Chairman of the Property Committee he said that he would move in the wood when he had time. Dr. Tassie had told him that the wood was no inconvenience where it was. He had asked Mr. Wrighton for instructions, but he had declined to interfere.

Mr. WRIGHTON said the wood was all right where it was, that it was green wood and that it would dry much more quickly outside than inside.

Mr. KENDRY said as the wood was soft it would not dry inside. It was not necessary to take it in at once. It would be horse work to take it in this hot weather.

Mr. ERRETT said that the wood which caused the annoyance was in the little yard, and that there would be no horse work taking it in.

Mr. DUMBLE agreed with Mr. Errett that the yard should be cleared.

Mr. SAWERS said that Mr. Errett wanted more than ordinary powers, and that he did not believe in one man doing the whole work of the committee.

Mr. ERRETT said that he had always treated the members of the committee with respect and that he had always worked hard and done his duty.

Mr. DUMBLE said that such disagreement would bring the Board into disgrace.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

Mr. COX gave notice that he would move at the next meeting the following motions :—

That the by-law No. 53 referring to the engagement and dismissal of teachers be so amended that it read "one" month's notice shall be given instead of "three" month's notice.

That as a saving of from two to three hundred dollars can be made by engaging a lady teacher for the preparatory department and as by such an engagement a long felt want would be supplied, that Mr. McKee be notified that his services will be needed till the 1st of Jan. only.

THE STAFF.

The CHAIRMAN stated that the members of the staff had commenced teaching, and that in his opinion they were efficient and energetic men.

The Board then went into a Committee on Appointments to consider Mr. Kidd's resignation.

KEENE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

THE RIFLE.—On Saturday a team from the Hastings company came to Keene and contested with six of the Keene company by shooting at the target. F. H. Hall, of Hastings, was unable to attend, and the average made by the five of that team was counted as his score. The Keene company won the match by 21 points, but a score of 2, made by Ass't-Surg. O'Gorman and of 5, made by Corpl. Breakind, were made by slanting shots. Not a little amusement was caused by Capt. Howard, who, when firing at the 200 yards' range, struck the 400 yards' target. The score was as follows :—

HALIBURTON.

TAN BARK.—Mr. Conway has bought 200 cords of tan bark for delivery at Ingoldsby station. He is buying tan bark at all points on the Haliburton end of the line. This is the first year that tan bark has been purchased north of Kinmount.

WOOD FOR PULP.—Several contracts have been made for basswood for the pulp mills at Fenelon Falls. It is estimated that these mills will annually consume 2,000 cords of peeled basswood. The pulp is shipped to the paper mills at Napanee, the material having been used up for 20 miles around that neighborhood. Latterly they had to pay $3.50 a cord, at Napanee, for basswood.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

SELWYN.

NO NAME.—We received this week a communication from Selwyn, but as the writer did not furnish us with his name, we must, in accordance with the well known newspaper rule, withhold it from publication.

Farm Laborers.

Good hands will commonly accomplish as much in the ten hours as in a longer period, as they will be willing to work more diligently and continuously, and with less weariness; and if much additional time is added in doing the moderate labor of chores, they will want a little extra pay. There are some laborers who will try to secure as much pay with as little work as possible; such men are not often profitable. And there are some employers who try to make sharp bargains out of laborers, which is not advisable. A good hand will work better if he feels that he is fairly compensated.

There are also men of principle, honorable in their dealings generally, who habitually overwork their servants. Said a man to me: "A is honest as the day, but I don't like to work for him; he over works me half or three quarters of an hour every evening; he would scorn to reach into my pocket and take a dime, but he will take it from me in work with not as much as a thank-you." If there were a storm coming, or any necessity for it, I would willingly over work to save his crop; but he does it simply to get all he can for his money, thinking it that much clear gain!

Sometimes in the press of work a farmer will habitually take in a tramp to work for a trifle, or perhaps only his board. Be very sure he means to have wages of some kind when he departs, which will in all probability be in one or two days, in company with a purse, a suit of clothes, the family silverware, or possibly, what is of far more value, as in a recent occurrence, the honor of a member of the family. A fearful price to pay for only a few weeks' work!—a young life blighted forever. You may think: "No tramp can outwit me—I shall keep an eye on him." The chances are ten to one that in your hurry and preoccupation Mr. Tramp will have made himself so agreeably useful that in a few days you will have forgotten all about your suspicions, which gives him the very opportunity he has been seeking, and he quickly takes advantage of it. You awake to a realizing sense that tramps seldom furnish desirable help.

NO MATTER how hurrying harvest work may be, neither the farmer nor his help should tax themselves so as to induce sickness. There is enough labor-saving machinery to make overworking unnecessary, and it is better to hire an extra man or two for a few days than to put all the labor on to a few hands.

IF WHEAT is to follow oats or barley the sooner after harvest the land is ploughed the better the chances for a good seed bed. No matter how dry the soil may be at ploughing time, every fall of rain, however slight, will moisten the upturned surface. On the un-ploughed land the heaviest rains will run off without doing much good TARRING SHEEP'S NOSES is not a very difficult operation, as the sheep will do it themselves if their salt is given in a dish well smeared with tar. It is excellent to keep off the fly which deposits itseeg in the nose, and cause the maggot in the sheep's head the next winter or spring.

It is the best known remedy for Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin, as also for all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood, such as Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, and Scrofulous Catarrh.

DEAR SIRS,—I ought to have acknowledged lone ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants tell us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

Believe me, dear sir, gratefully and faithfully yours.

Market and Sell Early!

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one of the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone. * * * * *

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer"

The above we clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its common sense points. Alexander has already marketed and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexanders. Call and be convinced.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Driving Park.

Several of our fast 'cyclists have entered for the bycicle race at to-morrow's opening of the Driving Park. A close and exciting contest may be expected.

No Dogs Allowed.

As dogs invariably have a tendency to rush towards the horses, and sometimes spoil a race when it is being run, the Driving Park managers have resolved to allow no canines inside the gate at any time.

Peck's Bad Boy.

The Peck's Bad Boy Company gave a performance at Bradburn's Opera House on Tuesday night. Judging from the applause given the play was very humorous and the characters well taken.

Property Committee.

A meeting of the Property Committee of the Board of Education was held on Tuesday night after the regular business of the Board was completed. Mr. Wrighton was elected Chairman in place of Mr. Errett, resigned.

Big Pig.

Mr. G. W. Mathews received yesterday over the Grand Trunk, a pig of huge dimensions. It was purchased at Lorenville Junction and it weighed 680 pounds. This pig will dress nearly three barrels of pork, and cost more than $10. Mr. Sullivan, of Douro, can you beat this?

The Prize Paddle.

The paddle offered as a prize to the best illuminated canoe on Tuesday evening's parade is on exhibition at Mr. G. Rubidge's tobacco store. It is of a handsome design, is made of bird's-eye maple, and is manufactured by the Ontario Canoe Company.

Vital Statistics.

The number of births, marriages and deaths in the town of Peterborough during the month of August, as registered at the office of Mr. C. D. Macdonald, Town Clerk, were as follows:—

Births	16
Marriages	3
Deaths	7

Deserves Credit.

Mr. James McNamara has the credit of building the best turntable on the line of the Canada Pacific Railway. Mr. Manager Van Horne pronounces that at Havelock, built by Mr. McNamara, to be the best he has seen either on his own road or any other. Score another for Peterborough.

Lindsay Canoeists.

An excursion has been arranged which will run by way of boats from Lindsay to Chemong Lake Park on the 11th September. The Lindsay Canoe Club have been invited to compete in the canoe races in the Chemong Lake regatta, and it is expected that representatives will accompany the excursionists. We hope to see our Peterborough canoeists bring back their share of the cups and medals.

Asinine.

The Mexican donkey belonging to to the Peck's Bad Boy Company was tied securely in the stable of the Oriental Hotel on Tuesday night. This morning the groom went to the stable and found the donkey—missing. A search was made and the emblem of stupidity was found about 9.30 o'clock quietly grazing on the roadside to the west of the town. The groom says that some person must have led the donkey away, as he would not move from the stable unaccompanied.

Matrimonial.

At St. Peter's Cathedral on Tuesday Mr. Edward Martin, of Bradford, Penn., and Miss Mary Kelly, sister of Councillor Thomas Kelly, were united in matrimony. The ceremony was performed by His Lordship Bishop Jamot, assisted by the Rev. Father Conway. The popularity of the bride was shown by the very handsome and valuable presents she received from her friends. The happy couple depart this evening, and after visiting friends in the west, will go to Bradford. They will take with them from Peterborough many heartfet wishes for their welfare, in which we join.

CANOE PARADE

The Illuminated Boats Make a Pretty Sight on the Lake.

The illuminated canoe parade on the Little Lake on Tuesday evening, under the unspices of the Boating Club, was fairly successful in the number of canoes on the water, and it certainly was a very pretty sight. A large number of people lined the shore on Burnham's Point and the Fire Brigade Band, which took a position on the point, rendered several excellent selections. The "Dream Faces" appeared to please their audience the best, as when the members of the band lowered their brass instruments and used their vocal organs the crowd gathered closely around them.

Shortly after 8 o'clock boats began to shoot out of the viver into the lake, illuminated, some of them very brilliantly, with Chinese lanterns. There were in all about twenty boats with illuminations, but there were others who, it might be presumed, "loved darkness better than light." Opposite to Burnham's Point, on Crescent street, a bright fire was lit, which threw its light over the lake.

The canoes were brought together near the point, and they then, having received the word of command, moved down to the Cemetery Point in single file. They then wheeled to the north, and returned up the lake with a serpentine movement. "Fall in two and two," was the order next given, and in this order they again went around the lake. When they arrived opposite to where the band was standing, the boats moved around in a circle for some time, and then crossed the lake again. The sight was a beautiful one all through, and was enjoyed by all, the music of the band adding greatly to the pleasure of the occasion. One canoe, which was brilliantly illuminated, contained a company of vocalists, but they unfortunately did not commence to sing until the greater number of the spectators had left the point.

It is expected that this will be the last parade of the season, and it was a successful one.

TIRED OF LIFE

A Man 55 Years Old Seeks a Watery Grave in the Otonabee.

This morning at about 7:30 a small boy named George Phillips was coming over the Otonabee bridge from Ashburnham to Peterborough. When near the Peterborough side he carelessly looked into the water and to his surprise he saw the form of a man in the bottom of the river. He ran to the adjacent woollen mill and told Mr. Wilson what he had seen. Mr. Wilson came out and a crowd soon gathered. W. Gibbs obtained a pike pole and drew the body to the shore. He was recognized to be a man named Malcolm Maitland, who kept for some time past a pea nut stand on the corner of Hunter and George streets. His coat, vest and hat were found on the north side of the bridge lying in a heap close to the water.

Maitland was seen going towards Ashburnham on Tuesday night at dusk and it is surmised that he went to the edge of the river, quietly took off his clothes, and jumped in.

The appearance of the body, which is covered with sawdust and other dirt, seems to confirm this supposition. No cause is given for his strange conduct. Some persons think that he was laboring under mental aberation. The body was removed from the water by Mr. D. Bellgbem and taken to his late residence.

A few years ago Maitland met with a severe accident in a mill and has since been unable to do any heavy work. He tried to make a livelihood by such work as he was able to perform, and this summer, having received the permission of the Council, he started a peanut stand on the street. He appeared to be industrious and to do all he could to get along.

The funeral will take place from his late residence on London street to the Little Lake Cemetery at 10 o'clock to-morrow.

BASE BALL.

The Silver Stars and the Cricketers Play a Friendly Game.

A base ball match between a team composed of cricketers and a Silver Star team was played on the Ashburnham grounds on Tuesday. The cricketers went first to the bat and scored two runs and the Stars followed with eleven. The game was not as evenly contested as was expected, the cricketers evidently finding that catching in base ball is slightly different from catching in cricket. The batting of the cricketers was also deficient. There occurred, however, a number of laughable incidents during the match which the moderate attendance appreciated. The play commenced at 4 o'clock and only four innings were played. As will be seen by the following score the Silver Stars won the match by one innings and ten runs. The following is the score:—

	1st.	2nd.	3rd.	4th.
Silver Stars	11	14	5	—	30
Cricketers	2	3	1	14	20

Number of runs in favor of the Stars . . 10

To the Ladies.

The managers of the Driving Park wish to intimate to the ladies of Peterborough that everything will be conducted in a strictly decorous manner at the opening of the Driving Park to-morrow, and that all those who attend may rely on seeing interesting races without hearing any obsere language.

Personal.

Mr. Joseph Blakeley, Inspector of the City of London Fire Insurance Company, is at the Oriental.

Mr. W. H. Doran, the affable agent of the Prescott Brewing Company, is in town.

Mr. A. R. Kidd, Reeve of the Township of Dummer, was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. Robt. J. McCallum, for many years a resident of this town, left, with his family, on Monday morning for Avarapois, Indiana, where he has secured a lucrative position in the mercantile business. Mr. McCallum's friends will all join in wishing himself and family a prosperous future.

Owing to the large variety of school books mistakes are unavoidable, but Sailsbury & Co. gladly rectify any made by them.

A Novel Notice.

A lacrosse match will be played to-morrow at Cobourg between the Independents, of Whitby, and the Cobourgs, of Cobourg. The following are a couple of original stanzas, penned by Mr. G. M. Stephens, secretary of the Cobourg Club, which perhaps will prove not uninteresting to our crossemen:—

Awaik, awl ye loveyers and friends of Lacrosse,
Or matches we're maiking will end in a lóss!
Plees harckin hoo unto this game are attached!
Independents off Whitbee and Kobourgs R matched!
And Thursday, September the fourth, iz the day,

If it Were Possible

To get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring debility, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medical value than any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking the Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as the people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so often humbugged by the week decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make the people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by those unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

There is nothing grows, or is made, on the face of the earth to make one feel like work or play, to aid digestion, clear our liver, regulate our bowels, like Zopesa. Ask J. D. Tully.

GOODNESS

Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

Springless Truss and Supporters

PROF. G. W. HOTCHKIN

Will visit the following places again:—

LINDSAY—Benson House, Sept. 26th, 27th and 28th.

PETERBOROUGH—Daly's Grand Central Hotel, Sept. 29th and 30th.

Prof. Hotchkin's treatment is practical, rational and economical. Its object is immediate relief and eventual cure. It is based on scientific principles and easily demonstrated to the comprehension of every intelligent person, that a truss without steel springs or hard substance, having healed Inguinal and Umbilical as well as Varicocele, at the advanced ages respectively of from 65 and 95 years, must and will stand the test against all Spring Trusses to children as well as adults. Prof. Hotchkin having had 30 year's experience has become master of his profession, and defies the Hernia he cannot hold in its place.

Prof. Hotchkin has invented an apparatus to hold the piles in their proper place, which has been as successful as his other inventions. Go and see for yourselves.

FENELON FALLS.

THE FASTEST YET.—On Tuesday, Aug, 26th Mr. Alexander Truax, of Somerville, performed the gigantic feat of binding 232 stooks of oats, 12 sheaves to the stook, on Mr. John Graham's farm near Sturgeon Point in the township of Fenelon. Beat this who can.

HAULED UP.—It took a good deal of explanation to make the Greek laborers in the canal understand the nature and object of the poll tax; and when the first difficulty was overcome another arose from their deeply rooted objection to parting with their money. They thought, or pretended to think, that an exception ought to be made in their favor on account of their being foreigners, and finally some of them said that they would pay one dollar and no more. The collector, having no authority to effect any such compromise, at last took two of them before the magistrate; and when they found that they must either pay the full amount or go to jail, they gave up the contest and produced the required two dollars.—Gazette.

CAMPBELLFORD.

LIMB BROKEN.—Our townsman, Mr. Hugh Gibb, has had the misfortune to break his arm just below the elbow. A slip on a plank did the mischief.

SALE OF CHURCH PROPERTY.—The Trustees of the Methodist Church have sold the M. E. Church in this village to the Baptists. The price was $2,000, about one third of which was paid down, and the balance to be paid in three years. Five good men of Seymour have become security for the unpaid amount.—Herald.

LOOK, READ AND DIGEST.

Dr. M. Souvielle & Co.

Dr. N. Washington, of the above firm, will visit Peterborough, Caisse House, September 3rd and 4th, where all who are afflicted with catarrh, catarrhal deafness, bronchitis, asthma, and consumption, can do so free of charge. The Dr. has just returned from an extended trip to the Lower Provinces and the United States, where he has visited all the leading hospitals, and, having returned, will introduce into the treatment any important discovey, in addition to what has been used by the company. A reduction has been made in the price, to enable all who are desirous to obtain the treatment, to get it. Spirometers, Respirators, Atomizers and Pneumotometers, &c., are used to convey cold medicated vapor to the seat of disease directly. Come early; only 2 days. A golden opportunity is now at hand of consulting an eminent and distinguished specialist. Consultation free.

"Gath" on Canada.

BUFFALO, Sept. 1.—George Alfred Townsend, who has achieved considerable notoriety as a correspondent, lately visited Canada, and has published notes on his trip. Speaking of the Canadian Pacific railway, it is he says to-day the great feature of Canada, next to the St. Lawrence river. For devising that work Sir John and his Ministry were turned out of power; but in a few years the Canadian people found that putting in men who were nothing but Reformers, and turning out men of ideas and physical capacity, was a folly, so they brought Sir John Macdonald back and he raised the money for this road, which is now an accomplished fact from Montreal to the Pacific, possibly excepting a small link which will soon be supplied. That road has made Canada a stable attachment of the British crown, while not to have built it would have shaken the elements of the Dominion to pieces.

The British Association.

The British Association closed its labours at Montreal on Wednesday. On behalf of McGill University, Principal Dawson conferred the degree of LL.D. upon a number of the Montreal members of the Association. Among the votes of thanks passed was one to the Dominion Government for the aid and support it had given in promoting the meeting. The Association then adjourned to meet in Aberdeen in 1885.

AH! We get up feeling badly, didn't rest good, don't want breakfast, no appetite, no energy, bad taste and breath, guess we are bilious. Two doses of Zopesa will tone up our liver and our ambition, and set us right. Ask J. D. Tully.

Tree Planting in the Northwest.

One of the measures before the Northwest Council, now in session, is the introduction of an ordinance providing for the encouragement of those who will undertake the work of planting out trees on the prairies, both for the purpose of raising timber belts on such portions as are of little value for cultivation, and to create wind-breaks around homesteads and along the roadsides for shelter and shade. In either case it is most desirable that the encouragement to be given should be of a liberal nature. There is nothing, we believe, in either the climate or the soil to militate against success, except that the varieties of trees to be tried should be those best adapted to exposure. The experiment need not be a costly one, and a beginning might be made by planting out those sorts that are indigenous to the country or to localities with a winter climate equally as cold.—Calgary Herald.

American Forestry Congress.

THE BRIBERY CASE.

THE collapse of the case for "the Crown," which in this case means Mr. Mowat and his colleagues, before the Commission appointed to investigate the bribery charges, would be laughable, if it had not a serious aspect. When the Commission held a session in July last, Mr. S. H. Blake, Q.C., the counsel for the Government, asked for an adjournment on account of the absence of witnesses. One of these was Sir David Macpherson, Minister of the Interior, whom Mr. Blake considered to be an important witness, and who was then in the Old Country. On Monday Sir David was present and asked to be examined, but Mr. Blake evidently thought that his evidence had lost its importance and he would not call him. On Tuesday Sir David repeated his request to be examined, and protested in indignant terms against having charges made against him and then not giving him an opportunity to answer them. But Mr. Blake had no desire to hear his evidence. Mr. John Shields was another witness whose evidence was of importance at the previous session. He had been hounded by the Reform press for not being present then, and charged with keeping out of the way. On Monday and Tuesday he was present, and asked to be put in the box, but Mr. Blake did not wish to examine him either. Several other gentlemen, who had been subpœnaed, rose one after another and stated that they were ready to testify. Mr. Blake had no desire to hear any of them. After hearing the testimony of two or three officials of the Dominion Government, Mr. Blake had no more withesses to call. The reason for this is not far to seek nor difficult to discover. Mr. Blake plainly stated that his object had been to "bring the matter bome" to others besides the five persons charged. Those others were members of the Dominion Government. But, while examining the officials he had called, he found that he could not "bring the matter home" to them, as it was shown that they had had nothing whatever to do with it. Then Mr. Blake had no more witnesses. He had expected to fish out evidence on which to base the examination of the other witnesses, and he had failed. The case had collapsed.

The Commission would not admit evidence against the members of the Ontario Government unless a formal charge was made against them. Mr. Meredith formulated the charge, and the war will be carried into Africa.

The witnesses whom Mr. Blake would not hear, although they had been summoned, then took the box. Sir Davided Macpherson's statement fully exonerated him from the base insinuations that had been thrown out against him by Mr. Mowat and the press supporting him. Mr. Carnegie showed up the silliness of the attack made upon him by the Port Hope Reform organ, and his evidence and that of Mr. Creighton refuted charges made by the Reform press. Mr. Meredith's statement was frank, clear and to the point. It forced from Mr. Blake an acknowledgment of its truthfulness.

Not only has the case against the Opposition in the Legislature and against the members of the Dominion Government collapsed, but the Conservative party have vindicated their honor, and they have brought the actions of those who were the aiders and abetters of McKim and the other chief conspirators before the Commission. This session of the Commission has been disastrous for Messrs. Mowat, Pardee, Hardy and Fraser. It has been a triumph for the Opposition.

A Canadian Legend.

Another pretty Canadian legend has been discovered. The St. Maurice River derives its name from Maurice Poulain de la Fontaine] seignor of St. Maurice, who came to New France about 1650, and was appointed by the king in 1663 first Royal Attorney, and substitute of the Attorney-General, at Three Rivers. One of his descendants, Claude Poulain Cresse de Courval, when summoned to surrender his sword in 1761, said to the British officer: "Sir, a sword is not surrendered; it is taken." The story goes that the old Canadian soldier was allowed to retain his arms.—Montreal Gazette.

THE MOWAT & CO. PLOT.

THE COLLAPSE OF THE CASE FOR THE ONTARIO GOVERNMENT.

Evidence Forced upon the Counsel—The The War Carried into Africa—Denials from Members of the Opposition—Mr. Meredith's Statement—Mr. Blake Exonerates the Conservative Party.

The Commission resumed at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning. There were many prominet gentlemen present.

Mr. A. BURGESS, Deputy Minister of the Interior, said that he had accidentally met Wilkinson in the North-West in June last. Wilkinson had never been in the employ of the Department. There was some talk of his appointment to the registrarship of Edmonton. In reply to a question put by Mr. Morris, the witness stated that he first heard the talk of Wilkinson's appointment more than a year ago, about the end of May or beginning of June.

Mr. J. L. MACDOUGALL, Auditor-General, detailed the manner in which payments were made through his department. He did not know of any payments to Wilkinson except for his services as land valuator.

Mr. BLAKE then read affidavits to the effect that efforts had been made to save Wilkinson and Stimson. His object in examining into this branch of the matter was not so much to bring the matter home to the five persons charged especially in the commission as to carrying it out further. He did not know whether the Commissioners considered under the commission that they had the right or power to go beyond the matter of investigating what had been done by these five persons.

The CHAIRMAN—Are there no other witnesses to be examined?

Mr. BLAKE—No other witnesses.

Mr. MEREDITH submitted that it would not be be fair to persons who had been mentioned in connection with the alleged conspiracy, or to the public, for the enquiry to close.

Mr. MORRIS argued that the Commission had been empowered not only to investigate the charges set forth in the statements made by the Attorney General, but also all matters or things relating thereto or effecting the same.

The CHAIRMAN said that they did not take the responsibility of examining witnesses. It was for the parties interested and prosecuting to produce the evidence.

Sir D. MACPHERSON asked whether the investigation would be allowed to close without him being called. He pointed out that Mr. Blake had at the previous session asked for an adjournment mainly on account of his absence from the country, and he was now present to be examined. He referred to charges made against him, declaring them to be unqualified falsehoods, and added that he believed the man who made them, the Attorney General, knew at the time that they were falsehoods.

Mr. BLAKE in his reply, said that it had been shown that Messrs. Fraser, Hardy and Pardee, at an early period, were acquainted with the attempts to bribe, and that by one of the witnesses the Attorney General had been informed. He was present to carry out, as far as the Commission thought proper, the examination into the charges brought forward.

Mr. MCINTOSH said that he had been subpœnaed and was ready to be examined. Messrs. John Carnegie, M.P.P., D. Creighton, M.P.P. John Shields, and McGee, Clerk of the Privy Council, also stated that they were prepared to give evidence.

The CHAIRMAN said that the responsibility for resting the case must be with Mr. Blake. Any gentleman who went into the box would be heard in explaining evidence with regard to himself, but if it was intended to make a formal charge against the Government, the charge must be formulated.

Mr. MEREDITH then formulated the following charge:—

"That the members of the Government, Mr. Fraser, Mr. Pardee, Mr. Hardy and Mr. Mowat, knowing that attempts were being made to corrupt members of the House, induced members of the House to approach persons who were said to be engaged in this work for the purpose of inducing them to corrupt them, and endeavouring to entrap others who were not connected with the matter."

Sir DAVID MACPHERSON was then sworn. He related the circumstances under which he had notified Wilkinson that he would recommend him for an appointment as Registrar at Edmonton. The statement that he had promised an office for corrupt purposes, as stated by Mr. Mowat in the Legislature, was unfounded. The note he sent Wilkinson regarding his appointment was not transferable. He stated in the most unqualified manner that he knew nothing of the use of his letter and that it was wholly unauthorized by him.

Mr. JOHN CARNEGIE, M.P.P., was sworn and said he desired to answer certain questions which had been propounded to him by a newspaper published in Port Hope, the Guide. Taking up the questions seriatum, he said he had never met Messrs. Bunting, Meek, Wilkinson and Lynch together on the day on which the exposure was made, nor, indeed, at any time. The first time he had seen Mr. Kirkland to his knowledge was in the Police Court; it was therefore impossible that he had exerted himself to get a front seat in the gallery for him on the night of the exposure. He had not sent a letter to warn Lynch of the arrest of Messrs. Kirkland and Wilkinson, and he had not assisted to hide Mr. Smith. Mr. Carnegie, in the most emphatic terms, denied that he had ever heard, in a Conservative caucus, any mention of a conspiracy to overthrow the Mowat Government.

Mr. CREIGHTON, M. P. P., was sworn and stated that previous to the disclosures made in the Legislature he had no knowledge of any attempt to corrupt the Legislature. In reference to the statement reported to have been made on oath by McKim in the Police Court, regarding his having received a letter from McKim, if he (McKim) had made such a statement he had perjured himself.

Mr. C. H. MCINTOSH, M. P., sworn, stated that he had received no telegrams from Messrs. Bunting, Meek, Kirkland, Wilkinson or Stimson, and he had no correspondence with them bearing on the subject under investigation.

Mr. W. R. MEREDITH, M. P. P., was sworn. He explained why the Opposition caucuses had been held in the Mail building. The questions of the defeat of the Government and of the formation of a coalition had never been discussed at meetings of the party. No such discussion took place at any time. He never went to Ottawa or communicated with Ottawa to arrange for improper means for procuring the defeat of the Government. He went to Ottawa on the night of February 28th. He saw Sir John Macdonald and discussed the boundary question, license question and the question of the jurisdiction over railways, with the view of bringing about some kind of arrangement on the part of the Dominion for avoiding the friction that was taking place. That was the whole object of his visit, and it was the only occasion on which he had visited Ottawa. Kirkland had spoken to him in regard to his views on the timber policy of the Government, but he told him that it would be impossible to adopt his views. During this time he came across Orders-in-Council regulating the disposition of timber limits. There had been an Order-in-Council passed in December, 1882, on the recommendation of the Commissioner of Crown Lands, which provided that in what is known as the Thunder Bay District the timber limits should not be disposed of by auction, and the power was given to the Commissioner to grant timber limits without competition. The position which the Opposition took in their caucus was that no sales should take place without the Minister coming down to Parliament and obtaining its sanction. This was the position taken by the Opposition previous to the election and it was decided to re-affirm it. The statement of Mr. Mowat on the 17th of March was the first intimation which he had, directly or indirectly, that any attempt had been made for the purpose of defeating the Government. The matter came to him as a great shock. So far as Kirkland was concerned, he never said or hinted at anything which an honorable man might not say to any other honorable man. He saw Kirkland the night the statement was made in the House. Kirkland came to his room in the hotel and brought a map of the district to the north of Lake Superior, on which he had marked with a star the lots composing several thousand acres of land, granted under the order-in-council of December, 1882, to Messrs. Connolly and Thompson. He had also an unsigned contract by which these gentlemen agreed to sell these timber limits and to use their influence with the Government to secure another. Kirkland accompanied him to he House. Although he was arrested that evening these decuments, which were large and bulky ones, had not been produced. He thought that strange. So far as any attempt to bribe, either by office or by money, or to induce improperly to vote against the Government, put forward by the Opposition, he desired to say for himself that he had no knowledge or suspicion, and he did not believe that any member of the Opposition had either.

Mr. BLAKE, before Mr. Meredith left the box, said he desired to be allowed to express the pleasure he felt in listening to Mr. Meredith's statement, in the truthfulness of which he had the most implicit confidence.

Hon. ALEX MORRIS, M.P.P., was sworn and corroborated Mr. Meredith's statement.

Mr. JOHN SHIELDS stated that he had been snbpœnaed to give evidence, and had been in attendance two days, much to his personal inconvenience. If he was not going to be called he desired to be discharged from his subpœna.

HIS LORDSHIP—"If they don't desire to call you, you need not remain longer," and forthwith discharged his subpœna.

Their Lordships stated that the commission would sit again on the 2nd, 3rd and 4th of October.

TRAINS ON SUNDAY.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—I think it is time some action was taken by the public in reference to the violation of the Sabbath by the Canada Pacific Railway in running trains on Sunday. Yesterday there must have been more than half a dozen trains on the road from early morning till late at night. Now, Mr. Editor, I would ask you is this to be permitted? What rights have this corporation that the rest of the public have not? It is charged by the opponents of the Government that the Canada Pacific Railway have their own way in all matters that arise between the Railway and the Government, and that it is a grasping monopoly in the North-West. These, of course, we consider the views of political partisans, but their violations of the laws of God and man in Sabbath desecration would almost lead one to suppose they would rise superior to the law in other cases where it suited their interests. I do not know what necessity there is for this multiplicity of trains on Sunday, but once I saw in the papers that this Railway had donated $500 a year and a site for a building at North Toronto, to the Railway Christian Association, I thought it might be that the Railway desire to recoup them for their benevolence, and therefore run trains on Sunday, and keep their train hands at work the whole seven days of the week. I would suggest the formation of a society for the prevention of Sabbath desecration, and that a determined effort should be made to punish these monstrous and stupendous desecrators.

Yours,
NOT A MEMBER OF THE RAILWAY CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

The Unpatriotic Globe.

We cannot believe that the Liberal party for which the Toronto Globe professes to speak can have a desire to be identified with a policy witch strikes a vital blow at Dominion interest. The rank and file of the Liderals of the Dominion wish well to all forms of enterprise which tend to develope theres cources of Canada, promote emigration to the country, enlarge the area of commerce and provide homes within Canada itself for those young Canadians who might otherwise be attracted to the cities and prairies of the United States by the highly colored reports so industriously circulated amongst them. And can anybody tell us why, under such circumstances, the Liberal party should continue to be represented by a journal which for no good or patriotic reason, persistently assails the most available and most potent agency agency that Canada has ever known for bringing about these much desired results?—Montreal Herald (Reform).

In a Nutshell.

"Oliver," said the old lady kindly, "run over to grandma's and ask her if she will be good enough to let me have my boundary." "I won't," said Oliver. "Oliver," repeated the old lady, with some firmness in her voice, "go over to grandma's at once, and tell her I want my boundary." "I won't," repeated Oliver. The old lady quietly reached for an athletic and well-trained leather strap, and, grasping it firmly, she walked out toward the spot where Oliver was playing a little game of "now you see it and now you don't," with Robbie McKim and Johnnie Cascaden. Ollie looked up, saw fire in his mother's eye, and he nimbly jumped over the fence, ran down to his grandmother's, and returned in a few minutes with the boundary. "Mother tried to keep me from gettin' that boundary," he remarked confidentially to the boys, "but, by thunder, I was goin' to have my own way about it, and I went and got it in spite of her." And the boys lit a bonfire and marched round with wooden swords and paper hats to celebrate the victory. —Hamilton Spectator.

CHAPTER XXX.

"Could I have gone without the sight of my precious baby? I reached the convent about dusk, and informed the sisters that I deemed it best to transfer you to the guardianship of two gentlemen, one of whom would come and take you away, the ensuing week. Through a crevice of the dormitory door, I watched you undress, envied the gentle nun who gathered up your long hair and tied over it the little white ruffled muslin cap; and when you knelt by your small curtained bed, and repeated your evening prayers, adding a special petition that 'Heavenly Father would bless dear mother and keep her safe.' I stiffled my sobs in my handkerchief. When you were asleep, I crept in on tip-toe, and while Sister Angela held the lamp, I drew aside the curtain and looked at you. How the sweet face of my baby stirred all the tenderness that was left in my embittered nature! As you slumbered you threw your feet outside the cover, and murmured in your musical childish babble something indistinct about 'mother and our Blessed Lady."

"My heart yearned over you, but I could not bear the thought of hearing your peculiarly plaintive wailing cry which always pierced my soul so painfully, and I softly kissed your feet and hurried away. Come, put your arms around my neck, and kiss me, my lovely fatherless shild!"

For some seconds Mrs. Orme held her in a warm embrace.

"There, sit down. Little remains to be told, but how bitter! Here in Paris, while playing "Amy Robsart," I saw once more, after the lapse of thirteen years, the man who had so contemptuously repudiated me. Ask God for a shroud and coffin, rather than endure what I suffered that night!"

She was too much engrossed by her mournful retrospective task, to observe the deadly pallor that overspread Regina's face, as the girl rested her head on the arm of the sofa and passed her fingers across her eyes, striving to veil the image of one, beyond the broad Atlantic's sweep and roar.

"At last I began to taste the sweet poison of my revenge. Cuthbert did not suspect my identity, but he was strangely fascinated by my face—and acting. Openly indifferent to the woman, with whom his father had linked him, and provided with no conscientious scruples, he audaciously expressed his admiration, and contrived an interview, to commence his advances. He avowed sentiments disloyal to the heiress who wore his name and jewels, and insulting to me, had I been what he supposed me, merely Odille Orme, a pretty actress. I repulsed and derided him, forbidding him my presence; and none can appreciate the exquisite delight it afforded me to humiliate and torture him. When it was a crime in the sight of man, he really began to love the woman, who—in Gods sight—was his own lawful wife; and his punishment was slowly approaching."

"My health gave way under the unnatural pressure of acting evening after evening, with his handsome magnetic face watching every feature, every inflection of my voice. I was ordered to rest in Italy, and when I learned I should there meet General Laurance, I consented to go. Before leaving Paris, I saw the only child of that hideous iniquitous sham marriage; and, darling, when I contrasted you, my own pure pearl, with the deformed, dwarfish, repulsive daughter—whom the Nemesis of my wrongs gave to Cuthbert, in little Maud Laurance—I almost shouted aloud in my great exultation. You so beautiful, with his own lineaments in every feature, disowned for that mieshaped, imbecile heiress of his proud name. Oh mills of the God's! how delicious the slow music of their grinding!

"Thus far, my daughter, I have shown you all your mother's wretched past, and now I shrink from the last blotted pages. Hitherto my record was blameless, but even now take care how you judge the mother who, if she has gone astray, did it for you, all for you. For some time I had known that Cuthbert was living in reckless extravagance, that the affairs of the father-in-law were dangerously involved, and that without his own father's knowledge Cuthbert had borrowed large sums in London and Paris, securing the loans by mortgages on his real estate in America; especially the elegant homestead, preserved for several generations in his family. Employing two shrewd Hebrew brokers, I by degrees bought up those mortgages, straining every effort to effect the purchase.

"When I reached Milan, I sat one night pondering what was most expedient. It was aparent that in a suit for, and publication of my real title, and rights, I should be defeated by the disgrace hurled upon me; and to subject the Laurances to the humiliation of a court scandal, would poorly indemnify me for the horrible stain which Peterson's foul claim would entail upon your innocent but premature birth. My health was feeble, consumption threatened my lungs, and Mr. Palma urged me to attempt no legal redress for my injuries. I could not die without one more struggle to see you righted, clothed with your lawful name.

"My daughter, my darling, let all my love for you plead vehemently in my defence, when I tell you, that for your dear sake I made a desperate, an awful, a sickening resolve. General Laurance was infatuated by my beauty, which has been as fatal to his house, as his name to me. Like many handsome old men, he was inordinately vain, and imagined himself irresistible; and when he persecuted me with attentions that might have compromised a woman less prudent and prudish than I bore myself, I determined to force him to an offer of his hand, to marry him."

With a sharp cry Regina sprang up.

"Mother — not him! Not my father's father!"

"Yes, Rene Laurance, my husband's father."

With a gesture of horror the girl groaned and covered her white convulsed face.

"Mother! Could my mother—commit such a loathsome, awful crime against God, and nature?"

"It was for your sake, my darling!" cried Mrs. Orme, wringing her hands, as she saw the shudder with which her child repulsed her.

"For my sake that you stained your dear pure hands! For my sake that you steeped your soul in guilt that even savages abhor, and loaded your name and memory with infamy? In his desertion my father sinned against me, and freely, because he is my father, I could forgive him; but you—the immaculate mother of my lifelong worship, you who have reigned white-souled and angelic over all my hopes, my aspirations, my love and reverence. O mother, mother! you have doubly wronged me! The disgrace of your unnatural and heinous crime I can never, never pardon!"

With averted head she stood apart, a pitiable picture of misery—that could find no adequate expression.

"My baby, my love, my precious daughter!"

Ah, the pleading pathos of that marvellous voice which had swayed all the emotions of large audiences, as soft, fitful zephyrs stir and bow the tender grasses in quiet meadows!

Slowly the girl turned around, and reluctantly looked at the beloved beautiful face, tearful yet smiling, beaming with such passionate tenderness upon her.

Mrs. Orme opened her arms and Regina sprang forward, sinking on her knees at her mother's feet, clinging to her dress.

"You could not smile upon me so, with that sin soiling your soul! Oh mother, say you did it not!"

"God have mercy, and save me from it."

"Let us praise and serve him forever, in thanksgiving," sobbed the daughter.

"I see now that my punishment would have been unendurable, for I should have lost the one true, pure heart that clings to me. How do mothers face their retribution. I wonder, when they disgrace their innocent little ones, and see shame, and horror, and aversion in the soft faces that sleep upon their bosoms and once looked in admiration at the heaven of their eyes? Even in this life, the pangs of the lost must seize all such."

"I did not marry Gen. Laurance, though I entertained the purpose of a merely nominal union, and he acceded to my conditions, signing a marriage contract, to adopt you, give you his name, settle upon you all his remaining fortune, except the real estate, which I knew he had transferred to his son. I think my intense hate and thirst for vengeance, temporarily maddened me; for certainly had I been quite sane, I should never have forced myself to hang upon the verge of such an odious gulf. I was tempted by the prospect of making you the real heiress of the Laurance name and wealth, and of beggaring Cuthbert, his so-called wife and crippled child, by displaying the mortgage I held; and which will yet sweep them to penury, for the banker has failed, and Abbie Ames is penniless as Minnie Merle once was.

"While I floated down the dark stream to ruin, a blessed interposing hand arrested me. Mr. Palma wrote that at last a glorious day of hope dawned on my weary starless night. Gerbert Andre was alive and anxious to testify to the validity of my marriage, and the perfect sanity and sobriety of Cuthbert when it was solemnized (his father was prepared to plead that he was insane from intoxication when he was inveigled into the ceremony);—and oh—better, best of all, my persecutor had relented! Peleg swore that his assertions regarding my character were untrue, were prompted by malice, stimulated by Laurance gold. Having been arrested by Mr. Palma and carried before a magistrate, he had written and signed a noble vindication of me. To you he avows, I owe his tardy recantation and complete justification of my past; and you will find among those papers, his letter to me upon this subject.

"My daughter, what do we not owe to Erle Palma? God bless him—now—and forever! And may the dearest, fondest wishes of his heart be fulfilled as completely, as have been his promises to me."

Regina's face was shrouded by her mother's dress, but thinking of Mrs. Carew, she sank lower at Mrs. Orme's feet, knowing that her sad heart could not echo that prayer.

"As yet my identity has not been suspected, but the end is at hand, and I am about to break the vials of wrath upon their heads. Mr. Palma only waits to hear from me, to bring suit against Cuthbert for desertion and bigamy and against Rene Laurance, the arch-demon of my luckless married life, for wilful slander, premeditated defamation of character. My lawful unstained wifehoood will be established, your spotless birth and lineage triumphantly proclaimed; and I shall see my own darling, my Regina Laurance reigning as mistress in the halls of her ancesters. To confront you with your father and grandfather, I have called you to Paris, and when I have talked with Uncle Orme, whose step I hear, I shall be able to tell you definitely of the hour when the thunder bolt will be hurled into the camp of our enemies. Kiss me good-night. God bless my child."

YOUNGS' POINT.

From Our Own Correspondent.

THE DAM.—On walking over the other day to see my old friend, Mr. Chas. Wynn, and how he was getting along with his contract, I found Mr. Rubidge, who is an indefatigable public servant, busy inspecting the works in progress, also Mr. John Dinwoodie, of Lakefield, and in his usual kind way took your correspondent around all the works in progress, and explained all in detail, and certainly when the dam is finished it will be one of the most complete one of the kind ever built in this section. From what I can gather, Mr. Wynn has met with many unforseen obstacles as he proceeds with the works that he did not calculate upon. The bed of the river is one, and also a great leakage on the Douro side, an unforseen circumstance, and have no doubt he will be entitled to extras when his work is finished. Mr. George Chambers is supplying all the timber for construction, all of which is of excellent quality. The new dam is being built several feet below the old dam.

THE SAW MILL.—Mr. Chambers has been kept very busy this season cutting all kinds of lumber, and has cut over 10,000 ties for the Messrs. Rathbun. Mr. R. Young, jr., is still the managing man in this department.

THE SHINGLE MILL.—Owing to the low water the shingle mill is at present silent for a month or so. Our old friend Coutomarch is at present working for Mr. Wynn He is an "A 1" mechanic.

THE HOTELS.—The Lakeview House is still carried on by Mr. Jas. A. Kearney, and has everything up to the mark and keeps a good table, and informs your correspondent that business has been very good this season and rowdyism on the wane, and our old friend Costello, in the new hotel built by Mr. McFarlane over a year ago, is doing well, and keeps a good house. One thing your correspondent can vouch for is that he enjoyed an excellent supper on his arrival there with an old Ashburnham friend. Both hotels I can safely recommend to all who may require such stoppage places on the route going to the four points of the compass.

THE STEAMERS.—Owing to the very low state of the water below this place the steamers Fairy and Cruiser are both located above the locks. Mr. Chambers runs a daily stage free to Lakefield, with passengers both ways for his steamer Fairy. There is quite a time here with the two steamers, a lively opposition having sprung up, and our old friend George is the boy to carry it on. C. Grylls is the same obliging master of her. Your correspondent was invited to a sail as far as Burleigh and the head of Stoney Lake. A very enjoyable day I had, and what made it more so, was the company of the ladies on board. On our return I was invited to a very nice cup of tea, &c., in the cabin. The Fairy is a fast little steamer.

THE GRIST MILL.—This fine little flour mill is still going a head and its genial Miller, Mr. McLean, is doing a steady business, and always trying his best to please the public. We are sorry to learn that he is sorely tried with sickness in his family. He is a patient man in tribulation, and has the sympathy of all around here.

THE CROPS.—The farmers all around this section speak well of the crops they have harvested this season so far, and although wheat is very low at present in the old country, it is to be hoped something will turn up to make price good. When prices are good all kinds of business is good.

THE BRIDGE.—The general public are no doubt by this time aware, it being duly advertised in the newspapers, that we are to have a new iron bridge built across the river here—not a bit too soon—in place of the old one, which has done its service well, having been built several years ago by Mr. Jas. Chalmers. Your correspondent has often pointed out this matter in the columns of the REVIEW, call ingthe attention of the proper authorities to the desirability of having a new bridge built.

THE LOW WATER.—It is surely the fault of some one in authority that the water is so extremely low from here to Lakefield. The smell is most abominable, and unhealthy for the villagers, owing to the water having receeded so far out from the banks of the river, and nearly all the wells in the place have run dry. Cannot this state of things be remedied at an early date?

Market and Sell Early!

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one of the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone. * * * * *

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer."

The above we clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its common sense points. Alexander has already marketed and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexanders. Call and be convinced.

Daily Evening Review

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1884.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Foot Ball Practice.

It is expected that a grand turnout of the Foot Ball Club will take place to-morrow morning at six o'clock. Teams will be chosen and a game will be played.

More Pork.

Mr. Geo. Matthews received over the Grand Junction branch of the Grand Trunk on Wednesday a car load of porkers. They numbered twenty-five and were a fine lot. Sixty-five hogs were slaughtered at the pork packing house on Tuesday.

No. Two.

Forepaugh's advertising car, No. 2, is at the Grand Trunk station. It is elaborately painted on the outside, and the inside contains an engine for making paste, a handsome office and several sleeping berths. The cases for paper are filled with sheets of every discription.

The Havelock Turntable.

We have received a communication in regard to the turntable on the Ontario & Quebec Railway at Havelock, but as the writer neglected to give his name we must decline to publish it. This is a rule that should be generally known and is one we cannot break.

St. Andrew's Society Excursion.

An excursion under the auspices of the St. Andrew's Society, of Peterborough, passed over the Grand Junction branch of the Grand Trunk to Campbellford. The excursion train left the station shortly after seven o'clock this morning and was largely patronized.

Fell from a Cart.

A boy named Joe Cahill, while driving a "dump" cart at the Ontario & Quebec station on Wednesday, met with a slight accident. He was on top of the cart when a passing train frightened the horse, which plunged and reared. The boy fell from the cart and received numerous scratches and bruises.

Locating the Buoys.

Mr. R. B. Rogers, C.E., went up to Chemong Lake yesterday afternoon so as to locate the buoys. The course was measured by Mr. Rogers last winter, and he will now take the points from the shore. The course is located on a fine stretch of water and cannot be beaten in Canada. The race from the start to the finish may be viewed from the Chemong Lake Park, which is considerably elevated.

The Montreal Excursion.

A large number of townspeople departed for Montreal on the regular trains of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways. Those who patronize the Canadian Pacific may stop off on the way back and see the City of Ottawa, and those who patronize the Grand Trunk may stop off at the city of Kingston. No doubt a large number will avail themselves of the cheap rates and go on this evening's trains.

Base Ball Tournament.

It is proposed to hold a base ball tournament at Lindsay on the 14th and 17th of September. We understand that the competition will be open to all amateurs in the Province and will be governed by the National League rules. The trophy given for the first prize is an elegantly mounted silver ball, the value of which is $40. The second prize will be a handsome silver cup, valued at $25. In addition several prizes will be awarded for individual play. Now, then, "Silver Stars," there is no reason you should not enter, and if possible, bring home one of the prizes.

Hydrants.

The plans for fire protection and street watering, as deposited with the town authorities by the Peterborough Water Company, provide for thirty-two hydrants, very nearly double the present number. It is proposed to place additional hydrants on George street, from Smith to London street and from Sherbrooke street to Wolfe; on Water street, from Simcoe street to Brock street; on Hunter street, from George street to Aylmer street; and on Simcoe street, from George to Aylmer street. In addition to these there are private hydrants at St. Peter's Cathedral and at the Grand Trunk Railway Station. The necessary petitions to the Town Council are now in circulation.

A DECIDED SUCCESS.

The Concert under the Auspices of the Boating Club well Patronized.

A concert under the auspices of the Boating Club was held at Bradburn's Opera House on Wednesday evening. At two o'clock on the same afternoon the reserved seats were nearly all secured, a circumstance which alone showed that the hall would be well filled.

At eight o'clock the hall was filled with a select audience. Efficient ushers conducted those who had secured seats to their proper places and without a mistake.

At 8.30 Prof. Doucet opened the concert by giving a piano solo entitled Mozeppa. In the second part his selection was more to the taste of the audience and "Westward Ho" brought forth an enchore. Prof. Doucet responded and again received applause.

Mr. Warrington sang in the first part "Good Company" by Steven Adams. This gentleman's musical abilities do not admit of criticism. He has a high reputation and on this occasion he fully sustained it. As an encore to "Good Company" he gave "Sailing." In the second part he rendered a humorous Scotch song "Im him," and in response to an encore sang "The Boatswain." His next song was "Largo al Factotum," Rossini, from the Braber of Seville, and replied to an encore with "The Day is Done."

Miss Howden sang in the first part, "Una voce poco fu"-(Barber of Seville), and silenced loud and prolonged applause by singing "Maiden May," by Getty. Miss Howden has several times appeared before a Peterborough audience, and each time has been greeted with marked favor. She possesses a well cultivated soprano, and her high tones are exceedingly pure. She possesses also a good compass.

Then Miss Clench appeared on the stage. She was received with open arms, metaphorically speaking. Her first selection was Elgie, by Ernst. She rendered this piece with much sympathy, and tears would almost involuntarily well in the eyes of the tender-hearted. In the rendition of other selections partaking of a more vigorous character she would occasionally strike the combination that would "touch every chord and vibrate through the frame." In the second part she rendered Beethoven's "Romance in G," and was recalled by salvos of applause.

Miss Cottingham sang in her rich and deep contralto "Saved from the Storm," after which some ardent admirer threw to her a beautiful bouquet. Miss Cottingham retired, but was emphatically recalled. She appeared again and satisfied the assemblage with another song rendered in a finished style. In the second part she sang a song by Michael Watson, "The song for Me."

Mr. A. Henderson recited "The Battle of Inkerman," by Massey. The performer carried his hearers vividly back to the heartrending scenes of that bloody battle. Mr. Henderson enunciates well, he has a clear, musical voice and may rise to eminence in his profession. He recited in response to an encore "The Death of Lord Marmion," by Scott.

Miss Howden sang Gounod's "Ave Maria" with violin obligato by Miss Clench, which she was compelled to repeat.

The concert was concluded by Mr. Warrington and Miss Howden singing "God Save the Queen."

Miss Revel presided at the piano during the evening and played the accompaniments with her well known good taste.

Dictation and Spelling Books.

Another lot just received at A. L. DAVIS & Co's.

Personal.

Mr. R. J. Menzies, of Lindsay, was in town to-day.

A Handsome Bar.

Mr. A. D. Faucher has for the past few days also transformed the appearance of his bar. It is now dressed with barrels and kegs to the number of eighteen, piled one on top of another till each pyramid almost reaches the ceiling. They are all varnished and present a novel appearance.

The Weather.

The readings of the Thermometer and Barometer in Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store today were as follows:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
Nine o'clock	70°	29.22
One o'clock	81°	29.22
Three o'clock	82°	29.21

A. C. A. Flags.

Eight handsome flags, won by Mr. J. Weller at the A. C. A. Camp this year, are on exhibition at Mr. A. McNeil's Habliment Hall. Seven of the flags are of silk and satin, and are differently designed. In the center of the group is the championship flag presented to the one having the best record in sailing and paddling. It is a square silk flag edged with gold fringe. Two water nymphs are holding a wreath of leaves and the figures 1884 are set in golden stars. We are glad to see such handsome trophies brought back to Peterborough.

"Wanted Still."

That every store or house worth robbing be provided with such a contrivance that no burglar could enter any part of it without touching some spring that would immediately shoot him dead, or communicate with the police office. Some simple contrivance by which every man and woman may be able to prove whether the liquids they commonly use, such as water, milk, &c., are pure or not. An invention whereby the name of each station passenger trains stop at may be signalled at each end of the car. An automatic coupling for railway cars and locomotives which would obviate a source of danger to railway servants. Several hundred now yearly suffer death or injury in performing this operation. In case of accident the locomotive or any of the coaches to be detached while travelling. We also want every farmer, mechanic, clerk, merchant, gentleman, professional or otherwise, who are in want of a good fall suit or overcoat, to call at ANDREW MCNEIL'S and inspect his extensive stock of woollens before purchasing elsewhere. It will pay you, gentlemen!

A. C. A.

The following verses were read at the camp fire of the American Canoe Association on Grindstone Island, on the St. Lawrence River:

Can we ever forget how in eighty-four
We met on this island's wave-lapped shore?
Not as men of the pulpit, the desk, and the law,
But a host of braves, an occasional squaw.
What think the shades who nightly haunt this shore?
They say, "Who are they?" and "Great Cæsar, how the snore!"
Like fabled heroes seeking Mother Earth,
Return we mightier to the home and hearth.
We've skimmed the waters in our swift canoes,
Checkmated dyspepsia and dispelled the blues.
Laden with memories, incidents and health,
We now go back to seek the road to wealth;
With firmer grip we'll seize the mighty dollars,
And squeeze the golden eagle till she hollers;
But let us not so eagerly pursue
This golden path, that we may not be true
To this same wholesome life we've led in camp,
Approved by health restored and patented with Nature's stamp.
Let us the wind, the waves, the memories recall,
And get the proper flavor as we tell to all,
How we met by the camp fire's lurid glare,
Or sailed the moonlit sea with Gananoque's fair.
How the Canadian boatmen played and sang,
And with bold Wilkin's tones the welkin rang;
How we wondered where Vaux stores his marvellous vivacity,
Like Keely's motor, compressed in one hat's capacity;
How he murders Shakespeare and departs to snore,
As one not covered with his sacred gore,
Leaving his corpse to be restored to life,
By Dr. Russell's tones and Shylock's dreadful knife;
How the yacht idler loafing around the bay,
Rescued from watery ruin and pie kay,
An opera glass and two members of the A.C.A.;
How brigand Rogers sketches a striking view,
Or softly plays on the sweet kazoo;
How Seavey's canoe was left him in Hiawatha's will,
With lovely Minnehaha in a codicil;
How Dr. Neide was fast growing rich
By charging a dollar for badges and sich;
How the races weren't sailed and the Commodore upset,
And Hoffman, the gallant, his raiment got wet;
How Mr. Delaney who kept the hotel,
Kept that hotel so exceedingly well
That he barred his front gate and tore off his bell,
To keep off the legions that wished to dine well;
How the Knickerbockers who seldom, if ever, got left,
Practising wisely the ancient traditional thrift,
Which they from Dutch ancestors have duly derived,
Had pre-empted the claim and the honey had hived;
Defended their bread, their butter, their honor,
Against Tomkinsville foes and the hungry newcomer;
They crowded the caves and sat on the grass,
They clung to the window and pressed noses on glass,
And as each morsel disappeared from Knickerbocker throats,
What anguish now on the still air floats,
Like the cry of despairing, restless fowl,
A hungry, untuneful, ornithological howl.
These are only a few of the things that took place,
To tell more would be taxing your time and my space.
The beneficent powers in solemn conclave,
Have conspired together to honor the brave,
And the charming squaws on the famous point,
Have helped to get the times in joint.
"What shall we do to honor the brave?"
Said the beneficent powers in secret conclave;
"I'll get full," said the moon, "and I mean
That the rippling water shall dance and gleam,
And be sure that however full I may seem,
I shall manage somehow to keep on my beam."
Said the wind, "A cooling, beautiful child I'll be,
That is dandled on old mother Nature's knee;
I'm wayward and restless, but shan't be wild,
Just a lovely, uncertain, vexatious child;
I'll not raise thunder on this terrestrial ball,
But I must occasionally have my squall."
"Me," said the wave, "Oh, me and the wind intends to behave,
But that depends more on the wind than the wave;
Now boreas if you don't vex and tease,
And raise the devil and my high seas,
I'll guarantee that my lap shall be
As gentle as that of the tenderest she,
Oh, if there's any row, it's the wind, not me."
"As for me," sain the sun, "I'm always full,
For a compliment that is simply null,
But the lovely aurora an eye opener shall mix,
To beat anything this side the Styx;
Sun, moon and stars, the sea and shore,
A slice of lemon, a straw, and something more,
With lots of dew in a jewelled cup,
To their health and joy shall I drink up;
My broadest, stunningest, heartiest smiles
Shall I quaff for them on their happy isle;
You wind and waves must soothe and heal,
If I won my friends with too fervid zeal."
Oh, beautiful powers, well fulfilled,
What Heaven has sanctioned and you have willed;
Each day was a solid chrysolite,
A starry path each perfect night,
Which led to a morning's whispering breath,
That told us of life, and not of death.
Oh, friends, as down time's stream we cruise,
Will not such memories bless and sooth
Those vexed and angry days of strife
With which the happiest lives are rife?
When heavy clouds the stars have dimmed,
And with careful hands our sails are trimmed,
Look back through memory's stereoscope
And drink this solid draught of hope.

SCIENTIFIC LECTURE.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Seeing a favourable breeze has wafted so much talent to our Canadian shores, would it not be a great pity if we inlanders did not share in the benefit to be derived therefrom?

A suggestion has been made that one of the members of the British Association be asked to deliver a lecture on some popular scientific subject. Will the Lecture Committee of the Mechanics' Institute take the matter up?

Yours, &c.,

This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D., New York City.

THERE is nothing grows, or is made, on the face of the earth to make one feel like work or play, to aid digestion, clear our liver, regulate our bowels, like Zopesa. Ask J. D. Tully.

A despatch from Washington states that an Australian syndicate proposes to lay a cable from Brisbane, Australia, to San Francisco, and that the government of the Hawaiian Islands will probably grant a subsidy towards the enterprise.

SO MODEST A VIRTUE

AS

GOODNESS

Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

Springless Truss and Supporters

PROF. G. W. HOTCHKIN

Will visit the following places again:—

LINDSAY—Benson House, Sept. 26th, 27th and 28th.

PETERBOROUGH—Daly's Grand Central Hotel, Sept. 29th and 30th.

Prof. Hotchkin's treatment is practical, rational and economical. Its object is immediate relief and eventual cure. It is based on scientific principles and easily demonstrated to the comprehension of every intelligent person, that a truss without steel springs or hard substance, having healed Inguinal and Umbilical as well as Varicocele, at the advanced ages respectively of from 65 and 95 years, must and will stand the test against all Spring Trusses to children as well as adults. Prof. Hotchkin having had 30 year's experience has become master of his profession, and defies the Hernia he cannot hold in its place.

Prof. Hotchkin has invented an apparatus to hold the piles in their proper place, which has been as successful as his other inventions. Go and see for yourselves.

ABUSE OF POWER.

ONE result of the investigation before the Royal Commission at Toronto has been to disclose the fact that one the eve of the general election an order-in-council was passed with the object of permitting Mr. Mowat and his colleagues to grant timber limits to political friends without the necessity of submitting them to public auction.

The Reform administration of Ontario seems able to form no higher ideal of their trusteeships for the benefit of the people than the assumption that it is at liberty to use the propreity and power entrusted to it for its own aggrandizement and maintenance in power.

The investigation is not over yet, but already the Reformers have been placed in a very unenivable position by this intended attack upon their opponents.

THE Globe states that the rumour that Mr. McIntyre had purchased the Globe stock held by Mr. Nelson is "wholly false."

A SUCCESSFUL OPENING

RUNNING, TROTTING, BICYCLE AND FOOT RACES ALL WELL CONTESTED.

Nancy Lee Wins the Running Race—Clementi is Victorious Among the Cyclists—Fanny B Carries Off the Palm in the Trotting Race, and Morris Holds the Barlee Medal.

The Peterborough Driving Park was formally opened to the public on Thursday, 4th of September. The weather was propitious, and the track was in excellent condition. The grand stand was, to a great extent, completed, and was filled with anxious spectators. At 1.30 vehicles of every description commenced rolling down George street, and before three o'clock between 500 and 600 people had gathered inside the grounds. Considering that the opening of the Park had not been very extensively advertised either in town or elsewhere, the attendance was very numerous indeed. Messrs. Fairen & Coughlin supplied refreshments of various kinds. The judges were Messrs. Charles Stapleton, H. C. Winch and W. H. Rackham. Mr. C. L. Burgess, of New York city, acted as timer.

THE FIRST RACE

was called at five minutes past three. It was a quarter mile foot race for the Barlee medal. This medal was presented by the late George Barlee to the Boating and Cricket Clubs for quarter mile competition. Mr. Strickland won it in 1881 and Mr. Morris in 1882 and 1884. He is now the owner, having won it twice out of three. Messrs. P. Myles, J. Morris and A. Strickland entered for this race. On the start Myles forged ahead and maintained the lead until within a few yards from the winning line, when Morris gradually gained and won the race by about three feet. Time, 58 seconds.

THE HALF MILE BICYCLE RACE

was the next event on the programme. Three bikes appeared, ridden by W. Kent, C. McClelland and D. Clementi. The word was given, and a start was made and all got away fairly well. Kent took the lead and was bearing down in splendid form when his bicycle "bucked," and he was obliged to retire from the race. The rest of the ground was warmly disputed between Clementi and McClelland. Clementi won by about one foot. The winner was cheered, and the race was, perhaps, as interesting as any on the programme. Time, 2.19.

THE GENTLEMEN'S TROT.

Two entries were made for the one mile trotting race, namely, Brown Barber, owned by W. Hetherington, driven by R. White, jr., and Fannie B., owned by E. Brown and driven by himself.

In the first heat both horses came evenly to the judges' stand on the first score, and the word "go" was given. Fannie B. took the lead from the start and gradually increased it to the finish. Brown Barber frequently made slight breaks, but the driver quickly got him on his feet. Time, 3.01.

The second heat Mr. Hetherington drove Brown Barber. A good start was made, Brown Barber leading for three-fourths of the course, when Fannie B. took the lead and won by a few yards. Time, 3.03½.

THE HALF MILE RUNNING RACE.

Entries: J. E. McIntyre's Nancy Lee, ridden by W. McGreggor; W. E. Sherwood's Inglewood Maid, ridden by G. White; C. Leary's Eli, ridden by J. Newbald; W. Hopkins' Accidental, ridden by C. Stapleton, jr., and R. Redmond's Chestnut Billy, ridden by R. Redmond. On the start Accidental slightly led and held his own till the finish. 1st Accidental, 2nd Inglewood Maid, 3rd Eli, 4th Nancy Lee, 5th Chestnut Billy. Time, 59 sec.

The second heat, after a lapse of twenty minutes, was called. The five horses started, Nancy Lee slightly in advance. Chestnut Billy dropped out after a quarter mile mile run, and Eli also failed to put in an appearance at the finish. Nancy Lee outstripped her competitors and came in ahead, Accidental 2nd, and Inglewood Maid 3rd. Time, 59 sec.

When the third heat was called only three horses put in an appearance. Inglewood Maid made a brilliant start and led half way round the course, when Nancy Lee overtook her and came to the finish in good style, Inglewood Maid 2nd, Accidental 3rd.

The fourth and final heat was a repetition of the second, Nancy Lee leading from start to finish, Accidental 2nd, Inglewood Maid 3rd.

On the whole this may be considered a successful opening of the Driving Park. Everything passed off quietly and each event was contested in a friendly spirit. The attendance was select and the weaker sex, of which there was a fair sprinkling, seemed to take particular interest in the proceedings. When the grand stand is completed and other improvements which are contemplated are carried into execution no doubt the Driving Park will become a popular place of resort.

NOTES.

The new Lacrosse grounds in the centre of the Park are being considerably enlarged.

The Managers of the Driving Park will henceforth prosecute for trespass all those who are caught climbing the fence or crawling through holes.

We have to thank the Committee for their courteous treatment of the representatives of the press.

A Railway Accident.

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 4.—A pitch-in occurred on the Canada Southern this morning, a freight train going west in charge of Conductor J. Anderson, Engineer Gil. Hutchinson, colliding with the tail end of a gravel train at Cornell, as the latter was backing into the siding. Nobody hurt. Two gravel cars and any number of drawheads were demolished, and trains delayed several hours.

An Insane Spendthrift.

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—Mr. Harrold C. De Wolf, a young gentleman hailing from New York and well connected there, has been arrested here on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences. It seems DeWolf arrived in the city about a week ago accompanied by a well known operatic singer, Miss Baby Vining, whose acquaintance he made in New York. He put up at the Windsor hotel engaging rooms at $20 per day, where he lived regardless of his expense. He bought a piano, upwards of $200 worth of clothes, a large quanty of firearms and ammunition, and became acquainted with an insurance agent who insured his life for a large sum of money in the Equitable Insurance Company giving a cheque for the premium on the Park National Bank, New York. The cheque was dishonoured, as was also a draft given in payment of his board at the Windsor Hotel. He then applied to his father, Dr. De Wolfe of New York, to help him out of his trouble but the reply he got was "have no money for insane sons or their deluded victims." De Wolfe is a married man, his wife and children at present staying for the summer at Long Branch. There is little doubt but that he is insane, as every act is that of a madman. He is at present lodged in jail.

Burglars at Niagara.

NIAGARA, Ont., Sept. 3.—About 2 o'clock this morning Mr. McClelland saw a light in the post office here, which is unusual, as no one lives in the building. Supposing burglars were at work he woke Mr. Ross, who lives opposite, and then ran for Reid, chief of police. While McClelland was away Mr. Ross saw four men run away from the office. It is supposed they heard Mr. McClelland giving the alarm. The engine-house was broken into and tools stolen therefrom which were used in the post-office in attempting to get into the vault. Being discovered they left without any booty. Mr. Pafford's drug store was also visited, and an entrance gained by cutting the panels of the back door. They stole from Mr. Pafford cigars and change from the till, amounting in all to $30. It is quite clear from the manner in which they went to work that they are old hands at the business. A boat was missed off the shore this morning and found on the other side of the river. It is supposed that they crossed the river to the States.

Daily Evening Review

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1884.

THE Brockville Recorder wants a quotation from a speech of Mr. Mowat showing that he refused to refer the boundary dispute to the Privy Council. It is not necessary. On May 1st, 1872, Sir John Macdonald urged the Ontario authorities to concur in a statement of the case for immediate reference to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. They did not do so. Again, after returning to office, the reference of the question to the same tribunal was urged, but Mr. Mowat and his colleagues advocated taking forcible possession of the territory and actually attempted to thus secure it. The kept the question open in order to have an election cry, and when it was getting worn out Mr. Mowat agreed with the Attorney-General of Manitoba for the reference.

DISTORTING EVIDENCE.

SOME Reform journals are making desperate efforts to wriggle from under the ruins of their plot in connection with the alleged conspiracy, and to do so they not only suppress a great deal of the evidence given before the Commission on Tuesday, but actually distort the evidence and misrepresent what took place.

The Globe took the lead in this mean business, and the member for West Peterborough came in for a large share of the misrepresentation. On the 21st of June last the Port Hope Guide, the Reform organ in that town, asked Mr. Carnegie a number of questions regarding the alleged conspiracy, and they were extensively copied by other Reform journals of the same calibre. It dared not make a direct charge that Mr. Carnegie was connected with it, but, by publishing these questions, it meanly tried to insinuate the charges. The Guide closed its list of base insinuations with these words:—

"Mr. John Carnegie had better take the box like a man and tell what he knows about the conspiracy."

Mr. Carnegie did as requested; he took the box and told what he knew about the conspiracy—which was simply nothing, as he had no personal knowledge of it. Knowing these facts, the Globe, in its "report," says:—

"Mr. Carnegie, M. P. P., of Peterborough, walked up to the witness box next, and began reading questions to himself and answering them, just as if he was studying a lesson in geography. For instance, he asked himself—'Who drew the round-robin?' and then answered; the question, 'I never saw the round-robin, or knew anything about it, till it was produced at the meeting of the Committee.'"

As if to expose completely the depth of its own baseness, the Globe put the heading "conscience stricken," over this malicious report. Mr. Carnegie had been asked the questions, and he answered them on oath. if he had taken no notice of them—as, perhaps, would have been justifiable, considering the source from which they came—the Globe would have been among the first to state that he could not answer them. He replied categorically to each question, and the Globe affects to laugh; he exposed the malicious character and the utter falsity of the insinuations of one Reform journal, and another Reform organ misrepresents him; he proved by his statement under oath that he had been maligned, and his evidence is distorted.

But the Globe is not satisfied with the work of the reporter; it returns to the subject editorially and in its next issue says:—

"We have no doubt his (Mr. Carnegie's) answers to the general questions of the Port Hope Guide were very satisfactory to himself, but after all he cannot imagine how ridiculous the whole situation was."

In this sentence the Globe endeavors to give the impression that the questions which Mr. Carnegie answered were "general questions" and not addressed to him personally, and that, therefore, the fact of Mr. Carnegie believing they were addressed to him was ridiculous. No doubt it does appear ridiculous that such insinuations should have been made, but this is not the only instance in which Reform papers have made themselves appear ridiculous in connection with the alleged conspiracy. Mr. S. H. Blake, himself, at that very sitting of the Commission, placed himself in a very ridiculous situation by subpœnaing witnesses and then having them taunt him in their efforts to get him to examine them. It may appear ridiculous to the Globe, which knows its party so well, that anyone should take any notice of anything said by the organs of that party, but it also knows full well that if Mr. Carnegie had remained silent, opponents would not have been wanting who would have made use of the insinuations of the Guide. But he did not remain silent. He "took the box like a man" and replied to the questions on oath, and effectually silenced his traducers.

Items of Interest Taken From the September "Association Notes."

From the September number of the Association Notes, published by the Young Men's Christian Association, we take the following items:—

THE PROVINCIAL CONVENTION.

As stated in our last issue the next Provincial Convention will be held here in October; probably about the middle of the month. As no regular Convention has been held for three years, this one will be of great importance, and a large delegation will attend. The sessions will probably last from Thursday till Sunday. As we are, of course, expected to provide entertainment for the delegates while here, will any friends who can help us in this way kindly send their names to the Secretary. A list of delegates expected will be prepared as soon as possible. Prominent men in the work, both from Ontario and Quebec, are expected. The sessions will be open to the public and will doubtless be of considerable interest. We trust also the Convention will create still further interest in our work among young men. It will likewise be the means of giving our active members a better insight into the work in general than could be obtained in any other way. It is perhaps not going too far to say that a Young Men's Christian Association Convention has never been held without having been the means of much spiritual good in the town or city where it has met. And so in addition to the educational and training influence it will have, we confidently trust that believers will be quickened, and souls will be saved as the result of our entertaining the approaching Convention.

THE ART EXHIBITION.

Our Art loan Exhibition has come and gone. The efforts of the Committee resulted in the gathering together of a collection of rare and curious articles, valuable paintings and engravings. The Committee regret that the venture did not prove more profitable for the funds of the Association, the net result amounting only to $21.50.

The Association have the satisfaction of knowing, however, from the opinions expressed by visitors, that they had been able to present a treat of a high order, and that though the pecuniary result may be small, it is hoped that the sympathies of many who were then brought in contact with us may be drawn out into active operation on behalf of our Association.

The Committee desire again to thank the many friends who so kindly and willingly placed the various articles at their disposal, as also the newspapers for their notices and comments. Mr. D. B. Gardner also has the thanks of the Association for the great amount of time and effort he spent in making the exhibition a success.

A PROSPECTIVE BUILDING.

A friend of our Association, always forward in good works, has generously offered us one thousand dollars as the beginning of a Building Fund. One of the great needs of our work during the past months has been more attractive and more suitable rooms. The attractions of the billiard saloons and simjlar places are very great to such social beings as young men, even to those who have comfortable homes; and if those who take an interest in this large portion of our community wish to counteract these attractions they must provide some place as a substitute. Surely in a town that supports such a number of liquor and billiard saloons, there is capital enough to provide one place where young men can safely pass their leisure hours.

One objection to erecting a building has been made, that at first sight seems to have some weight. It is that the acquiring of more extensive quarters means increased current expenses; and that as it has been found somewhat difficult to raise the present current expenses, it will be far more so when they are increased. But the testimony of Associations that have erected buildings is, that it is far easier, with a building, to raise the increased amount necessary, than it was formerly to secure a much smaller sum. The reason of this is the Association becomes better and more favourably known, and is able to do more work.

If the promise of one or two amounts similar to that already given is received, we shall at once have a Building Committee appointed, and institute a canvas for the further amount necessary. We shall wait prayerfully for the next addition to the Fund. Whose will it be?

OUR workers are requested to take particular notice of their appointments, as no other plans will be sent out. Attention to this is necessary, in order to prevent disappointment at the hour of meeting.

NOTES.

THURSDAY, September 18th, is the date of our Annual Business Meeting for election of officers, hearing reports and other business. Every member of the Association is earnestly requested to be present. The meeting will be an interesting one.

ONE week later, Thursday, 25th September, everybody is cordially invited to attend the Public Anniversary to be held in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, granted by kind permission of the trustees. The exercises will consist of addresses by Rev. I. Tovell and Mr. T. S. Cole, Provincial Secretary. A brief report of the year's work will be presented and a collection will be taken up for the OFTEN young Christians are very desirous of doing something for their Saviour and their fellow-men. If any such young man reads this, let him come into our Association, and we will be able to give him something to do. "We are journeying unto the place of which the Lord said, I will give it you. Come thou with us, and we will do thee good," by giving you an opportunity of doing good to others. See Proverbs xi-25 and Acts xx-35.

ONE way of doing good would be to come to the Saturday night Young Men's Meeting and take part in it. This meeting is for all young men, and we hope they will feel free to speak in it, at any time.

ANOTHER good way of service is to connect yourself with the Invitation Committee work. This work has been very fruitful in other places, and no doubt will be here also, if it is faithfully done.

FINANCIAL.—Our Finance Committee are now canvassing for subscriptions, so that we may close our Association year free of debt. Any friends not yet called on who would like to aid us are kindly asked to send in their names.

SOME unknown kind friend has again beautified our rooms by the gift of flowering plants, for which we tender our grateful thanks.

THE Secretary was in Toronto on Friday, 29th August, on business connected with the approaching convention.

It was decided to hold the Convention on the 23rd to 26th October. In addition to the delegates from Ontario and Quebec, two of the secretaries of the International Committee, New York, are expected to be present.

A Deserted Ship.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Sept. 2.—Friday last, 30 miles off Catalina, Trinity Bay, the British war ship Mallard encountered the British Brig Resolven. The vessel was damaged on both sides. The side lights were burning and there was a fire in the galley stove. The sails were all set, but the head gear was gone. There was no sign of crew or passengers. The Resolven left Harbour Grace Wednesday last with a crew of nine men and four passengers, bound for Labrador. She had a general Cargo. It is thought the brig had been in collision with an iceburg, and it is feared all on board were lost.

CHAPTER XXXII.

After a sleepless night, Cuthbert Laurence sat in dressing gown and slippers, before the table, on which was arranged his breakfast. In his right had he held, partly lifted, the cup of coffee; upon the left he rested his head, seeming abstracted, oblivious of the dainty dishes that invited his attention.

The graceful insouciance of the Sybarite had vanished, and though the thirty-seven years of his life had dealt very gently with his manly beauty, leaving few lines about his womanishly fair brow, he seemed to-day gravely preoccupied, anxious and depressed. Pushing back his chair, he sat for some time in a profound and evidently painful reverie, and when his father came in, and closed the door behind him, the cloud of apprehension deepened.

"Good morning, Cuthbert, I must compliment you on your early hours. How is Maud?"

"I have not seen her this morning. Victorine usually takes her out at this time of day. I hope after a night's reflection and rest, you feel disposed to afford me more comfort than you extended last evening. The fact is, unless you come forward and help me, I shall be utterly ruined."

Gen. Laurance lighted his cigar, and standing before his son, answered coldly:

"I beg you to recollect that my resources are not quite inexhaustible, and last year when I gave that Chicago property to you, I explained the necessity of curbing your reckless extravagance. Were I possessed of Rothschild's income, it would not suffice to keep upon his feet a man who sells himself to the Devil of the Gaming Table, and entertains with the prodigality of a Crown Prince. I never dreamed until last night that the real estate at home is encumbered by mortgages, and it will be an everlasting shame if the homestead should be sacrificed; but I can do no more for you. This failure of Ames is a disgraceful affair, and I understand soils his reputation past all hope of purification. How long does Abbie expect to remain in Nice? It does not look well, I can tell you, that she should go off and leave Maude with her bonne."

"Oh! for that matter Maud is better off here, where she can be seen regularly by the physician, and Victorine knows much better what to do for her, than her mother. Abbie is perfectly acquainted with the change in her father's and my own affairs, and I should suppose she would have returned immediately after the receipt of the intelligence, especially as I informed her that we should be compelled to return to America."

"I shall telegraph her to come back at once, for I hear that she is leading a very gay life at Nice, and that her conduct is not wholly compatible with her duties as a wife and mother."

An expression of subdued scorn passed over Cuthbert's face, as he answered sarcastically:

"Probably your influence may avail to hasten her return. As for her peculiar views, and way of conducting herself, I imagine it is rather too late for you to indulge in fastidious carpings, as you selected and presented her to me—as a suitable bride, particularly acceptable to you for a daughter-in-law."

"When men live as you have done since your marriage, it is scarcely surprising that wives should emulate their lax example. You have never disguised your indifference as a husband."

"No Sir. When I made merchandise of my hand I deemed that sacrifice sufficient, and have never pretended to include my heart in the bargain. But why deal in recrimination? Past mistakes are irremediable, and it behoves me to consider only the future. Were it not for poor Maud, I really should care very little, but her helplessness appeals to me now more forcibly than all other considerations. You say, sir, that you cannot help me, why not? At this crisis a few shares of stock, and some of those sterling bonds would enable me to pay off my pressing personal debts; and I could get away from Paris with less annoying notoriety and scandal, which, above all things, I abhor. I only ask the means of retiring from my associations here without disgrace, and once safely out of France, I shall care little for the future. You certainly cannot consent to see me stranded here, where my possion and menage have been so proud?"

General Laurance puffed vigorously at his cigar for some seconds, then tossed it down, put his hands in his pockets, and said abruptly:

"When I told you last night that I could not help you, I meant it. The stocks and bonds you require, have already been otherwise appropriated. I daresay, Cuthbert, you will be astonished at what I am about to communicate, but whatever your opinion of the step I have determined to take, I request in advance that you will refrain from any disagreeable comments. For thirty-seven years I have devoted myself to the promotion of your interest and happiness, and you must admit, you have often sorely tried my patience. If you have at last made shipwreck of your favorable financial prospects, it is no longer in my power to set you afloat again. Cuthbert, I am on the eve of assuming new responsibilities that require all the means your luxurious mode of living has left me. I am going to marry again."

"To marry again? Are you approaching your dotage?"

The son had risen, and his handsome face was full of undisguised scorn, as his eyes rested on his father's haughty, and offended countenance.

"Whatever your dissatisfaction, you will be wise in repressing it at least in your remarks to me. I am no longer young, but am very far from senility; and finding no harmony in your household, no peaceful hreside where I can spend the residue of my days in quiet, I have fondly consulted the dictates of my own heart, and am prompted by the hope of great happiness with the woman whom I sincerely love, to marry her. Under these circumstances you can readily appreciate my inability to transfer the stocks, which it appears you have relied upon to float you out of this financial storm."

Cuthbert bowed profoundly, and answered contemptuously:

"They have, I presume, already been transferred in the form of a marriage contract? Pardon me, sir,—but may I enquire whom you design to fill my mother's place?"

"I expect within a few days to present to you as my wife, the loveliest woman in all Europe, one as noble, refined, modest and delicate as she is everywhere conceded to be beautiful—the celebrated Madame Odille Orme."

An unconquerable embarassment caused his eyes to wander from his son's face as he pronounced the name, else he would have discovered the start, the pallor with which the intelligence was received. Cuthbert turned and stood at the window, with his back to his father, and the convulsive movement of his features attested the profound pain which the announcement caused.

"Madame Orme is not an ordinary actress, and has always maintained a reputation quite rare among those of her profession. I have carefully studied her character, think I have seen it sufficiently tested to satisfy even my honor and my name, you may rest assured I have not risked anything in committing both to the keeping of this woman, to whom I am very deeply and tenderly attached. She told me she had met you once. How did she impress you?"

It cost him a strong effort to answer composedly:

"She is the most beautiful women I have seen in Europe."

"Ah! and sweet as she is lovely! My son, do not diminish my happiness by unkind thoughts and expressions, which would result in our estrangement. No father could have devoted himself more assiduously to a child, than I have done to you, and in my old age, if this marriage brings me so much delight and comfort, have I not earned the right to consider my own happiness? It is quite natural that you should be surprised, and to some extent chagrined at my determination to settle a portion of my property upon a new claimant for my love and protection; but I hope—for the sake of all concerned, you will at least indulge in no harsh or disrespectful remarks. I have been requested to invite you to accompany me to the theatre to-night, to witness Madame Orme's farewell to the stage in a drama of her own composition. After this evening she appears no more in public, and at the close of the play she desires that we shall meet her at her hotel. I trust you will courteously fulfil the engagement I have made for you, as I assured her she might expect us both."

He lighted a fresh cigar and drew on his gloves.

Cuthbert hastily snatched a glass of water from the stand near him, and laying his hand on the bolt of the door leading to his sleeping room, looked over his shoulder at his father.

The son's face was whitened and sharpened by acute suffering and his blue eyes flashed with a peculiarly cold sarcastic light as he exclaimed bitterly:

"That Gen. Laurance should so far forget the aristocratic associations and memories of the past, as to wrap his ambitious name around the person and character of a pretty coulisse queen, certainly surprises his son, in whom he would never have given such a mesalliance; but chacun a son gout! Permit me, sir, to hope that my father may display the same infallible judgment in selecting a bride for himself, that he so successfully manifested in the choice of one for his son; and the sincere wish of my heart is, that your wedded life may prove quite as rose-colored and blissful as mine."

BURNING OF BARNS.

It is noticable that a larger number of the burnings of barns is mentioned by the perodical press in the summer than any other time. Some of the fires are undoubtedly caused by lightning, the moist vapor from the uncured hay making a favorable conductor for the electric fluid. But there are barn fires which cannot be attributed to lightning, to lighting of matches, to light from lanterns, nor to the invasion of careless tramps. It may be that the spontaneous combustion of hay is as possible as the combustion of cotton waste. All fibrous material, when moist, and compressed, and defended from the cooling influences of the outward air, is subjected to a heating similar to that of fermentation; and in some instances the degree of heat is sufficient to cause actual, visible combustion. In the case of recently "cured" hay this danger is as great as, in similar circumstances, other materials may be. Frequently the grass is cut in the early morning, while wet with dew; is turned twice during the day, and gathered and packed in the "mow" or the "bay" before nightfall, with perhaps a sparse sprinkling of salt. Such a compressed mass of fibrous, moist matter will heat. How far the heat will go toward generating a combustion may be inferred from a foolish trick which the writer witnessed several years ago.

A large meadow of hay had been cut, cured and cocked, previous to removal. A shower threatening, the cocks were covered with caps of canvas and left for the night. While getting the hay in, the next day, one of the workmen dropped an unlighted match from his pocket into a cock of hay, and in a few minutes it was ablaze. It afterward was ascertained that he had spoken of the warmth of the hay as he lifted it on his fork, when a companion remarked that it might be not enough to light a match, on which he put one into a rick, and before they had passed on five minutes the rick was on fire.

Everybody conversant with farm life, where hay is a permanent and important crop, knows that for weeks after getting in the hay the barn is warm when the doors are opened in the morning. There is an amount of heat that is absolutely unpleasant when the thermometer outside registers 60°, but which is quite welcome with the outside temperature at 40°. This barn heat is undoubtedly from the moist hay, compacted and inclosed. The cure for the possible danger of possible spontaneous barn burning would seem to be the thorough curing—drying—of the hay before it is housed. We dry all our herbs and some of our vegetables without injuring their peculiar and individual qualities. There is no reason why hay or other fodder material stored in large masses should not be rendered equally innoxious to the influences of heat by thorough drying.—Scientific American.

Visit of Scientists.

What the members of the British Association for the Advancement of Science will not know about Canada when they return home will hardly be worth knowing. They arebeing given every opportunity of seeing the country and becoming acquainted with its infinite resources and boundless possibilities. To most of them visit to Canada is in the nature of a revelation. They had no idea that Canada was a country of such size, development, or promise, and when they go back to their own land they will have a good word to say for their kin beyond the sea.—Toronto Telegram.

If it Were Possible

To get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring debility, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medical value than any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking the Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as the people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so often humbugged by the week decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make the people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by those unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

Market and Sell Early!

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one of the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone. * * * * *

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer."

The above we clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its common sense points. Alexander has already marketed and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexanders. LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

A Fall into the River.

While the steamer Whistle Wing was passing through the locks at Hastings on Thursday evening, a woman who was watching the boat fell into the water. Capt. Carson promptly entered the water and rescued her.

The Weather.

The readings of the Thermometer and Barometer in Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store today were as follows:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
Nine o'clock	72°	29.39
One o'clock	78°	29.32
Three o'clock	77°	29.32

Lawn Social.

A lawn social, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Church, will be held this evening in the grounds attached to the residence of Mr. Geo. A. Cox. The place will be brilliantly illuminated by electric light, and the Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance.

The Hamley-Williamson Race.

The long talked of race between Hamley, of Port Hope, and Williamson, of Midland, will take place at the Driving Park to-morrow afternoon at 5.30 o'clock. As each of the competitors have for some years been local champions, no doubt their meeting will attract a large number of people.

Personal.

Mr. Thomas Munro (formerly of the firm of Munro & Alexander), now of the firm of Munro & Co., Belleville, is in town to-day.

His Honor Judge Lucky, of Rochester, was in town yesterday on his way home from our back lakes. He states that the Canadian climate knocks hay fever out in one round.

Obituary.

The funeral of the late Malcolm Maitland took place on Thursday forenoon. Mr. D. Belleghem took charge, and at his request several hack drivers volunteered the use of their hacks gratis. They were Messrs. F. White, J. Newhal, Wm. Whalen and Mr. Croft. Considering that the unfortunate man was almost unknown to them the hackmen acted very generously.

Base Ball at Chemong.

In addition to the numerous attractions at Chemong Lake on Sept. 11th a base ball match will be played between the Silver Stars and an outside club on the Chemong Lake Park. Mr. Forbes will have a refreshment stand on the grounds where fruits and cooling drinks will be sold at ordinary prices. No intoxicating liquor will be allowed on the grounds.

Picnic at Chemong Lake.

The employees of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company held a picnic at Chemong mong Lake Park on Thursday, Sept. 4th. The company's manufactory was closed on that day, in order to allow all their employees to participate in the pleasure of a day of rest and recreation at that favorite picnic ground. Busses were engaged by the company to carry passengers to the Park, and in all probably about 200 persons, composed of the employees, their families and few friends, assembled on the ground early in the forenoon. The day was passed there very pleasantly. An orchestra furnished music and that staple amusement of picnic parties—dancing—was thoroughly enjoyed. There were swings for the younger members of the company, and boating was indulged in. A base ball match was played between a team composed of married men and another of single men, and the Benedicks proved to be more than a match for their bachelor brethren on the diamond field. At about six o'clock the party began to return, and they all expressed themselves as highly satisfied. It is probable that this picnic will hereafter be an annual affair.

EXCURSION TO CAMPBELLFORD.

Members of the St. Andrew's Society and their Friends Spend a Pleasant Day.

Shortly after 7 o'clock on Thursday morning an excursion under the auspices of the St. Andrew's Society left the Grand Trunk station. The train carried about 450 people, and when Ashburnham was reached the number was swelled to nearly 500. The Auburn Woollen Mills were shut down and a large number of the employees joined the excursion. Through Otonabee 120 more excursionists were gathered, and at Hastings and other stations the number was again reinforced.

The weather was all that could be desired. Having arrived at Campbellford the excursionists picnicked in a grove placed at the disposal of the St. Andrew's Society by the Rev. Mr. Beattie. At two o'clock the President, Mr. Duncan McLeod, called the assemblage to order, thanked the people for their numerous attendance, and called on Mr. W. Telford, the Bard of the Society, to read a poetical address.

Mr. John Erskine, Vice-President of the Society, moved, seconded by Mr. Alex. Stewart, sr.,—That a vote of thanks be tendered to the Rev. Mr. Beattie for the free use of his grounds.—Carried.

During the afternoon two pipers, Mr. D. K. Anderson, of Toronto, and Mr. Donald McDonald, of Peterborough, furnished stirring music, and Mr. D. K. Anderson gave an exhibition of the highland fling. Swinging, dancing, etc., were indulged in and a good programme of sports had been arranged. The following is a list:—

100 YARDS RACE (boys under 15 years)—1st, J. Frederick, of Campbellford. Prize, a pocket knife.

100 YARDS RACE (open to farmers)—1st, Joseph Tully, of North Monaghan. Prize, a whip.

100 YARDS RACE (open to everybody)—1st, T. Russell, G.T.R. Prize, a cigar stand.

GIRLS RACE (16 years and over)—1st, Minnie Mills, of Campbellford. Prize, a handkerchief box.

BOYS RACE (16 years and over)—1st J. Dunn, of Auburn Mills. Prize, a mouth-organ.

LITTLE GIRLS RACE (14 years and under)—1st, Gertie O'Brien. Prize, silver table set.

OLD MEN'S RACE—1st, —. Queen, of Auburn Mills. Prize, Times for one year.

RUNNING LONG JUMP—1st J. Sullivan, of Campbellford. Prize, a cigar stand.

HOP, STEP AND JUMP—1st J. Fredericks. Prize, a concertina.

The excursion train left Campbellford at 5 o'clock and arrived in town shortly after 8 p.m. The pipers played up George street and the excursionists dispersed to their homes.

Bass' English Ale.

Another large shipment of Bass' Ale, October brewing, just arrived at W. Chamberlain's Restaurant. Imported direct.

St. John's Church Social.

The ladies of St. John's Church will hold a social in the Court House Park on Tuesday evening, the 9th inst., from 6 till 9 p.m., in aid of the Woman's Foreign and Domestic Missionary Society. The City Band will be in attendance. Refreshments will be served.

Fell from a Tree.

At the picnic at Chemong Lake Park yesterday Mr. T. Kent, and employee of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co., climbed up a tree to shorten a swing. He slipped and fell to the ground, a distance of about fifteen feet. We are informed that he is serious injured, three of his ribs having been broken.

To the Front Again.

Our readers will be glad to see that Mr. Jos. Griffin is to the front again after the destruction of his boot and shoe store by the recent fire. He is selling the saved stock at at a large reduction, and is restocked with a full supply of fall and winter goods, besides having his order department in full running order. Mr. Griffin has displayed much energy in perfecting these arrangements.

The Scientific Men of England.

At about eight o'clock on Thursday evening a special train came over the Ontario & Quebec from the east. It consisted of seven coaches and carried the members of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, which are now visiting Canada. There were about four hundred members on the train and among which were some of the deepest thinkers of the nineteenth century. After stopping about five minutes the train moved out for Toronto.

The Warm Weather.

There is nothing that will waken one's ideas and dispel all signs of that fatigue and drowsiness that steals over the human frame during the hot sultry days quicker than a bath in pure fresh water. It is comfortable indeed to know that at the Grand Central Hairdressing and Shaving Parlor you can get a variety of excellent baths, such as cold, hot, salt water or Russian, at any hour of the day. In connection with the bath rooms Mr. Potvin has a fine tonsorial establishment, where three first-class artists are employed, who will give customers the best of satisfaction. New chairs are to be put in, and improvements made that will make it one of the best shops in this section of the country.

Crayon Drawing.

Mr. George Cluxton, the obliging agent of the London and Lancashire Life Assurance Company, informs us that there will be one or more local entries for the prizes offered by the above company at the Toronto Industrial Exhibition, and for the benefit of those and others who may compete from Peterborough, we publish the conditions. There are two prizes, amounting to $75. The competition is open to amateurs only. The picture must be the bona-fide property of the exhibitor; the same exhibitor can secure but one of the above prizes; the words "London and Lancashire Life," and the buildings of the company (a sketch of which can be obtained on application) to appear in the picture: the company to have prior privilege to purchase any picture exhibited at a fair valuation. Entrance free.

Life Preserver.

If you are losing your grip on life, try "Wells' Health Renewer." Goes direct to weak spots.

POLICE COURT.

D. & D.

FRIDAY, Sept. 5.—James O'Brien was charged by P. C. Pidgeon with having been drunk and disorderly in a public place. The prisoner pleaded not guilty. He was fined $2 or ten days in gaol—and took the ten days.

Poetic Wants.

Some long felt wants I will describe,
Acknowledged by the human tribe;
Felt more or less at every time
By every man in every clime.
And first the want most widely known,
Is one which all who think must own;
It keeps apart each various race
Of men who dwell on earth's wide face.
If only all of every land
Each other's tongue could understand,
What cruel deeds and baneful strife
Would cease to darken human life!
First, then, of long felt wants I place
A common language for our race.
Long have men felt the power to know
What rains will fall, what winds will blow,
What biting frosts will chill the air,
That for each change they might prepare.

Recognizing the wants of the inhabitants of the Town and County of Peterborough, ANDREW MCNEIL can now supply all those who desire to resist the heaviest rain, the fiercest wind, and the most biting frost, with a good Waterproof or Overcoat at prices that cannot be beat.

Suit for Libel.

ORILLIA, Sept. 4.—This afternoon the Magistrates gave judgment in the libel case between Mr. John Curran, of the Orillia News-Letter, and Mr. Peter Murray, publisher of the Orillia Times. The Bench reviewing the case stated that there was nothing to establish a prima facie case of libel, and they felt it their duty to dismiss the case.

The Canadian Voyageurs.

OTTAWA, Sept. 4.—Capt. T. Aumond, of the Governor General's Foot Guards, has been appointed second in command to Maj. Denison, in connection with the Canadian Nile contingent. Good progress is being made in securing men to go to the Nile. About 25 were engaged to-day.

Fire! Fire!

OPENED UP AGAIN AT

JOS. GRIFFIN'S

Boot and Shoe Store.

My Boot and Shoe Store opposite the Oriental Hotel was recently destroyed by fire—set by incendiaries—the greater portion of my stock was saved, and I am again re-established in business two doors west of my old stand, on Hunter Street, where I shall be happy to meet again all my friends—old and new.

All the stock saved from the late fire (as good as new) I shall sell below cost, to make room for the new Fall and Winter Stock ordered.

Now is your time to buy cheap Boots, as I positively intend to do as I advertise.

As I shall run the old stock off as quickly as possible, parties requiring Boots should call at one and secure first choice.

☞MY ORDER DEPARTMENT is as complete as ever. Leave your orders. I guarantee satisfaction.

JOSEPH GRIFFIN,
Nearly opposite ORIENTAL Hotel,
Hunter Street.

SO MODEST A VIRTUE
AS
GOODNESS

Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportuuity, and can use it if you need.

She Thought He Had Cut His Throat.

A young bride living on Aylmer street momentarily expecting the return of her husband, was handed a telegram last night about eight o'clock, which so excited her that without having strength to break the envelope she fainted away. Upon recovering she found her darling husband beside her bathing her fair brow with white wine vinegar. "Oh, Alick!" were her first words, "upon the receipt of this telegram such a feeling came over me." "What was it like?" he enquired. "Oh, I cannot explain the feeling; but the last thought I remember was that you had fallen down and cut your throat on that Prince George Collar you bought at ANDREW MCNEIL'S last Wednesday night."

Come to MCNEIL'S for your furnishings tonight. Another new line of Collars received by to-day's express.

COLSAPSE OF A MINE.

Settling of 250 Acres of Ground—Loss of Half a Million.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 5.—The Enterprise mine at Port Rowkley, owned and operated by Andrew Langdon, Buffalo, was this morning the scene of the most entensive cave-in that has occurred in this region for years. nearly one hundred acres of ground settled from four to six feet. The Lehigh Valley railroad tracks sunk five feet and the traffic was stopped for some hours. The air in the mine was driven with the violence of an explosion, and forced its way out of the shaft, almost totally wrecking the inside workings. The ground is covered with seams and cracks for several hundred feet, and five houses belonging to the miners in the employ of the company were wrecked and have been deserted. It is feared the mine is ruined. It is now full of gas and water from the river, and 500 persons are thrown out of employment. The owner of the mine was offered $300,000, last week, for his interest in the coal left, but refused.

The invitation card is a beautiful one bearing on the face of it the British and American flags and the British coat of arms, and on the back the original autographs of the party.—Sentinel-Star.

A World of Wealth Below.

It was rumoured in Hamilton on Wednesday that the Emerson National Gas Company, who are drilling for gas in the vicinity of Albion Mills, had struck strong indications of oil, and that hopes are entertained that a paying well may be established. The event of such hopes being fulfilled will have an important bearing on the projected similiar search for mineral wealth beneath the foundations of Whitby.—Chronicle.

A Way it Has.

The Globe this morning did not give a place in its columns to Mr. Blake's admission, made before the commission, that Mr. Meredith is innocent of any part in the bribery business. What sort of journalism is this? Does the Globe set itself up as superior to court and its own counsel, as to what is fact? Does the Globe intend to insist that the opposition leader is guilty. Does it intend to go on villifying W. R. Meredith, even after his enemies have pronounced him innocent. Very likely. It is the way the Globe does business and an infernally mean way it is.—Toronto News.

Sensible Observations.

Many young men are always very ready to accept invitations to other people's home circles. They are very much more attentive to other people's sisters than his own! A young man should be found in his home, and spend enough time there for his influence to tell upon the family and for him to cultivate manly dispositions that will be a blessing to him in years to come.

Many young men are like crows; they come back to their nests to roost, and at the dawn of day they haste to other fields. Young men, don't waste your strength and your brains in anybody's company when you ought to be in your family circle in the house of your father and mother. I think it is a duty and obligation that you need be attentive to the requirements and needs of your sisters. Why not sometimes take your sister out? Take her for a walk. Why not take her to a concert? Why not sometimes bring home presents and give them to her? Why, when you come home should you be sullen, and silent and morose, as though somebody had been treading on your corns all day? Why not come home and tell some of the incidents that have happened during the day and be bright and merry and cheerful, and so contribute your share to the family joy, and you will have it all back again in a sister's love.—Detroit Free Press.

Daily Evening Review

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1884.

"Our esteemed contemporary the Brantford Telegram says that the Reform party 'do not think a man whose skin is dark should be entrusted with the franchise.' This is positively amusing, though intended to be malicious. The Telegram overshoots the mark. Its lie is not even plausible."—London Advertizer.

Well, we know that the Globe was so doubtful about the propriety of extending the franchise to the "blacks," as it called them, of Jamaica, that, after calculating the number of them there was in the island, it asked, "Is this a desirable population to incorporate with the people of these Canadian Provinces?" And we also know that at the last session of the Legislature the Ontario Government disfranchised a number of Indians. But the Reform journals have such a facility for arguing that black is white that they might even persuade themselves that the negroes were of the purest Caucasian color if they were likely to vote the Reform ticket, and in that case they would not object to them.

THE MAIL SERVICE.

As attacks have been made upon the Post Office Department in connection with the mail service of the town, we may state that the facts are simply these: The Ontario and Quebec Railway has connections at Toronto in in the morning which enables it to bring mails from west of Toronto, and which arrived here sooner by being brought over that line, but to make these connections the train was delayed and sometimes the mails did not arrive here until an hour after they would have been received had they been brought by the Grand Trunk. This, it was thought, caused more inconvenience than the western connection compensated for, and on August 27th the facts were reported to the Department. On September 1st, very soon after the attention of the Department was called to the matter, the morning western mail was transferred from the Ontario and Quebec back to the Grand Trunk, thus showing that the Hon. Mr. Carling does give sufficint attention to the affairs of the Department, and that the convenience of the public is carefully looked after.

A REFORM TRIUMPH.

At the recent election at Queen's County, P. E.I., there was the usual result of a supporter of the Macdonald Administration being returned. The re-action in the Marine Provinces, of which we have heard so much from Reform journalists, has not yet appeared, except in their imagination. However, having to be thankful for small successes, the Reform organs are now shouting with joy because the majority of Mr. Jenkins, the Conservative candidate, has been reduced from the figures at first reported. It seems that three deputy-returning officers had not sent in proper returns, and, therefore, the ballots of their polling places, with a large Conservative majority, could not be counted. We all remember how the same gentlemen howled when, through similar lapses of deputy returning officers, their own friends suffered, yet now they rejoice, because the disfranchisement is to their own advantage. Such is their inconsistency and hypocrisy. Well, we need not grudge them what consolation they can find in such disadvantagerous circumstances.

THE PLOTTERS WRIGGLING.

To break the force of the terrible failure of the Mowat Administration to make political capital out of their bribery plot and their Royal Commission, their chief organ in the Provincial capital betakes itself to downright and deliberate falsehood. After giving a long extract from an inaccurate report of Mr. Merrick's evidence, it goes on to falsify its own report in the hope that it will not be read with sufficient attention to detect the fraud. The Globe has the effrontery to say that Mr. Merrick admitted having warned Mr. Meredith that there was an attempt to bribe Reform members. Mr. Merrick did not so give his evidence, he did not so warn Mr. Meredith, and the Globe did not so report him. Yet the Globe now utters this deliberate falsehood in the hope of making its dupes believe that Mr. Meredith's statement that he knew nothing of any such attempts before the statement in the House, had been contradicted by Mr. Merrick. Even Mr. S. H. Blake, who is well known, at least in Peterborough, not to be very conciencious or honest, expressly exonerated Mr. Meredith from any complicity in the alleged offence.

The stratagem of Mr. Mowat and his colleagues has recoiled upon their own heads, but these frantic efforts will not clear them.

A CHRISTIAN DUTY.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—In your report in the Review of August 22nd, of an entertainment in the Temperance Hall, Apsley, words are attributed to me stronger than I used, and which fail to give the meaning which I wish to convey. I was trying to persuade my auditors that if professing Christians were consistent—acting up to the Word they profess to believe—there need be no "entertainments" of whatever kind to provide funds for religious purposes. That it is the duty of every Christian to lay aside on the first day of the week (Sunday) as God had prospered him. And I said that people who lived on charity would in England be called paupers, that my hearers would be much offended if they were so called, but that people who received all their religious privileges—all the ministrations of religion, at the expense of other people, could only be considered paupers in spiritual matters. Or in this way: If people in England received their daily bread, food and clothing, as many here receive their spiritual food, they would be called paupers.

Allow me to add that there is great inconsistency in Christians in this matter. It is not uncommon to hear people express themselves strongly about the Sabbath, as it is erroneously called unless it have the prefix "Christian," what a blessing it is, and how reasonable; God gives us six days of our time and only requires one for Himself. Do they ever consider that He gives us nine-tenths of our money and only requires one-tenth for Himself? And have they ever looked at it in this light; the payment of tithe and the observance of the Sabbath are equally commanded by God; for many generations they were equally enforced by human laws; in the march of liberalism the human law abandoned tithe, and at once the law of God became inoperative; what if in a yet more advanced march of liberalism the human law abandons the observance of a holy seventh day? Will the Divine law also in that case become inoperative? I think so. It will be a dire time for the world when it is so, but not more so than the abandonment of tithe. Payment of tithe is certainly more insisted on in the New Testament than the observance of the Sabbath.

It very rarely happens that there is anything objectionable in the reports of your correspondents and I hope to be pardoned for noticing this, as otherwise it might create a wrong impression.

Yours faithfully,
P. HARDING.

Apsley, Sept. 2nd, 1884.

MARRYING HER PRESERVER.

Capt. Bradford Wins and Marries the Girl Whose Life He Recently Saved.

Pittsburg, Sept. 3.—This evening word was received that Mike Bradford, of the Life Guard service, near Howard's Pier, had been quietly married to the daughter of a wealthy merchant of the Quaker City. The story of the marriage is tinged with romance and reads more like fiction than fact. Last summer the bride, who is only 17 years of age, was in bathing, and was drawn far out into the ocean. She would have been drowned had it dot been for brave Capt. Bradford, who plunged into the surt and brought her out more dead than alive. Restoratives were given her, and she was soon able to be taken to her home. She returned in a few days to thank her preserver, and the acquaintance thus so strangely began ripened into love. Frequent meetings followed, but the young lady's father becoming suspicious, forbade her to see the gallant young captain. This opposition only served to strengthen the ardent feelings of the lovers, and last evening the happy couple were married. The bride is beautiful and accomplished, and had many suitors who equalled her in station. Capt. Bradford has been the head of the Bradford Life Saving Service at Atlantic City, N.J.. and during that time had saved scores of lives.

NORWOOD.

Corn Over 12 Feet High.—There is on exhibition at the store of Messrs. Clark & McMillen a stalk of western corn 12 ft. and 1 in. in height. It was grown in the garden of Mr. Jno. Vosburgh, of this village, and would have undoubtedly have attained a greater height had it not been blown down during the recent wind storm.

County Model School.—Through the exertions of Mr. J. C. Brown, P.S.I., the Education Department have been pleased to establish at this village a model school for the county of Peterborough. Mr. A. Hutchinson has been appointed Principal and has under his control a competent staff of assistants. The terms of 1883 commenced on the 9th inst., and candidates desiring admission are requested to make immediate application to Mr. Brown, the Inspector.

Harvest Home Festival.—The anniversary services in connection with the Methodist Church of this place were held on Sabbath 1st and Monday 2nd inst., and as usual were highly successful. On Sabbath eloquent sermons were preached by the Rev. J. Bredin, D.D., Superintendent of the Brighton District, and the collections taken up at the conclusion of each of the services, in aid of the Trust Fund, we are informed, were largely in excess of those of other years. On the Monday following at 1 o'clock p.m., the annual harvest home dinner, which was gotten up in first-class style by the ladies of the congregation, was served, and we need scarcely say ample justice was done to the tempting spread. After dinner addresses were delivered by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Gee, Rev. J. Bredin, D. D., of Brighton, and Rev. Foster McAmmond, of Peterborough. The choir enlivened the proceedings by the rendition of some of their choicest selections.—Register.

CAMPBELLFORD.

School Improvements.—Since the schools closed in July last the large sum of $500 has been expended for improvements in the buildings for the comfort, convenience and health of the scholars and teachers.

Good!—Good wheat crop, good oat crop, good barley crop, good pea crop, good hay crop, and good apple crop, and in fact an abundant harvest in everything, is what the farmers will say of the season. The farmer's prospects seem bright.

Waterworks.—The Council has given notice of a by-law to be submitted to the ratepayers of Campbellford upon Monday, the 29th day of September. The by-law is for raising by way of loan the sum of $3,000 for the construction of waterworks for fire protection in the village; this sum to be made payable by the issue of debentures to extend over thirty years. The sum required annually to cover such cost will amount to $218. Every ratepayer entitled to vote on this question should study this proposition of the Council, and take an interest in it whether it be for its adoption or rejection.—Herald.

A Proposed Railway

An Ottawa despatch says that the proposed railway between Brockville and Ottawa by the Grand Trunk, is assuming practical shape. The line has received a preliminary survey. When completed it will make the distance between Toronto and the capital by this route only three miles longer than by the Ontario and Quebec.

MILLBROOK.

Laying the Corner Stone.—The foundation of the new St. Thomas Church is sufficiently advanced to enable the committee to state that the corner stone will be laid, most probably, on Tuesday, Sebtember 16. Col. Williams M. P., is expected to have the honor of laying the stone. Dr. Brereton, M. P., Judge Benson, and other able speakers will be invited, and, as a matter of course, the local clergy. In our next, we may be able to say for certain, what day, as well as give the list of those who will likely be present to take part in the interesting ceremony.—Messenger.

Girls Will Demand Their Rights

The domestics of the city will shortly meet and discuss the advisability of striking for rest on Sunday. They have decided, however, to wait the result of the livery keepers case.—Kingston Whig.

Springless Truss and Supporters

PROF. G. W. HOTCHKIN

Will visit the following places again:—

LINDSAY—Benson House, Sept. 26th, 27th and 28th.

PETERBOROUGH—Daly's Grand Central Hotel, Sept. 29th and 30th.

Prof. Hotchkin's treatment is practical, rational and economical. Its object is immediate relief and eventual cure. It is based on scientific principles and easily demonstrated to the comprehension of every intelligent person, that a truss without steel springs or hard substance, having healed Inguinal and Umbilical as well as Varicocele, at the advanced ages respectively of from 65 and 95 years, must and will stand the test against all Spring Trusses to children as well as adults. Prof. Hotchkin having had 30 year's experience has become master of his profession, and defies the Hernia he cannot hold in its place.

Prof. Hotchkin has invented an apparatus to hold the piles in their proper place, which has been as successful as his other inventions. Go and see for yourselves.

Hrof. Hotchkin's post-office address is Albion, Orleans Co., N.Y. d49w35

CHOLERA

—IS—

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all remedies, and the natives place the most perfect confidence in it

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:

Dear Sirs,—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants tell us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

Believe me, dear sir, gratefully and faithfully yours.

J. M. JOHNSON,
Missionary to Swatow, China.

Beware of counterfeits and imitations. Ask for the genuine Perry Davis' Pain-Killer and take no other.

BEYOND.

Never a word is said
But it trembles in the air,
And the truant voice has sped
To vibrate everywhere;
And perhaps, far off in eternal years
The echo may ring upon our ears.

Never are kind acts done,
To wipe the weeping eyes,
But, like flashes of the sun,
They signal to the skies;
And up above the angels read
How we have heiped the sorer need

Never a day is given
But it tones the after years,
And it carries up to heaven
Its sunshine or its tears;
While the to-morrows stand and wait—
The silent mutes by the outer gate.

There is no end to the sky,
And the stars are every where,
And time is eternity,
And the here is over there;
For the common deeds of the common day
Are ringing bells in the far away.

INFELICE.

By AUGUSTA J. EVANS WILSON

Author of "St. Elmo," "Beulah," "Micaria," etc.

CHAPTER XXXII.

He bowed low, and disappeared; and after a few turns up and down the room, during which he smoothed his ruffled brow, rejoicing that the announcement had been made, Gen. Laurance went down to his carriage, and was driven to the hotel, where he hoped to find Mrs. Orme.

For several days after the narration of her history to Regina, the mother had seen comparatively little of her child, her time being engrossed by numerous rehearsals, and the supervision of some scene painting, which she considered essential to the success of the play.

Only on the morning of the day appointed for its presentation, did Regina learn that in "Infelice" her mother had merely written and dramatically arranged an accurate history of her own eventful life. By this startling method she had long designed to acquaint Gen. Laurance and his son with her real name, and the play had been very carefully cast and prepared; but Regina heard with deep pain and humiliation of the vindictive nature of the surprise arranged, and eloquently pleaded that the sacred past should not be profaned by casting it before the public for criticism.

Mr. Chesley earnestly seconded her entreaties that even now a change of programme might be effected, but Mrs. Orme sternly adhered to her purpose, declared it was too late for alteration, and that she would not consent to forfeit the delight of the vengence, which alone sweetened the future, neither would she permit her daughter to absent herself. A box had been secured, where screened from observation Regina and Mr. Chesley could not only witness the play, but watch the two men whose box was opposite.

When Gen. Laurance called and sent up a basket of choice and costly flowers, begging for a moment's interview, Mrs. Orme sent down in reply a tiny perfumed note, stating that she was then hurrying to the last rehearsal, which it was absolutely necessary she should attend; and requesting that after the close of the play, General Laurance and his son would do her the honor to take supper at her hotel, where she would give him a final and very definite answer, with regard to their nuptials. While he read the billet and was pencilling a second appeal for the privilege of escorting her to her rehearsal, she ran lightly down stairs, sprang into a carriage and eluded him.

Left in possession of all the records relative to her mother's history, and furnished for the first time with a printed copy of "Infelice," Regina spent a melancholy day in her own room. Among the papers she found her father's letter promising to claim his wife as soon as he attained his majority; and as she noted the elegant chirography and glanced from the letter to the ambrotype which represented Cuthbert, as he looked at the period of his marriage, a strangely tender new feeling welled up in her heart, dimming her eyes with unshed tears.

It was her father's face upon which she looked, and something in those proud high-bred features plead for him to the soul of his child. True, he had disowned them, but could that face deliberately hide premediated treachery? Might there not be some defence, some extenuating circumstances, that would lessen his crime?

Suddenly she sprang up and began to array herself in a walking suit. She would go and see her father,—learn what had induced his cruel course, and perhaps some mistake might be discovered and corrected. She knew that this step would subject her to her mother's displeasure, but just then the girl's heart was hardened against her, in consequence of her persistency in dramatizing a record which the daughter deemed too mournfully solemn and sacred for the desecration of the boards and footlights.

Grieved and mortified by this resolution, over which her passionate invective and persuasion exerted not the slightest influence, she availed herself of the absence of her mother and Mrs. Waul, to leave the hotel, and get into a carriage.

The directory supplied her with the address she sought, and ere many moments she found herself in front of the stately, palatial pile, in which Cuthbert Laurance had long dwelt. Desiring to see Mr. Laurance on business, she was shown into the elegant salon, and when the servant returned to say that he had left the house but a few minutes before she entered, she still lingered.

"Can I see Mrs. Laurance?"

"Madame is at Nice. Only Madomoiselle Maud is at home."

At that instant a side door opened, and a stout middle-aged woman pushed before her into the room a low chair placed on wheels, in which sat Maud. At sight of the stranger, Victorine turned to retreat with her charge, but Regina made a quick gesture to detain her, and went to the spot where the chair rested.

Maud sat with her lap full of violets and mignonette, which she was trying to weave into a bouquet, but arrested in her occupation, her weird black eyes looked wonderingly on the visitor. How vividly they contrasted, the slender symmetrical figure of Regina, her perfect face and graceful bearing, with the swarthy, sallow, dwarfed and helpless Maud? As the former looked at the melancholy features, prematurely aged by suffering, a well of pity gushed into her heart, and she bent down and took one of the thin hands from which the flowers were slipping unnoticed.

"Is this little Maud?"

"My name is Maud Ames Laurance. What is your name? Why you are just like papa! Do you know my papa?"

"No dear, but I shall some day. I should very much like to know you."

"You look so much like papa. You may kiss me if you like."

She turned her sallow cheek for the salute, and Victorine said:

"Is Mademoiselle a relative? You are quite the image of Mr. Laurance."

"Do you think so! Where can I find Gen. Laurance? Does he reside here?"

"Oh no! He never has lived with us. Grandpapa was here this morning, but we were out in the park. Will you have some flowers? Your eyes just match my violets! So like papa's."

Regina gazed sorrowfully at the afflicted figure, and holding those thin hot fingers in hers, she silently determined that if possible, the impending blow should be warded off from this pitiable little sufferer.

"Did you come to see me?" queried Maud.

"No, I called to see your papa on some business, and I am sorry he is absent. Before long I shall come to see you, and we will make bouquets and have a pleasant time. Good-bye Maud."

Remembering that she was her half-sister, Regina lightly kissed the hollow cheek of the invalid.

"Good-bye. I shall ask papa where you got his eyes; for they are my papa's lovely eyes."

"Has mademoiselle left her card with Jean?" asked Victorine, whose curiosity was thoroughly aroused.

"I have not one with me."

"Then be pleased to give your name."

"No matter now. I will come again, and then you and Maud shall learn my name."

She hastened out of the room, and when she reached her mother's lodgings, met her uncle pacing the floor of the reception room.

"Regina, where have you been? You are too total a stranger here to venture out alone, and I beg that you will not repeat the imprudence. I have been really uneasy about your mysterious absence."

"Uncle Orme, I wanted to see my father and I went to his home."

She threw her hat on the sofa and sighed heavily.

"My dear child, Minnie will never forgive your premature disclosure!"

"I made none, because he was not at home. Oh uncle, I saw something that made my heart turn sick, with pity. I saw that poor little deformed girl, Maud Laurance, and it seems to me her haggard face, her utter wretchedness and helplessness would melt a heart of steel! I longed to take the poor forlorn creature in my arms, and cry over her; and I tell you, Uncle Orme, I will not be a party to her ruin and disgrace! I will not,—I will not! I am strong and healthy, and God has given me many talents, and raised up dear friends, you uncle, the dearest of all, after mother; but what has that unfortunate cripple? Nothing but her father, (for she has been deserted by her mother)—and only her father's name. Do you think I could see her beggared, reduced to poverty that really pinched, in order that I might usurp her place as the Laurance heiress? Never."

Mr. Mowat's Obstinacy.

We must again call attention to the case with which this case, so far as it was brought before the Privy Council, was settled. The reference was made on the 26th of June: the report was made on the 11th of August. Between the reference and the report only 46 days elapsed. Had he Ontario authorities been reasonable the matter might have been settled with equal facility and equal justice at least ten years ago. Let us suppose that a year or two were needed to collect evidence: there is no earthly reason why the completed case should not have been laid before the Privy Council in 1874, when in a month or two a just decision would have been reached. That was not done is due to the obstinacy of Mr Mowat. He alone is responsible for all the trouble and all the delay. He was asked to carry the case to the Privy Council, and he steadily refused to carry it their.—Hamilton Spectator.

RESIDENTS OF TORONTO INADMISSABLE.

A SMALL FARM FREE.

SPECIAL CLUB OFFER!

Four Pianos, Three Organs, Silver Tea Sets, Sewing Machines, Gold Watches, Silver Watches, and Innumerable other Valuable Rewards

DON'T DELAY SENDING IN YOUR ANSWERS.

At the solicitation of many friends Truth announces one more—the final—Bible competition. Owing to the fact of so many valuable rewards going to citizens of Toronto, this competition will be open only to persons living outside the city of Toronto. Any one residing in any other part of the habitable world will be eligible to compete for these magnificent rewards. The questions—which are supplied by an eminent Presbyterian minister—are very difficult, but the rewards are valuable. We hope the publisher of Truth will meet with the success his enterprise so richly merits. Everything he has offered in previous Bible Competitions has been promptly and cheerfully handed over to the successful ones the moment they are known. We most heartily commend the paper to our readers. They will find it all it is represented to be. Full and complete lists of all those who gain rewards are given in Truth the week following the close of each competition. There will be no chance, and no postponement in any way; everything will be carried out exactly as stated.

HERE ARE THE QUESTIONS.

1.—Where is Gold first made mention of in the Bible?

2.—Where does it first state in the Bible that there was only one language and one speech on the whole earth?

3.—When the inn first referred to in the Bible? by the word inn is meant a place of rest and refreshment, commonly known now as an hotel).

Everyone competing must send one dollar with their answers, for six months subscription to Truth. And aside from the rewards themselves they will find that they have made the best investment of one dollar they ever did. Truth is full and big value for the money. Bear in mind that you pay nothing extra for the privilege of competing for these costly rewards, as you will get Truth for six months in any case for your one dollar, which is the regular subscription price, and will also get one of these rewards, provided you answers are correct, and reach Truth office in time. Don't delay.

The offer is open only to the 15th September, and as long as your letter bears the post mark, where mailed, of the date of 15th September, it will take its place in the order received at Truth office. Fifteen days after date of closing will be allowed for letters from distant points to reach Toronto, but don't forget your letter must not bear a later post mark than September 15. All competing must send with their answers one dollar for six months' subscription to Truth, which will be sent to any desired address for the twelve months. Wherever you live, outside Toronto, you can compete at any time between now and the closing day for either the first or middle rewards, and as well as, of course, for the consolation rewards. Some one will get those five acres of land—why not you? Look up your Bible now, and see if you can find the answers to these questions. It will do you good, apart from the opportunity you have of obtaing a valuable reward in addition to Truth

SPECIAL CLUB OFFER.

If twenty-five persons join and send $50 each one of the twenty-five whose answers are correct will get their choice of a solid rolled gold brooch, new and elegant design, worth at retail two dollars; a Chambers' Etymological Dictionary, worth about same amount; a World's Universal Cyclopædia, or a volume elegantly bound of Shakespeare's Complete Works. Of course, each of the club will have the same opportunity of gaining one of the rewards in the regular list (in addition to the certainty of one of the prizes aforesaid), as though they had sent in singly. This is simply an extra inducement to clubs.

The rewards in last competition were very widely scattered over Ontario and Quebec. In fact every Province was represented in the last, not excepting British Columbia. A great many also went to the States.

No information will be given any one beyond what has above been stated. So don't waste time by waiting, but send in your answers and money now. If you happen to be too late for the first, you may be fortunate enough to obtain a middle reward, and that is where the biggest ones are. Truth directs special attention to the fact that clergymen are not permitted to compete, neither are persons who in previous competitions won prizes exceeding one hundred dollars in value. This we think exceedingly fair, and as no Torontonians are allowed to compete, the field is now open for a fair and square race for these rewards to any one, as Truth says, on the habitable globe, outside Toronto. No money will be received by telegraph or in any way but through the post-office or by express. One dollar only required Try your skill. You are sure of good value for your money anyway. Address S. Frank Wilson, Truth office, 33 and 35 Adelaide street, Toronto, Canada.

Market and Sell Early!

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one of the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone.

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer"

The above we clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its common sense points. Alexander has already marketed and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexanders. Call and be convinced.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Appointment.

Mr. Kidd's place in the South Ward School has been filled by the appointment of Mr. Jones to the head mastership. Mr. Jones has had considerable experience and holds a first class certificate obtained at the recent examination in Toronto.

St. John's Church Social.

The ladies of St. John's Church will hold a social in the Court House Park on Tuesday evening, the 9th inst., from 6 till 9 p.m., in aid of the Woman's Foreign and Domestic Missionary Society. The City Band will be in attendance. Refreshments will be served. Contributions may be sent to Dr. Halliday's. Admission 15 cents.

The Only One in America.

The collection of animals exhibited by the Great Forepaugh Show, which will be here on Monday, September 15th, is the largest and best in this country, and is noted for having several rare specimens of the animal kingdom to be seen in no other collection. Among these is a double-horned rhinocerous, the only one of the kind ever brought to America.

OUR French Suitings are the admiration of all who see them. HABILIMENT HALL.

The Market

Now that the fall has come the attendance at each succeeding market grows perceptibly. This morning the market was numerously attended and a large amount of produce was sold. Butter sold at from 20c. to 22c.; eggs at 15c. to 16c.; chickens, about the only fowl offered for sale, brought 45c. per pair; plums tomatoes, apples, potatoes, crabapples, squash, were well represented and sold at low prices.

A Good Practice.

On Friday afternoon a scratch match was played on the Ashburnham ground between the first and second twelves of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club. It was an excellent practice, and no doubt the boys will be benefitted by it. The Mets. have been playing a great many matches this summer and are in fine condition, and our team may expect to meet on Monday the best lacrosse material that they have yet encountered.

The Lindsay Tournament.

The Silver Stars' team, which will go to Lindsay to participate in the base ball tournament on the 16th and 17th of September, will be selected from the following list:—W. H. Dayman, Wm. Cushen, Harry Dunn, Fred Billings, J. J. Lynch, A. Seney, Thos. Sanderson, Fred. Cameron, J. Pidgeon, J. Callaghan, W. Watson. Various cups will be competed for, and a silver ball, valued at $40, is also offered as a prize. If our boys get their strongest nine together, the Uxbridge and Lindsay clubs will likely have a hot time.

The Entrance Examination.

Of the twelve candidates recommended by the local board of examiners, ten have been passed by the central committee in Toronto. Twenty pupils have thus been passed from Mr. Coleman's room to the Collegiate Institute, as the result of last term's work, and Peterborough among the towns in this district is again to the fore with the greatest number of successful candidates. The Central public school has supplied the Collegiate Institute during the past year with fifty-one students. The following are the ten referred to above:—J. Alfred, L. Best, C. Errett, E. Walton, W. Hunter, B. Brundrett, J. Davidson, A. Miller, L. Mercer, H. Reid.

A really well made Corset, warranted to give satisfaction, only Fifty Cents, at Turnbull's.

A PLEASANT EVENING.

The Lawn Social Under the Auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society is a Success.

On Friday evening a lawn social under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Church was held in the grounds attached to the residence of Mr. Geo. A. Cox, who had very liberally placed his residence and grounds for the evening at their disposal. The grounds were resplendently illuminated by electricity, while the little vistas and sinuous carriage drives were lighted with Chinese lanterns. The evening was beautiful. The moon pursued her silent course through the heavens and shed soft beams on the place beneath. The air was delightfully cool and not a breath of wind stirred. The grounds were covered with a happy throng, and the trees and shrubbery were covered with gracefully hanging flags.

The Fire Brigade Band greatly enhanced the pleasure of the evening by singing with their well known taste and finish some of their best selections, and also by filling the air with rich instrumental melody. Here and there through the sward refreshment tables and tables for the sale of fancy articles were fringed with purchasers. On the tops of the short grass of the well shaven lawn thousands of little dew drops glittered and gleamed with the brilliancy of diamonds in the mixture of moonlight and electricity. The doors of the drawing rooms facing the lawn were all thrown open, and the piazza was occupied by an ever changing bevy. All went happily along and ten o'clock soon came around.

Shortly after ten o'clock the Rev. Mr. Torrance took a slightly elevated position and, on behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society, returned thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Cox for their generosity in bestowing the use of their grounds for the lawn social. Mr. Cox, he said, had long been looked upon as a public benefactor, and for this assistance in their great work his people were heartily thankful. All Christian bodies were working for the one great end, namely, the glorification of our Lord Jesus Christ. They were as regiments in one great army. He again thanked Mr. and Mrs. Cox for their kindness.

Mr. Cox in reply said that the people were welcome whenever they felt disposed to come to his house. He had cheerfully given the use of the grounds to the Ladies' Aid Society, and he hoped that they had had a pleasant and profitable evening. Mr. Hazlitt had contributed largely to the evening's entertainment by placing, at a large expense, the electric lights in the grounds. The Christian churches were indeed, as Mr. Torrance had said, working for the one great interest. He again cordially welcomed those present and hoped they had enjoyed themselves during the evening.

The Band then played "God Save the Queen," and the large assemblage obtained egress through the various places of exit.

Turnbull has just received a large shipment of Corsets in all the latest and most improved makes.

Beware of the Book Pedlars.

Some parties are now canvassing the town with Albums. We simply say, beware. You can get them from 25 to 50 per cent. cheaper from us. We have decided to clear out our stock at reduced prices in order to make room for our extensive purchases for the Xmas trade. Come and get bargains. A. L. DAVIS & Co.

The Coming Regatta.

It is understood to be a settled fact that Messrs. Mercer, McIntyre and Strickland will row in the single scull race at the Chemong Lake regatta. Mr. Mercer is at present steadily practising, and a fast race may be expected. The baseball club have secured the services of a curve pitcher and a good exhibition of baseball will be given.

Don't be Afraid.

Mr. Calcutt wishes to inform those who intend going to the South Monaghan harvest home festival that they need not be afraid as to the low water. The light sailing Whistle-Wing, with the Fire Brigade Band on board, will convey the passengers to Faucher's Park. There will be no danger of grounding, for it has been remarked of this vessel that she can 'run on the dew."

Flour and Feed.

Mr. Wm. Davidson, having assumed control of the Dominion Flouring Mills (late Hall's Mills), is now prepared to supply in any quantity, flour of the most superior quality, for either bakers' or domestic purposes, also all kinds of feed of the primest quality. The public will find the products of these mills of a quality unsurpassed by those of any other mills in the district; and they are requested to call and get quotations and prices before purchasing elsewhere. They will find that they will make money and secure most satisfactory bargains by so doing.

In a Perilous Position.

On Thursday evening Messrs. Fairburn and John Billington were driving along Hunter street in a buggy. When opposite Wilson's Hotel the horse shied from a heap of sand on the roadside, and Mr. Fairburn, who was driving, was thrown out, taking with him the lines. Mr. Billington was now left in the buggy without any means of stopping the horse, which was running at full speed. After a moment's thought Mr. Billington stepped over the dashboard and walked along the shafts of the buggy till he he reached the lines. He was indeed in a perilous place, but he succeeded, without injury to himself, in stopping the frightened animal. When Mr. Fairburn was thrown out he lit on his head, but, strange to say, he was not injured in the least.

SO MODEST A VIRTUE
AS
GOODNESS

Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

All the stock saved from the late fire (as good as new) I shall sell below cost, to make room for the new Fall and Winter Stock ordered.

Now is your time to buy cheap Boots, as I positively intend to do as I advertise.

As I shall run the old stock off as quickly as possible, parties requiring Boots should call at one and secure first choice.

A WATERY GRAVE.

Lewis Drake Attempts to Wade Across the Otonabee and is Drowned.

To-day the Otonabee claimed another unfortunate by drowning. A young man named Lewis Drake, who has for some years followed the occupation of a river driver, met his death in its bosom. From information given, it appears that a number of men were engaged in driving logs for Mr. Alfred McDonald, of the Point St. Charles saw mill, about one mile and a half above the Red Mills. They found it necessary to cross the river, and for this purpose made use of a punt. Drake said he would wade across, and accordingly followed the others over in the water. When about half way over, the current which runs swift at this spot, took him off his feet. He was carrying a lever in his hand, and when he found himself going, dropped it and struck out for shore. In the meantime the others had got safely across, and did not dream of any danger overtaking the unfortunate man, Drake swam to within ten feet of the shore and then to the horror of those who were watching him, threw up his hands and sank to rise no more. It is probable that he took cramps from being in the water so long, and, although so near land, was unable to hold out longer. search was at once instituted for the body, and after fifeen minutes it was found, and conveyed to the residence of the deceased. Drake was a married man, but had no family.

G. T. R. WORKSHOPS.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Some time ago the Town Council appointed the Mayor and Mr. James Stevenson and Mr. Wm. Cluxton a deputation to proceed to Montreal and confer with the officials of the Grand Trunk Railway Company as to the location of the company's workshops here. Would you be good enough to inform me if the deputation has gone to Montreal, and, if so, the result of their mission? A great number of people are anxious about this matter, and I am sure any information you are able to give will be eagerly read by them.

AN ANXIOUS ONE.

[We must beg to refer our correspondent to the members of the deputation for the information he requires. If they prefer to give it to the public in general, of course our columns are open to them.—ED. REVIEW.]

Statue of Liberty.

Bartholdi's statue of liberty seems to experience some difficulty in finding a resting place in the land of liberty. It is now announced that work on the pedestal will be stopped in thirty days unless more funds are forthcomming within that time. The sum of $150,000 has been subscribed and expended but $125,000 more is required. The probabilities are that Liberty will repose in a warehouse during the comming winter.

THE RAILWAY NUISANCE.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—A letter appeared in your columns last week in which complaint was made of the desecration of the Christian Sabbath by the O. & Q. R. R. Company.

The complaint was made from a moral and religious point of view, and was a just complaint and altogether without exaggeration. It has apparently, however, produced no effect, and I scarcely venture to entertain a hope that it will secure the desired end.

But, Sir, I wish to prefer another complaint, regarded from another standpoint. I complain of the shameful way in which our rest at night is disturbed, hour after hour, by the steam whistles of that Company, on the night between Saturday and Sunday last, the whistling commenced loudly at 11 o'clock p.m. It commenced again, as loudly as before, at 12 o'clock, and was continued until after midnight. Between 3 and 4 o'clock a. m. on Sunday, there were two loud and prolonged shrieks, followed by some shorter whistles. Then at 5 a. m. there was another similar disturbance, and lastly, one between 6 and 7 on the same morning.

We had occasion some time ago, to complain of the nuisance committed by the shunting of the Midland Co. That nuisance has been considerably abated, but the annoyance occasioned by the O. and Q. Company is ten times as great as that formerly inflicted by the Midland.

One of the most excruciating tortures inflicted by the Inquisitors of old, consisted in keeping their victims from sleeping by day and by night. I can, to some extent, realize the agony of this torture, for since the opening of the O. & Q. R. R., I can scarcely ever obtain more than three or four hours sleep at night, and not always even so much, and I rise in the morning more fatigued than when I went to bed.

If there no remedy for this miserable state of affairs? Are we altogether at the mercy of these railway people? The air is laden with their outrageous and discordant noises by night and by day, and sleep itself is, as Shakespeare has it, "murdered" by them.

A Toronto Boy's Fall.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 5.—A young man named Thomas Soules has been employed for several months as clerk by the drug firm of Lyman & Jeffrey. He is a Canadian of excellent family connection and has a pharmacist's diploma from a school in Toronto. Not long since the attention of the firm was called to facts that led to suspect that their young clerk had been helping himself to the firm's property. On Monday such things had been discovered as led to the procurement of a warrant. In the young man's trunk some valuable surgical instruments and several toilet articles indentified as the firm's property were discovered. The young man made a full confession, stating that had at various times taken small amounts from the till, at one time appropriating $4. He was placed, in a officer's charge, and will be given a hearing to-day. The young man's crime is his first, and seems to have been committed as the result of an attempt to pace with young men of more means than himself into whose society he was thrown.

Sudden Death.

MONTREAL, Sept. 6.—Mr. Walter Raleigh Browne, M. A. late fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, and a distinguished member of the British Association, died on Thursday night at the General Hospital. It appears that the deceased gentleman, who came to Canada to attend the meeting had been traveling around the country sight-seeing, On his arrival in Montreal last week he was taken with typhoid fever, and rapidly grew worse. Inflamation of the lungs set in, resulting in death. Mr. Browne was born in 1842, and graduated at Cambridge, taking the highest honors of double first, tenth classic, and nineteenth wrangler. He obtained the Wrangham medal and was elected fellow Trinity College in the same year as Lord Rayleigh. His funeral took place to-day.

A Struggle with a Burglar.

NIAGARA FALLS, Sept. 7.—This morning at 2.30 as Chief McDougall and Officer Wynn were going off duty they observed a light in the town clerk's office. Upon approaching the place cautiously they found the window up and a man inside working at the large safe. Officer Wynn jumped through the opening into the office and dodged a blow aimed at his head by the burglar with a jimmy. The officer then clinched his man and a fierce and desperate struggle took place for a moment or so. The officer, however, succeeded in placing the cuffs on the burglar's wrists, and passing him out to the chief, he was locked up. He gave his name as Albert Savage, and is supposed to be the accomplice of Flanagan in the other burglaries.

A County Attorney in Trouble.

The formal application to carry into effect Judge Galt's order made in may last, stricking County Crown Attorney Peterson off the rolls, for embezzling money belonging to his client, was made before Mr. Justice Rose on Friday. This Mr. Peterson acquired some unenviable notoriety in the McKim forgery trial case, to be present at which he travelled from Guelph to Arthur, and having remained closeted with the presiding magistrates for a couple of hours, persuaded them to discharge the prisoner on the grounds of a disagreement. It is scarcely requsite to add that this Mr. Peterson, who has brought disgrace upon his profession, was one of Mr. Mowat's appointees.—Mail

Numerous banners and emblems were carried bearing legends attacking the House of Lords or caricaturing the Conservative leaders. MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1884.

HURRAH FOR OLIVER II!

SUCH is the war-cry with which the Stratford Beacon heads an editorial calling upon Reformers to assist at the reception of Mr. Oliver Mowat. From one of the strongest supporters of the Ontario Premier we have the confession that Oliver Mowat is the successor of Oliver Cromwell. Of course there is some similarity. Both have usurped unconstitutional powers; both have preferred an appeal to arms to a resort to the law. Oliver Cromwell kicked out the legislature, and ruled without the consent of members or constituents; Oliver Mowat only kicked the Legislature, disobeyed their orders and misrepresented their constituents. Oliver Cromwell cut off his sovereign's head; Oliver Mowat contented himself with insulting his sovereign by repudiating her award as to the capital of Canada, formally invited by Parliament and with taking office (for a few hours) on the strength of that insult. Oliver Cromwell had at his back his redoubtable Ironsides; Oliver Mowat had for his army the gael sweepings sent to Rat Portage.

It appears from the terrible story narrated by the Beacon that Oliver Mowat was driven to these excesses by personal insults, and gross and wanton attacks upon our liberties. As our contemporary says:—"He has thus become one of the Cromwellian sort, but only with the Ironsides' sternness and endurance when provoked to action; otherwise he preserves his gentleness and evenness of character in a remarkable degree." This is a grand pen picture. Our Oliver II no doubt when in London exhibited his Cromwellian sternness and endurance by proxy in the person of his Rat Portage Falstaffian Army. So he exhibited all his gentleness, his lamblike and even timid, shrinking disposition, when last session on the benches of the Legislative Assembly, he dared not speak or even move without the permission and instructions of Messrs. Pardee, Fraser and Hardy, his lieutenants and rulers.

The followers of Oliver I were sometimes rather strong in their denunciations and fierce in their language, a peculiarity which seem to have descended to the followers of Oliver II, for we find the Beacon speaking as follows:—"Should the venemous old enemy at Ottawa continue his smile warfare, &c." This is certainly indecorous language to apply to the foremost man in Canada, to the man whom the people of this great Dominion have placed at their head and still maintain there, but it may be Cromwellian, it may be the kind of olive branch tendered by the dove-like mercenaries of Oliver I and Oliver II.

There is one phrase in the panegyric of the Beacon that we could not understand without reflection. We are told that among his other virtues Oliver II is "First in war." At first sight this seemed satirical, for certainly Oliver the Less was not to the front in the Algoma campaign among his fighting jailbirds. But on second thoughts we remembered that a masterly retreat has been held to be one of the chief tests of a great general, and our Oliver was certainly first in the retreat from the advance post in Rat Portage to safer ground (as pointed out long ago by the venemous old enemy) offered by the law courts of Westminster. Let those then hurrah for Oliver II who admire usurpation of unconstitutional powers, disloyalty, and a mixture of warlike insolence, with superstitious panic fears. To sycophants a small tyrant may be better than none.

THE London Advertiser has a habit of calling all its contemporaries "esteemed contemporaries," which seems to be due more to a suspicion that it is witty than to a desire to be courteous, for when it intimates that it esteems a contemporary, while at the same time it calls it a liar, one would be apt to think that the Advertiser was open to a charge of not speaking the truth.

A REFORM paper boasts that Mr. Mowat has "never suffered personal defeat at the hands of his constituents." Perhaps he hasn't, because when a man asks the electors of a constituency to return him to the Legislature, and they elect his opponent as was the case with Mr. Mowat in Toronto in 1879, he can hardly call them his constituents.

THE Belleville Ontario has become so feverish in its joy over Mr. Mowat's return from the Old Country that it has broken out in a wood-cut of the Ontario Premier. If this picture is a faithful likeness of Mr. Mowat he should be as great an attraction for Toronto during the exhibition week as Forepaugh's double-horned rhinoscerous.

SHAKESPEARE.

The Proper Mode of Spelling the Name of the Great Dramatist.

A correspondent who holds a high position among the litrary men of Canada writes to us as follows:—

While my pen is in my hand I am moved to make a remark on the heading of Mr. Earl's excellent and exhaustive set of questions on "The Merchant of Venice," which I happened to see for the first time in the REVIEW of Aug. 29. I venture to ask,—and I hope you will coincide—is it not a pity to confuse the minds of young Canadians on the subject of the proper spelling of the grand old name of Shakespeare? Why should Mr. Earl or any one else prefer the very mean looking and emasculate form of the word which appears at the head of these questions? I know it is a whim or crotchet with a few persons lately to adopt that form and to press it upon others; and they say that the M S. autographs which exist go to support the notion that this is the correct form.

It is kept out of view that these three or four MS. autographs are all of them very indistinct and uncertain and look as if they had been written, or rather scrawled, under unfavorable circumstances.

There can be no doubt as to the way Shakespeare desired his name to figure before the world. Turn to the Dedications of the Poems entitled Venus and Adonis, and The Rape of Lucrece—both of them addressed by the poet to his friend, the Earl of Southampton, and not only written deliberately by Shakespeare's own hand, but deliberately printed under his own eye, and circulated far and wide with his approval. And how do the subscriptions to these two documents read?

One thus:

"Your honour's in all duty,
WM. SHAKESPEARE."

The other thus:

"Your lordship's in all duty,
WM. SHAKESPEARE."

It seems wonderful in the face of this, that any one should wish to deform that grand name which, under this form, has for so many generations become fixed and enshrined in the minds and hearts of men everywhere. Is it not superfluous after this, to refer to the name as written by contemporary relatives and friends on the monument and memorial slate over the remains of the poet in Stratford Church—or written by Ben Johnson in the memorable verses usually prefixed to the plays—or as printed at full length on the title page of the first Folio a few years after Shakespeare's death?

Please pardon me, but I am always indignant when I see this unnecessary caprice indulged in.

Several modern writers have indulged in the craze of curtailing the grand old name, as repeatedly printed and published by himself. I cannot understand the pleasure they have in doing so; and I regret that the very uncalled for practice should be suggested to our Canadian youth. With all their corruptions of English speech in the United States, they have never yet tampered with Shakespeare's name, and it would be too bad if, on this side of the line, we should begin to do so. It may be observed that the Harpers, while adopting, as they did for a series of years, all the innovations of Webster, and thereby disfiguring their otherwise admirable English reprints—never meddled with Shakespeare. (They have now in the Monthly and elsewhere dropped the Websterisms and reverted to the standard English practice; and Canadian teachers should take a note of this.) The title of Grant White's book—one of the best American writers on the subject—is "Shakespeare's Scholar:" so spelling the name which he so greatly venerates.

It was Charles Knight, the London publisher, who especially helped to get the new spelling into vogue for a time; he adopted it in his otherwise admirable editions of Shakespeare; why he did so I cannot conceive, except that it was to distinguish and individualize his edition among the innumerable other editions of the great poet. This orthography has been adopted by no weighty authorities. The usage of J. P. Collier, J. O. Holléwell-Phillips, the London Athenæum, and of every writer of great note, past or present, is against it. The only variation to be observed in the insertion or non-insertion of the e in the middle—it is sometimes Shakspeare and sometimes (most frequently at the present time) Shakespeare. To the variation I make no demur. On the stone over the grave in Stratford Church it is Shakspeare, while, strangely, on the memorial slab to Shakespeare's wife it is Shakespeare—as if the more correct form. I think it may be said that among educated English people at the present time, Shakespeare is the exception and Shakespeare is the rule.

Mrs. Cowden Clarke, who compiled the well-known Concordance to Shakespeare many years ago, thus apologized to having used the curtailed form of the grand old name on the title page of that work: "I did so" she says in the preface to a late work "The Shakespeare Key," by herself and her husband, Mr. Charles Cowden Clarke—"I did so in deference to the wish of Mr. Charles Knight, its original publisher; otherwise I should have used the form Shakespeare, because it was the one given in the First Solid Edition of his dramatic works by its superintenders and brother actors, Hennings and Condall. The name is also given thus in the first edition of his sonnets, and it seems to have been the orthography used in print where his name was given during his life time."

But the unanswerable argument for the unemasculated form of the name lies in the two deliberate subscriptions to the two Dedications previously referred to.

I felt sure after a little reflection on the matter, all teachers of Canadian youths will agree with me that it is inexpedient to introduce in our schools or colleges any variations from the customary, universally received form of the great Shakespeare's name.

Mr. Furnival in London, England, is one, and to quote, goes out of his way to press the orthography complained of,—but though a great scholar in some points of view, Mr. F. is understood to be as a rather fantastic person in other points of view, and not to be accepted as an authority on the subject of Shakespeare's name.

I do not wish to enter into controversy. All I wish to urge is—the advisability of adhering, here in Canada, to the form of Shakespeare's name which Shakespeare himself seemed to have preferred whenever he appeared before the world in print. I do not say there is no authority at all for the form objected to. Mrs. Cowden Clarke tells us that as many as sixteen different modes of spelling the name Shakespeare have been found to have been used in and about Stratford and the epoch when Shakespeare wrote.

Mr. Mackenzie on the Northwest

The Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, after returning to Winnipeg from a trip over the C. P. railway was interviewed by a Times reporter, and the following extract is from the interview:—"He was surprised to find in this country such corps he had seen to-day, after all the tales of excessive drought and summer frosts and snows in the Territory which had been told in Ontario. He could not conscientiously declare that he had not seen so good a field of wheat in Ontario this year as the one he seen on Mr. Robitaille's farm, and the oats he had never seen excelled in his life. Everything he saw betokened greatness."

NORTHERN ONTARIO.

Several circumstances have of late combined to draw public attention in a marked manner to Northern Ontario. The boundary dispute has had its share of influence this way, no doubt; but the developments to which we would now refer are of a more material and enduring character. First and foremost we may place the building of that portion of the Canadian Pacific main line which passes through this Province. It has been far too much the practice to talk of this road as if it were something belonging to the North-West only, perhaps to Quebec in a measure, but in which Ontario had scarcely any direct interest at all. But this idea has been a grand mistake all the time, as is now beginning to appear. Leaving out of view for the present the Ontario and Quebec line, our provincial interest in which is obvious enough, we have to realize the fact that the Canadian Pacific is an Ontario road all the way from Ottawa to Port Arthur and even further west. This great national work is destined to open up, not only the Northwest, but also the vast extent of Northern Ontario, heretofore almost a terra incognita as far as putting it to any practical use was concerned. And the importance of the Canadian Pacific road, as the means of opening up the Ottawa, Nipissing and Algoma districts, is very fully acknowledged in an official publication issued not long ago by the Ontario Government.

Next in importance comes the construction of the Gravenhurst and Callendar link, which is to give all western and central Ontario connection with the Pacific main line. Once this connection is completed and the main line itself in operation north of Lake Huron and Lake Superior, enterprising men amongst us will soon find out what all this extensive northern country is good for. That there are sections of it which carry stores of timber and mineral wealth we know already, but we shall know better ere long. Once the cars are taking their way clean through from Toronto to Neepigon and Port Arthur, what treasure of the forest and the river there are will not much longer remain hidden and unobserved. While it will be the business of the Canadian Pacific to open up the long east and west stretch from the Ottawa river to the northwest corner of Lake Superior, it will be that of the northern and the Callendar link to put Ontario in convenient connection with the same. The thing is new to us as yet; we have not had time to realize sufficiently how great and how material a change, for the special benefit of Ontario, is even now going on.—Toronto World.

RELIGIOUS TRAINING IN THE FAMILY

No subject demands clearer thought or better practice than the religious training of the children in the family. This and the broper ordering of the household as a part of it, is a matter of the highest earthly importance. In these days of sunday-schools, summer conventions and multiplied associations for various good objects and increasing tendency to educate sons and daughters away from home, there is great danger that the thing of prime importance—religious training—will be neglected in the family and home.

We can hardly too often or too earnestly press upon parents what both duty to the children and delight in the home require here. From the family and the proper training of the children in it; even from the commanding by one man of his children and his household after him to keep the way of the Lord and to do justice and judgement, from this it is that religious races have sprung and the Church of God has been perpetuated and effected. And this is God's plan for the future as well as the past.

It is the part of the parents to form and perfect in their offspring the social, the civil and the religious life as well, and to train them for glory and honor, immortality and eternal life. And how can human beings have laid upon them higher obligations or engage in more delightful duties and act a diviner part? Here they are brought nearer to the object of their affections and fitted to realize the highest aspirations that are known to our race or given by God to any creatures. How can they come nearer to God himself who is the absolute Creator and Ruler of all than in thus training up their children for his service here and for glory hereafter?.

If it Were Possible

To get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring debility, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medical value than any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are flocking the Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as the people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so often humbugged by the week decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make the people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by those unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

"TO THE SONS OF SCOTIA."

The following is the poetical address read by Mr. Wm. Telford, Bard of the Peterborough St. Andrew's Society, at their picnic in Campbellford on Thursday. It was addressed "To the Sons of Scotia, or more particularly to the members and friends of St. Andrew's Society of Peterborough":—

This marn I jumpet oot ma bed
Before the sun his rays had shed;
A' earthia cares an' sorrows fled
Like mist on picnic marnin'.

I dunched ma wife, gie gently saft,
She rubed her een, looked up an' laucht;
She said "You Scotch gangs fairia daft
On St. Andrew's picnic marnin'."

We reached in time the iron horse,
Snorting all ready for the course,
With piercin' shrecks baith shrill an' noarse
Bounds off on picnic marnin'.

At curves an' crossin's how he roared
To gaurd the load o' Scots on board,
Landin' them safe in Cambilford,
Weel pleased on picnic marnin'.

Behold the crowds o' canta Scots,
Huntin' for cosie shaded spots
To spread their claiths, meats, dishes, pots,
To haud a giourious picnic.

Now Scotia's sons, an' dauchters, too,
Just one bit simple hint to you,
If high your rank, or toule hue,
Don't show it at this picnic.

If I be puir an' you be rich,
Don't pass as if I had the itch;
Let Scottish love gie pride a hitch
Far eff fra this Scotch picnic.

Mak' this a social friendship day,
Drive feudel clanship far away;
Wives, dauchters, your best smiles display
To grace oor Scottish picnic.

The feast is o'er, the claiths are cleared,
Sic lots o' guid stuff disappeared,
Baith auld an' young jumped up an' cheered
For fun at oor braw picnic.

But hark! a shrill note strikes ma ear,
The slogan by the bagpipes clear—
The sound still mak's auld Scotia dear,
An' mair sae at oor picnic.

The fiddle squeeks, lads, lasses spring,
In auld Scotch reel or Heeland fling,
Some gie gray heads, wheel roond the ring,
Growin' young at this grand picnic.

At Duncan's word the sports begin,
Like hares the wantin' widdowers rin,
The first a handsome bride shall win,
Bonniest widow at the picnic.

Davie an' John mak's the quoits flee,
Tryin' hard to land them on the T.;
Tak' care that Jimie d'una gie
Hard tussel at this picnic.

Archie in glee his shoothers shrugs,
Jock claps his hands an' claws his lugs,
He left at hame his Greenland dugs
For a fine lass at the picnic.

They are jumpin' here, an' rinen' there,
And a guid few begins to pair,
Tak' tent young lassie an' beware
O' the olla tongues at picnics.

Baith young an' auld enjoy the scene,
And let nae discord intervene,
Mak' this the best that you have seen
Of a' St. Andrew's picnics.

Let English, Irish, Scotch combine,
In friendship hand in hand entwine,
Strike up a bar o' Auld Lang Syne,
To finish up oor picnic.

An 'when ye hear the whissle blaw
Jump to yer feet baith ane an' a',
Three cheers for Scotia far awa,
An' oor St. Andrew's picnic.

LAKEFIELD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

COUNCIL MEETING.—A special meeting of the Village Council was held in the Council Chamber on Wednesday evening, August 27th, Present, R. C. Strickland, Reeve, in the chair, and Councillors McWilliams, Cox and Urquhart. An application for the village collectorship from W. McDonald was received. Moved by Councillor Cox, seconded by Councillor McWilliams, that the account of J. R. Stratton, printing, etc., $13.75, be paid.—Carried. A by-law to appoint a village collector received its several readings, the blanks being filled with the name of W. McDonald at a salary of $35. A by-law to fix the rate and levy the taxes for 1884 received its several readings and was pessed, sealed and signed by the Reeve and Clerk, the rate being the same as last year, viz.; school, 5 mills; county, 2 mills; village, 3 mills. Total 10. The Clerk was instructed to write to the Superintendent of the Midland division of the Grand Trunk Railway in regard to the condition of the railroad swamp and the danger which constantly arises from fire. The Council adjourned to meet at the call of the Reeve.

ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday afternoon a man called Fortin, while trying to move a heavy anvil in the blacksmith shop attached to the Lakefield water mill, let it slip, with the result of receiving a crushed foot. Medical attendance was obtained, but the owner of the foot will be laid up for some time.

HURT.—Mr. Robert Young, of the Point, was badly hurt while working at the new dam in that place, on Tuesday last. Mr. Young had went into a pier into which some men were dumping stone for the purpose of filling it. A man came along with a wheel barrow load and began to tip the wheel barrow when Mr. Wynn, who was standing near by, yelled and grabbed the barrow just in time to prevent the whole load going in, as it was three or four stones struck Mr. Young, knocking him insensible. He was at once taken out of the pier and soon revived when it was found that two deep cuts were made on his head, Dr. Bell, of Lakefield, was summoned and Mr. Young is recovering nicely up to the time of writing.

NEW PIERS.—Mr. Chas. Wynn, who has the contract for the building of the Lakefield and Young's Point dams, has been awarded the contract by the County of building the stone abutments and pier for the new iron bridge at Youngs' Point, and men will begin in a few days taking out the stone for the early construction of the same. One thing the people who are acquainted with Mr. Wynn will be sure of, and that is of having a good and substantial job done. The County Council are making a good move, though a little tardily, in replacing this rotten wooden structure with a new iron bridge. It is really a wonder that it has not collapsed before this.

COUNCIL MEETING.—The regular monthly meeting of the Lakefield Village Council will be held in the Council room on Monday evening next, at 7:30.

FORESTERS.—Cour Lakefield, No. 43, C.O.F., will meet in the Foresters' Hall, Lakefield, on Thursday evening next, September 11th, at 8 o'clock.

BOBCAYGEON.

SCHOOL BOARD.—The school debentures which were issued for the erection of the school houses having been cleared off, the tax, this year, will be much reduced. Last year, $2,400 was required, but the Board has decided that for this year $1,000 will be sufficient.

PUBLIC WORKS.—The repairs to the dam, under the instructions of Mr. Rogers, the superintendent, have tightened it to some extent. The water is very low, and it will require great care to keep it up to navigation height.—Independent.

LINDSAY.

PUGILISTIC.—On Wednesday afternoon R. N. Harrison and the bartender at the Mansion House got into an altercation in the hotel and Harrison began to beat him unmercifully, the bartender being much the smaller man. Harrison was arrested and is to appear before the Police Magistrate.—Warder.

STATISTICAL.—For the information of the ratepayers may be submitted the following statistical information. Over 26,000 feet of plank have been laid in sidewalks this year. The amount expended in the work and on the streets will foot up to $3,400 by the end of next week. The estimates allowed $3,500 for expenses in this direction so there is not a very large surplus to work on. Repairs to the fire pumps at the pump house cost $41.

ABOUT THE STATION.—A large quantity of quarry stone has been delivered at the Lindsay station and will be used in additional work to be done about the station, water tank, etc., the foundation for the erection of the large tank to supply the locomotives with water. The tank will be placed on the north side of the track, and engines running east will take water from the tank. Engines going west from a standpipe west of the station connected by a pipe laid underground from the tank. The tank will be supplied with water by a four-inch main from the railway pump-house at the river, which will be built at once. Two cars of pipe are at the railway station and Mr. Rainsford is looking for men to dig the trenches in which the pipe will be laid. The tank will be circular, 18x21 feet, mounted on stone pillars.—Post.

ORILLIA.

ARRESTED IN CHICAGO.—The Chicago News of Thursday last contained the following:—"Massey Geddes was arrested in Chicago yesterday by the Mooney & Borland detective agency, on a capias issued by the United States Circuit Court, at the instance of the London Guarantee and Accident Company, whose headquarters are at Montreal, Canada. The affidavits on which the capias was issued say that Geddes failed to account for certain funds of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, for which he was ticket agent at Orillia, in Ontario, Canada, and the plaintiff had to pay this company on account of the shortage, $546.58. Geddes was held to answer the complaint at the next term of court in the sum of $1,100. Geddes was employed as a station agent on a railroad near Chicago when arrested." Though nothing was publicly said about it at the time, it was well known that Mr. Geddes was suspended on account of a shortage in his accounts of over $2,000. Mr. Cox, President of the Midland, declined to prosecute him, and the Guarantee Company were about to arrest him when he disappeared. Mr. Geddes was exceedingly popular here, and there has been a general disposition to put the most favourable possible construction upon his conduct.—Packet.

OMEMEE.

CIVIC HOLIDAY.—Omemee's civic will be observed on Monday, Sept. 15th.

NEW THRASHER.—Messrs. James Flemming and James Padgett purchased a new threshing machine this week from Mr. James Evans. The machine was manufactered in Peterborough by Mr. Peter Hamilton, who is acknowledged to be one of the best manufacturers in the province. The owners expect to do a large business in Emily, Ops and the surrounding townships, and as they have named the thresher the "Dusty Herald" we have no doubt farmers who employ this firm will be greatly satisfied.—Herald.

Attempted Murder of Sitting Bull.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 5.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to assassinate Sitting Bull last night. The assailant said he was determined to avenge Custer.

Satisfied His Jealousy.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 5.—Jas. Greiner, who was insanely jealous of Gretchen Zeling, to whom he had been paying attentions, went to the house Col. Charles Parrat last night, where the girl is employed, and disturbed the family to such an extent that Parrat summoned the police. Greiner departed declaring that he would kill the girl during the night. While Miss Zeling was attending to her duties early this morning, Greiner entered the house through the basement and fired two shots at the girl, killing her. Parrat rushed down stairs and seized Greiner, who fired at him twice without effect. The murderer then struck Parrat on the head with a revolver and escaped, but was captured by citizens and jailed.

A Convict Escapes

A prisoner named Hugh Cline, under sentence of 23 months in Central Prison for horse stealing in Hamilton escaped from the Central Prison between 12 and 1 o'clock yesterday. He had been in the prison hospital for some time past under treatment for disease of the heart. He had been in the prison about a year, and some time ago made adroit attempt to escape by sawing a hole in the floor of a carpenter shop. A guard happened to kick away some the shavings with which he had covered the place of his concealment, and seeing the marks of the saw, lifted the piece and discovered Cline lying face up in the lining of the floor. Since that time he has evidently been watching his chance to escape. Yesterday a guard happened to leave the grated doors at the hospital unlocked and Cline coolly walked out, and by the assistance of a board scaled the fence and cleared off towards the west. He is a German, about 28 years of age, fresh complexioned, with brown hair, weight about 150 lbs. and height 5 feet 9 in. He has been a thief from his infancy, and has been in many of the prisons in the United States.—Globe. Sept. 4.

Preparing her own Death Scene.

Dickens introduces us in one of his later and weaker stories to an eccentric old lady who lived for years surrounded with the dismal trappings and gloomy accessories usually confined to a chamber of mourning, which in point of fact her room was made to simulate in its nicest details; the daylight being, for instance, carefully excluded, and the dim, religious light of wazen tapers substituted for it. The conception was objected to as forced and unnatural. Yet one of the faits delivers in yesterday's French papers shows that people of such morbid tastes exist in real life. A lady residing in the neighborhood of the Madeleine who committed suicide on Saturday last, had gone, it was found, to as much trouble in preparing the spectacular accompaniments of mourning as the most artistic undertaker of that fashionable quarter, with carte blanche as regards the expense, would have done. She had converted her sleeping chamber into a regular "chapelle ardente." A number of the peculiarly ghastly looking tapers used in dead masses were found alight round the couch on which she had lain down for her last sleep, with a crucifix in one hand, a chaplet of beads in the other. All the other paraphernalia of woe as the French comprehend them were arranged with the same care and correctness, and the poor woman might be said to have laid herself out. The loss of some $30,000—all she possessed—in some Bourse transactions drove her out of her mind, and she ended her troubles with a strong dose of laudanum.—St. James' Gazette.

Market and Sell Early!

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one of the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone.

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer"

The above we clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its common sense points. Alexander has already marketed and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexanders. Call and be convinced.

Clendenning.

An Egg Eating Match.

On Saturday night an egg eating match took place in a George Street grocery. A basket containing six dozen and nine eggs stood on the counter, and two men standing by agreed that the man who ate the least number of eggs should pay for the number eaten. The two accordingly started and alternately swallowed shell fulls of albuminous substance. Before long the basket was emptied, one man having eaten 3 dozen and 5 eggs, and the other 3 dozen and 4. The winning man said he thought he was "good for" another dozen.

A Narrow Escape.

On Saturday evening a horse attached to a buggy containing a little boy and a little girl was standing in front of Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store. A man drove up behind them in another boggy and, without tying his horse, entered Mr. T. Menzies' bookstore. As soon as the horse found he was not under control he started up street. The fore wheel of the buggy caught the back wheel of the buggy containing the children, and almost tipped it over. The little girl was thrown from it and in the fall her foot caught in the gearing, and there she hung screaming for help. Several men ran to her assistance and extricated her from her dangerous position. She was not hurt to any extent, but a very serious accident might have resulted from the carelessness of a man who should have known better than to leave his horse untied in a public street.

HAMLEY WINS.

The Half Mile Foot-race on the Driving Park on Saturday.

On Saturday afternoon a half mile foot race for $150 a side was run in the Driving Park between Hamley, of Port Hope, and Williamson, of Midland. Although Williamson has, for the last few weeks, been in Peterborough in steady training, yet, from the first notice of the race, Hamley was the favorite. The betting was rather slow before the day of the race, only a few bets having been made at "evens." On Saturday a considerable amount of Hamley's capital came up from Port Hope, and Williamson's stock fell to 5 to 3 in favor of Hamley. Shortly before the race it again fell to 2 to 1 in favour of Hamley.

THE MEN.

Henry Hamley is a young man nineteen years of age, 5 feet 11 inches high and weighs 145 pounds. He entered the pedestrian arena only two years ago and has been defeated only once, P. Kennedy, of Oshawa, having that honor in a quarter mile run at Port Hope in 1882. He has a symmetrical physique and appears to be capable of considerable endurance.

Albert E. Williamson is 22 years old, weighs 132½ pounds and is 5 feet 8½ inches in height. He has been four years on the track and has run a great many races, being defeated in only two of his matches, namely, by Raine in a mile race at the Peterborough Skating Rink, in 1882, and by Henry Hamley in the Peterborough Driving Park in 1884. He is of a dark complexion, has dark hair and a black moustache. He is slightly but well built, and runs in admirable style.

THE RACE.

The Judges were, Messrs. J. Cheer, of Port Hope, and James English of Peterborough, Mr. William Reynolds, of Millbrook, acted as referee, and Mr. C. H. Burgess, of New York, acted as starter.

At five minutes after six o'clock Williamson appeared on the track in a loose fitting red silk trunk accompanied by Mr. John Bryden, his trainer. Shortly afterwards Hamley came forward dressed in a black trunk of the same material. Both men were warmly cheered by their admirers. The starter called upon each man to put himself in readiness. The mark was toed, the hands were shook, the pistol was fired and Hamley had advantage of the start. Williamson soon shortened the gap and kept at Hamley's heels until within a short distance of the quarter mile mark. Here he attempted to pass his opponent and was encouraged by shout upon shout from his backers and admirers. His efforts were in vain, Hamley, from this point, gradually widened the distance between them and came in easily ten yards in advance. Time 2.9½.

NOTES.

When Williamson came on the track his skin was of that pink color which is significant of good training. Mr. John Bryden, his trainer, knows his business and if his man doesn't come in first he is not to blame.

The platform of the Grand Trunk station was crowded on Saturday evening with Hamley's Peterborough friends to see him off.

The Weather.

The readings of the Thermometer and Barometer in Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store today were as follows:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
Nine o'clock	71°	29.15
One o'clock	78°	29.15
Three o'clock	77°	29.15

Cricket Match.

A cricket match will be played between the Syracuse, N. Y., Club, and the Peterboroughs, in the Ashburnham grounds on Wednesday. The Syracuse team is at present making a tour through Canada, and is a very strong one. The Peterboroughs will have their best eleven on the grounds, and no doubt the match will be interesting to the votaries of cricket.

Governor-General's Medal.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. Charles Russell has been so successful in the recent 2nd class examination that he has won the Governor General's medal. The medal is of bronze and is presented by Lord Lorne to each Collegiate Institute and High School in the Province, for 2nd class competition, the candidate making the greatest number of marks to receive the medal. Mr. Russell stood high in all the subjects, but excelled in mental arithmetic, taking the full number of marks in that subject.

Change of Time Table.

A new time table is being printed for the Ontario Division of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It will come into effect on Tuesday, Sept. 9th, at 12.05 a.m. The following are the changes in the arrival and departure of trains at Peterborough:—The express from the west will now arrive at 10.58 p. m. instead of 10.45 p. m., the Peterborough local from the west, formerly arriving at 7.30 p.m., has been changed into a mixed train which will arrive at 8 p.m., the 11.40 a. m. express will arrive at 12.10 p.m., the 6.03 a.m. express will arrive at 5.52 a.m., the Peterborough local from the east arriving at 7.45. p.m. will arrive at 8. p.m., the 7.30 p.m. express will arrive at 7.13 p. m.

The Collegiate Institute.

The Collegiate Institute is now in good working order. Dr. Tassie, the Principal, has prepared a time table which appears to suit every one. Two rooms have been reseated and others have been put in a good state of repair. The new seats and desks are admirably suited to the scholars, being comfortable to sit in, and conveniences of different characters being attached. They are of oak and are finished in oil. They are made after the pattern of a kind of seat manufactured by a firm in London, Ont. Mr. A. Clegg had the contract and supplied the desks and seats at 45c. a piece less than the tenders of outside contractors. They are a credit, not only to Mr. Clegg, but to Peterborough.

The DAILY EVENING REVIEW is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

SO MODEST A VIRTUE

AS

GOODNESS

Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

Fire! Fire!

OPENED UP AGAIN AT

JOS. GRIFFIN'S

Boot and Shoe Store.

My Boot and Shoe Store opposite the Oriental Hotel was recently destroyed by fire—set by incendiaries—the greater portion of my stock was saved, and I am again re-established in business two doors west of my old stand on Hunter Street, where I shall be happy to meet again all my friends—old and new.

All the stock saved from the late fire (as good as new) I shall sell below cost, to make room for the new Fall and Winter Stock ordered.

Now is your time to buy cheap Boots, as I positively intend to do as I advertise.

As I shall run the old stock off as quickly as possible, parties requiring Boots should call at one and secure first choice.

MY ORDER DEPARTMENT is as complete as ever. Leave your orders. I guarantee satisfaction.

Nearly opposite ORIENTAL Hotel, Hunter Street.

CANNED MEATS of every description at Low Down Prices.

SAUCES we don't speak of, because the best sauce is hunger, and that excitant is easily secured and applied on the Lakes.

JOHNSTON'S FLUID BEEF, the highest form of nutriment adapted to the fullest digestive powers.

But the popular article at the most popular price is our HALIFAX CONDENSED MILK. We can't commend it too highly for its purity or its keeping qualities after being opened.

The selling price is put down so low as to make it popular. And 25 cents for a can will enable you to make a comparison favourable to ours, even though you are asked double the price for any other brand.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

GREAT FIRE AT CLEVELAND.

Over a Million Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed—Small Insurance.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 8.—A fire that occurred on the flats last night was brought under control early this morning. Sixty-five acres are in ashes. Every vestige of property between Cuyahoga River, the railroad tracks, and Scranton avenue has been destroyed. Travel over the New York, Pensylvania and Ohio, Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinatti and Indianapolis, and Lake Shore and Michigan Southern roads has been delayed. Large sections of track has been destroyed. The origin of the fire is still a mystery. The chief of the fire department being engaged on the south side of the fire, in which direction the flames were spreading rapidly, did not realize the extent of the danger, and there was not a single engine on the north side to check the possible course of the flames. When the fire jumped the river it was an extremely critical point. If a strong breeze from the south had been blowing the belt of flames, a quarter of a mile long, must have inevitably been swept into a thickly built portion of the city along Michigan and Champlain streets. Then it would have been impossible to check the conflagration. Cleveland has never had such a narrow escape from general destruction. A large number of firemen were severely, though not dangerously, burned. An unknown man was carried down with a falling roof and perished. Some of the losses are estimated as follows:—Woods, Perry & Co., $700,000; Variety Iron Works, $50,000; Eynon & Son, $10,000; House & Davidson, $60,000; G. C. Stanley, $1,500; Sherwin, William & Co., $2,000; A. Teaboult, $20,005; Hubbell & Westover, $25,000; railroad companies, $5,000; Potter, Birdsall & Co., $150 000; King & Co., $100,000; other small losses, $20,000. The insurance authorities say that the loss will not exceed one and a half millions; insurance, $400,000.

13. Give an account of the steps in the reaction against the artifical school.
14. Repeat the "Ode."

COLLAPSE OF A BANK.

The President, the Cashier and a Depositor Commit Suicide—A Director Dies.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 8.—The examination of the books of the National Bank of New Jersey, up to Saturday night, showed a deficit of $235,000. The stealings of Cashier Hill, who committed suicide last week, aggregate $196,000, and $39,000 is due to the bank from President Runyon. The examination, however, is not completed, and it is believed that the deficiency will be much larger. The directors have not made thorough examinations of the bank's condition for two years.

President Mahlon Runyon, of the National Bank of New Jersey, cut his throat in a toilet closet at the bank this morning. He used a room knife. The excitement is great.

The bank is in a state of chaos. Over a million dollars was stolen by Hill; Runyon was implicated in Hill's theft, and he expected to be arrested when he took his life. The city is wild with excitement. Crowds blockade Church street, where the bank stands. It is expected that acting cashier Campbell will be arrested for complicity in the conspiracy. Millionaires are trembling and more than two suicides are predicted. The mob threatens to burst open the bank, but is kept in subjection by the police. Walter Carroll, a depositor, has cut his throat on account of losses in the bank.

Bank Examiner Shelly has discovered a deficit of over a million in surplus cash and securities. Ira Voorhees' estate is practically ruined. Hill was custodian of the estate, and made away with securities valued at $19,000. Over $30,000 worth of securities belonging to G. B. Adrian's estate are missing. Runyon had $60,000 in Government bonds. Hill had negotiated for the sale of these, and consummated the same three days before his death. Runyon knew nothing of Hill's doings, trusting him implicitly. A crash in Wall street in May last took the bulk of Hill's stealings. Runyon, although popular, was ignorant of financing. He was a willing tool in the hands of the designing cashier. At 1.20 one of the directors, Johnson Letson, was reported dead. An investigation revealed the fact that he had become exhausted on account of the strain on his nerves. He was a heavy stockholder and had deposited trust funds. The scene at the bank beggars description. Blood had flowed from the room out upon the marble floor, staining it for a distance of four feet. "My God," exclaimed Director Stoddard, "The whole city will go under, the city debt is now nearly $2,000,000, and the bank holds it paper. The savings bank has gone under and we have their capital."

GROANS OF THE DEFEATED.

THE chief organ of Mr. Blake is continuing its rabid attacks upon Sir D. Macpherson. The Reformers have met with a terrible blow in the utter failure of the plot of their leaders to seduce leading Conservatives into the commission of bribery, and this is the manner in which the Globe, like a cuttle-fish, endeavours to mask the defeat. Their own witnesses proved that Sir John Macdonald made the promise of a government appointment to Mr. J. A. Wilkinson, and that it was only after being assured of this that Sir D. Macpherson, who had succeeded to the Department of the Interior, wrote the usual formal official announcement to Mr. Wilkinson that he would be so appointed. It was an ordinary notice in such a case, and there was not the slightest foundation for the pretence that it was transferable. And as to the assertion that there was something suspicious in the fact of Sir D. Macpherson destroying the applications for the appointment, it is even more absurd. If all applications for Government situations were preserved, a new block would have to be built at Ottawa every few years to hold the pigeon holes that would be requisite. If the Mowat Administration had any case against Sir D. Macpherson why was their counsel, Mr. S. H. Blake, so anxious not to examine him?

The truth is that the conspirators failed utterly in their attempts to persuade leading Conservatives to commit themselves, and as utterly in their attempts to manufacture evidence of complicity in such acts. Hence their slanderous outcries in the hope of misleading the people.

THE GLOBE AND THE C. P. R.

WE are not in the habit of following the bad example of too many of our contemporaries in alluding to the proprietorship of journals, or even to the editorial staff personally, believing that with an anonymous press, like our own, the proper course is to deal with the journal as an entity. But it is an altogether exceptional case that comes before us in the persistent rumours that the controlling interest in the Toronto Globe Company has been purchased in the interest of the C. P. R. The importance of the matter to the public is that a leading Canadian journal should have been so hostile to a great national undertaking as to thwart the progress of the country, and to make many good Reformers even among them, rejoice in the prospect of having the malevolence of such an intestine enemy disarmed. Because the C. P. R., like most good things in Canada, has been fostered and has flourished under a Conservative regime, these unpatriotic opponents of the Macdonald Administration have opposed it in every possible way.

Therefore it is that Reformers as well as Conservatives, who have the interest of Canada at heart, hope that by some means the Globe will be deterred from further interference with our national undertakings and national progress.

A CHANCE FOR MR. BLAKE.

What a pity it is that some statesman cannot devise some scheme whereby every man shall not pay duty on what he imports, and every other man shall. Perhaps Mr. Blake will tackle the question.—Hamilton Spectator.

"SMITH" AND PRESTON.

Enough is said when we say that Smith—we beg his pardon—we mean Preston—enough is said to account for the Conservative defeat when we say that the man who only saw Smith once was in Lennox. By the way, we would imagine by looking at Mr. Preston that he saw Smith more than once, as he hardly looks like a man who neglects his mirror.—Kingston News.

DID ITS DUTY.

"England expects every man to do his duty," signalled Nelson of the Nile. "Nelson expects the Globe to deny the deal," cried Nelson of Edinburgh. And the Globe denied it accordingly.—Toronto News (Indep.).

AN ENEMY OF CANADA.

The Sun is an independent paper. It has no party leanings. It is of Canada. If an enemy of Canada, as the Toronto Globe has been in these latter times, can be deprived of its power to injure our country, then the Sun will rejoice in common with all people who have the best interests of the country at heart.—Ottawa Sun.

DID NOT WANT HIM.

"Where is John Shields?" howls the Grit mob, "where is the skulking Tory, that we may question him, and force the terrible story of bribery and corruption from him. Where is John Shields?" Well, we don't want you!"—Hamilton Spectator.

AN EXCITING CONTEST.

THE PETERBOROUGHS AND THE METS. GIVE A FINE EXHIBITION OF LACROSSE.

The Match Lasts Two and a Half Hours—The Mets Win Three Games and the Peterboroughs Win Two—A Fin Exhibition of Lacrosse.

On Monday afternoon one of the most interesting games of lacrosse ever played in Peterborough took place on the Ashburnham grounds. The match was played between the Metropolitons, of Ottawa, and the Peterboroughs. Some of the Mets. arrived in town on Saturday night, and the rest came on Monday morning. They all stayed at the Grand Central Hotel and spent the forenoon in company with members of the home team strolling leisurely around town. At three o'clock the City Band marched down to the hotel and escorted the visitors to the Ashburnham grounds.

At half past three o'clock the opposing teams took their positions on the field as follows:—

Metropolitans.		Peterboroughs.
W. C. Cousens, M.D.	Gaol	J. Joyal
J. C. Whyte	Point	P. Myles
Geo. Popham	Cover Point	M. Tierney
W. J. Egan	Defence Field	J. Howden
J. O'Connor	"	M. Halpin
J. C. Grant	"	A. Yelland
P. Lewis	Centre Field	J. J. Sheehy
H. O. E. Pratt	Home Field	R. S. Kelly
J. P. Burk	"	W. J. Scott
J. P. Dunn	"	C. Rutherford
J. Hutton	2nd Home	J. Henderson
J. Kent	1st Home	W. Rudkins
M. M. Pyke	Field Captain	J. Coughlin
A. E. Perkins	Umpire	G. S. Perks

Mr. M. M. Hacket, of Cornwall, acted as referee.

THE FIRST GAME.

At twenty five minutes to four o'clock Lewis and Sheehy faced the ball. Sheehy pulled it out but a Met. got it and it went to the Peterborouhs goal. Tierney picked it up and in one of his noted long throws sent it to the Mets. defense. O'Connor nabbed it and threw, but Yelland secured it and passed it to Sheehy. From Sheehy it went to Henderson who made a shot on the Mets. goal. It did not stay, long for Whyte in an instant passed it out to centre field, where Burke picked it up and passed it to Hutton who put it through the stakes. Time, four minutes.

THE SECOND GAME.

After a short stop the players again took their places. Sheehy again got the ball. He rolled it out to Yelland who passed it to Tierney. Tierney made a long throw and the ball passed over the fence. On the face Scott gave it to Henderson, who made another well directed shot on goal. Cousen returned it to centre field and Tierney immediately had it on his stick. He gave it to Henderson and Henderson gave it to Scott, who threw it in the vicinity of the Mets' goal. Now the Mets made a brilliant play. In the scrimmage around the Mets' goal nearly all the men had left their places and centre field was almost vacated. The ball came out of the scrimmage and went into Burke's net. He made a short run to centre field, where Tierney attempted to check him, but he had already thrown the ball to Dunn. Dunn gave it to Kent and he ran square against the goal and put it through. Time, five minutes.

THE THIRD GAME.

The Peterboroughs now made a determined effort to win. On the face Lewis drew the ball and O'Connor, who stood watching "which way the wind blew," lit on it and propelled it towards the Peterboroughs' goal. Myers quickly caught it up, ran down the field, and after some good dodging, succeeded in giving it to Henderson. Henderson threw it to Kelly and he made a direct shot on goal. The rubber was stopped, and it again came to the centre. Lewis was now in luck. He "glued" it to his stick and all attempts were fruitless to take it out. He made some good dodging and chucked it into the Peterboroughs' defense. Howden, however, stood in the way and returned it to the Mets' defense. Popham started it travelling towards the Peterboroughs' goal and it gradually worked in that direction. During the remainder of the game Egan, Grant and Pratt, of the Mets, figured conspicuously. Sheehy made several dangerous shots on the Mets' goal, Kelly did some effectual field play, and Lewis and Dunn, of the Mets, played to each other with cool calculating judgment. Once the Mets came so near losing the game that one of the stakes was knocked down. Finally Yelland obtained the ball in centre field. He ran a short distance and threw it in a bee line for the Mets' goal. Rudkins "held" the goal keeper's stick and the ball rolled through. Time, 17 minutes.

As this was the first game the Peterboroughs had won from the Mets, of course there was every imaginable sign of elation. Hats were thrown in the air, summersaults were turned, and everybody cheered vociferously.

THE FOURTH GAME.

After the usual rest the 'crosse men were again called upon to take their places. This time Sheehy was again successful in the face Yelland, who always hovers near "Jimmy," seized the ball and flung it into close proximity to the Mets' goal. In a scrimmage it passed out and found its way into Lewis' stick. It was forcibly repelled and the Peterborough's stakes stood in imminent peril. As this game lasted 1 hour and 18 minutes, we will not attempt to follow the ball. During the course of the game Dr. Cousen, in a scrimmage which ensued directly in front of the goal, was hit over the eye by an accidental blow. He retired and O'Connor took his place and his place was filled by Clendenning. The Pererborough spare man was also called into requisition, Rudkins retiring. Several stoppages were made, but when the game again started the play on both sides was excessively hot. Halpin, on the defense, and Rutherford on home, played in a telling manner. Giroux also did good work. Kent, of the Mets, dodged bewilderinngly and Geo. Popham began to play in easy style. Joyal, when he had a chance, relieved the goal from immediate danger, and once when Joyal was on the field Tierney literally knocked a ball out of the goal. Kent and Kelly had several hot contests for the ownership of the rubber, and Burke excited the admiration of the spectators by his excellent play. After playing one hour and eighteen minutes, Giroux gave the ball to Henderson, and through the stakes it went.

THE FIFTH GAME.

Both teams now put forth their utmost efforts to secure the last and deciding game. Although over two hours' hard play had been put in no signs of weakness was apparent. The play was vigorous and each player on either side redoubled in energy. On the face Sheehy consigned the ball to Kelly's keeping. It passed down to the Met.'s defense, where Grant seized on it with alacrity and hurled it to Peterborough's point. Myles received it and ran down field. He threw, but the ball did not pass the defense. Grant again returned it. It passed from one stick to another until "Kit" Rutherford made a fine shot, which placed the Met.'s flags in jeopardy. After some scrimmaging Grant passed it down field. Tierney obstructed its passage and hurridly hustled it back. The Met.'s point received and sent it again down field. While the rest of the game was being played O'Connor showed himself to be a capable goal keeper. He was almost impregnable. Ball after ball was stopped directly in front of goal. Lewis got in some of his fine play, dodging in and out and several times throwing the rubber straight on goal. Hutton and Kent were also in this game very servicable. At last Lewis threw the ball from centre field and in a tussle before the Peterborough's goal it was put through between the stakes accidentally by a Peterborough player. Time, 18 minutes.

Cheers were now given in favor of each club, and all repaired to town. After supper the Peterboroughs and Mets. assembled in one of the Grand Central Hotel parlours and a pleasant evening was spent. Speeches were made, songs were sung, and Mr. Renand, of the Mets., became a favorite among the Peterboroughs by his social qualities and rich humor. The evening soon slid by and it was time to depart. The Peterboroughs and their friends accompanied them to the Ontario and Quebec station, where choruses and responses were sung by each club. As the train moved out all joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne."

NOTES.

One unfortunate occurance took place on the field. Billie Rudkins and O'Connor were both trying to get possession of the ball, when O'Connor, probably through the excitement of the moment, put his arms around Rudkins and threw him with great force to the ground. Rudkin's collar bone was broken by the fall, and Giroux took his place.

Everyone who saw the match united in saying that Monday's match was the best exhibition of lacrosse ever given in Peterborough.

The game was conducted in a friendly yet determined spirit, and not one instance of rough play occurred.

The Mets are a good-natured, gentlemanly lot of fellows. Their average weight is considerably more than that of the Peterboroughs.

The attendance at the match was not, on account of the threatening weather, as large as was expected. Before the end of the match, however, the seats were fairly filled.

THE BURDEN OF TAXATION.

Mr. Blake has a most accommodating memory. It accommodates facts to the necessities of Mr. Blake's argument with the greatest possible nicety. We do not propose to follow the honorable gentleman through the speech he delivered at Cayuga on Tuesday. The greater part of that speech was a rehash of the misstatements the Opposition leader has so frequently made before and which have been as frequently proved to be dishonestly made or dishonestly applied. One of his assertions of Tuesday we may refer to. He is reported to have said:

"The general expenture was increased from twenty-two and a half millions in Makenzie's times to thirty-one millons now."

On referring to the Public Accounts we find that the expenditure from consolidated fund in the five years ending with the fiscal year 1878 9 was $119,679,284.73—an average of $23,935,857. Mr. Blake's highly convenient memory played fast and loose with the facts on this occasion to the extent of nearly a million and a half. The smallest sum expended during Mr. Makenzie's term of office was $23,503,158. If Mr. Blake selected the lowest expenditure in Mr. Mackenzie's time he was wrong by more than a million dollars. In the five years just closed the expenditure has been $137,000,000—an average of $27,400,000. The increase in expenditure has been less than than and a half million a year, instead of eight and a half millions as the ingenious Mr. Blake would have his hearers believe.

But it does not follow that the three and a half millions fell upon the people in the shape of taxation. The greater part of it was for increased operations by Government works, post-office, etc., which, owing to the more prosperous condition of the country, did more business, cost more to operate and yield more revenue. In the five years ending 1878-9 the receipts from railways, canals, post office and other miscellaneous sources aggregated $21,000,000 or about $4,200,000 annually. In the five years ending the 30th June last they aggregated $30,000,000, or $6,000,000 annually. So that the ordinary expenditure which had to be paid out of taxes averaged $19,700,000 in Mr. Mackenzie's time, and has averaged $21,400,000 since then. The burden actually falling upon the people has increased by only $1,700,000 annually.

The average population in Mr. Mackenzie's time was about 4,050,000. Divide that number of people into the average expenditures, and the sum paid out for taxation will be seen to be about $4.85 per head per annum. The average population during the last five years was about 4,400,000. Divide that number with the average expenditures, and the sum paid out of taxation will be seen to be about $4.80 per head per annum. Instead of the Conservative Government having increased the burden of taxation, it has actually reduced that burden.

We may go a step further. During Mr. Mackenzie's time, interest on the debt, sinking fund and subsidies to provinces averaged $11,450,000 annually. During the past five years they have averaged $12,750,000. They are expenditures over which the government has no control. If we eliminate those sums we find that the expenditures on ordinary account falling upon the people in the shape of taxation have been increased during the past five years by only $400,000 a year above the average in Mackenzie's time. And if we divide the result among the increased population we find that the relief has been very great indeed.—Hamilton Spectator.

CHAPTER XXXII.

"My dear girl, the usurpation is on their part, not yours. The name and inheritance is lawfully yours, and the attainment of these rights for you has sustained poor Minnie through her sad, arduous career."

"Abstract right is not the only thing to be considered, at such a juficture as this. Suppose I should change places with that poor little deformed creature, would you not think it cruel, nay wicked, to turn me all helpless and forlorn out of a comfortable home into the cold world of want, a nameless waif? Uncle, I know what it is to be fatherless and nameless! All of that bitterness and humiliation has been mine for years, but now that my heart is at rest concerning my parentage, now that I know there is no blemish on mother's past record, I care little for what the world may think, and much, much more, what that poor girl would suffer. To-day when I looked at her useless feet, and shrunken hands, and deep hollow eyes, I seemed to hear a voice from far Judean hills: 'bear ye one another's burdens;' and Uncle Orme—I am willing to bear Maud's burden to the end of my life. My shoulders have become accustomed to the load they have carried for over seventeen years, and I will not shift it to poor Maud's. I am strong, she is pitably feeble. I have never known the blessing of a father's love, have learned to do without it; she has no other comfort, no other balm, and I would not rob her of the little God has left her. I understand how mother feels, I cannot blame her; and while I know that her care and anxiety in this matter are chiefly on my account, I could never respect, never forgive myself, if to promote my own importance and interest I selfishly consented to beggar poor Maud. She cannot live long; death has cast a shadowy mark already upon her wierd eyes, and until they close in the peace of the grave, let us leave her the name she seems so proud of. She pronounced it—Maud Ames Laurance,—as though it were a royal title. Let her bear it. I can wait."

As Mr. Chesley watched the pale gem-like face, with the soft holy eyes full of a resolution which he knew all the world could not shake, a sudden mist blurred her image, and taking her hand, he kissed her forehead.

"My noble child, if the golden rule you seek to practice, were in universal acceptation and actualization, injustice, fraud, and crime would overturn the bulwarks of morality and decency. When men violate the laws of God and man as Cuthbert Laurance certainly has done, even religion as well as justice requires that his crime should be punished; although in nearly all such instances, the innocent suffer for the sins of the guilty. Your mother owes it to you, to me, to herself, to society, to demand recognition of her legal rights; and though I do not approve of all that she proposes (at least the manner of its accomplishment), I cannot censure her; and you, dear child, for whose sake she has borne so much, should pause, before you judge her harshly."

"God forbid that I should! But oh, uncle! it seems to me something dreadful, sacrilegious to act over before a multitude of strangers those mournful, miserable events, that ought to be kept sacred. The thought of being present, is very painful to me."

"None but Gen. Laurance and his son will dream that it is more than a mere romance. None but they can possibly recognize the scenes, and the audience cannot suspect that Minnie is acting her own history. When a suit is instituted, it will probably result in a recognition of the marriage, and thereupon a large alimony will be granted to your mother, who will at once apply for a divorce. In the present condition of their financial affairs this cannot fail to beggar the Laurances, for I had a cable despatch this morning from Mr. Palma, intimating that the stock panic had grievously crippled several of Gen. Laurance's best investments. This news will be delightful to Minnie, but I see it distresses you. Now Regina—regnant, listen to me. Have no controversy with your mother; she is just now in no mood to bear it, and I want no distrust to grow up between you. Whether you wish it or not, she will establish her claim, and she is right in doing so. Now I wish to make a contract with you. Keep quiet, and if we find that the Laurances will really be reduced to want, I will supply you with the funds necessary to provide a comfortable home for them, and you shall give it to your father and little Maud. Minnie must not know of the matter, she would never forgive us, and neither can I consent that your father should consider me as his friend. But all that I have, my sweet girl, is yours, and Laurance may feel indebted to his own repudiated child for the gift. It is a bargain?"

"Oh Uncle Orme! how good and generous you are? No wonder my heart warmed to you the first time I ever saw you! How I love and thank you! my own noble uncle! You have no idea how earnestly I long for the time, when you and mother and I can settle down together in a quiet home somewhere; shut out from the world that has used us all so hardly,—and safe in our love and confidence for, and in each other."

She had thrown her arms around his neck and pressing her head against his shoulder, looked at him with eyes full of hope and happiness.

"I am afraid, my dear girl, that as soon as our imaginary Eden is arranged satisfactorily, the dove that gives it peace and purity will be enticed away,—caged in a more brilliant mansion. You will love Minnie and me very much, I daresay, until some lover steals between us, and lures you away."

She hid her countenance against his shoulder, and her words impressed him as singularly solemn and mournful.

"I shall have no lover. I shall make it the aim and study of all my future life, to love only God, mother and you. My hope of happiness centres in the one word Home! We all three have felt the bitter want of one, and I desire to make ours that serene, holy, ideal Home, of which I have so long dreamed: 'We will bear our Penates with us; their atrium—the heart. Our household gods are the memories of our childhood, the recollection of the hearth around which we gathered; of the fostering hand which caressed us, of the scene of all the joys, anxieties and hope, the ineffable yearnings of love which made us first acquainted with the mystery and the sanctity of Home.' Such a home, dear uncle let us fashion, somewhere in sight of the blue Pacific; and into its sacred rest no lover shall come."

The Last Caught.

VIENNA, Sept. 7.—The police authorities declare that they have captured all the active Anarchists during the recent arrests made there. Bachman is said to have instigated all the threatening letters, proclamations, and other revolutionary documents which were issued from the pretended secret committee, and which were circulated with a view of making an impression upon his political associates.

Would Crush England.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Gabriel Charmer advocates privateering to crush England's naval power. He holds up Capt. Semmes, of the Alabama, as the model for future naval heroes. France, he says, with a score of Alabamas would annihilate England's power.

LADIES' JOURNAL

Bible Competition No. 7.

Closing September 11th,

OPEN TO THE WORLD

GREAT CLUB OFFER.

The Leading Rewards are Lot 50 x 150 at Toronto Junction, Pianos, Organs, Sewing Machines, Gold and Silver Watches, Silver Tea Sets, &c.

The proprietor of the Ladies Journal now announces a magnificent list of rewards for correct answers to Bible questions. It is surprising how little is known of the Bible. The questions are not so difficult this time as last, and we should be glad if there was a hearty response so as to encourage the proprietor of the Journal to persevere in his good work. It was announced in the June issue of the Ladies' Journal that the competition which closed last month would be the last for the present, but it has been decided to try one more.

All money must be sent by post office or express. No information will be given to any one more than is stated here. So send on answers, and don't waste time writing. Do not send postage stamps unless six cents is added for the discount. Remit by postoffice order, scrip or small coin.

THE BIBLE QUESTIONS:

1.—Is Diamond referred to in the Bible? If so, state first reference.

2.—Is Emerald made mention of in the Bible? If so, state first reference.

3.—Is Sapphire spoken of in the Bible? If so, state first reference.

These all refer to the precious stones.

Now, any one having a knowledge of the Scriptures ought to be able promptly to answer these questions with a little study, and so secure some one of those rewards. Bear in mind every one competing must send FIFTY CENTS with their answers for which the Ladies' Journal will be sent one year to any address. If you answer each of the questions correctly and your answers are in time you are sure to secure one of these costly rewards.

This list of consolation rewards will be given to the last one hundred and fifty-seven persons who send correct answers to the Bible questions given above. But bear in mind, your letter must bear the postmark where mailed of 11th September, the closing day of this competition. Fifteen days will be allowed after closing day for letters from distant points to reach the Ladies' Journal office. But you can, of course, send in any time between now and the 11th of September, and your letter will take its place at the publication office in the order it arrives there. All letters are carefully numbered as they arrive, and there can be no mistake. If your answers are correct, and they reach there in time, you will surely get some reward in addition to the Ladies' Journal, which alone is big value for the half dollar. If you don't get anything but the Journal you will be well pleased with your investment, as it consists of 20 pages of fashions illustrated, short and serial stories, poetry, newest music, household hints, etc., etc.; in fact, just the paper to suit every lady.

By subscribing in a club with your neighbors you will secure some considerable advantage—that is, there must be at least thirty of a club, and all who send correct answers to the Bible questions may have their choice of a handsome ring, heavily gold-plated ladies' gold brooch, which retails at about one dollar and a half, of a triple-plated butter knife. Either of these you may wish will be sent postage paid. You will thus secure to a certainty one or other of these two presents, and in addition will have as good an opportunity of gaining some one of the other large rewards in lists given above just as well as though you had sent in singly. This is simply an inducement to get up clubs. We are sure our readers could not do better than to try their skill in hunting up these questions and competing for these rewards. Everything will be carried out exactly as promised.

Prizes in last competition went all over Canada and to many parts of the United States.

PETERBOROUGH—Daly's Grand Central Hotel, Sept. 29th and 30th.

Prof. Hotchkin's treatment is practical, rational and economical. Its object is immediate relief and eventual cure. It is based on scientific principles and easily demonstrated to the comprehension of every intelligent person, that a truss without steel springs or hard substance, having healed Inguinal and Umbilical as well as Varicocele, at the advanced ages respectively of from 65 and 95 years, must and will stand the test against all Spring Trusses to children as well as adults. Prof. Hotchkin having had 30 year's experience has become master of his profession, and defies the Hernia he cannot hold in its place.

Prof. Hotchkin has invented an apparatus to hold the piles in their proper place, which has been as successful as his other inventions. Go and see for yourselves.

Market and Sell Early!

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one of the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone.

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer."

The above we clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its common sense points. Alexander has already marked and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexanders. Call and be convinced.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Prize Winners.

The paddle which was offered as a prize for the best illuminated canoe in the recent parade has been awarded to Nelson Brown and Ernest Mason.

Personal.

In the examination recently held by the Law Society in Toronto, Mr. F. H. Sibley of Mr. E. B. Edward's office, was successful in passing the second intermediate examination without an oral.

The Lacrosse Championship.

The Montreal-Shamrock dispute has been settled by the Counsel, the decision being given against the complaint and in favour of the Shamrocks by a vote of 8 to 4. The Shamrocks are, therefore, the present champions. Mr. H. LeBrun voted with the majority.

The Brewery Cup.

The Victoria Lacrosse Club, of Millbrook, have entered for the Lacrosse Tournament to be held at Cobourg on Thursday for the "Brewery Cup," presented by Mr. Calcutt. The competitors entered up to this time are the Peterborough Juniors, Cobourg, Whitby, Bowmanville and Millbrook.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the following twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock a. m. this morning, as reported from the Toronto observatory are as follows:—Moderate winds, mostly south-east and south-west; fair very warm weather, with a few local showers in the northern portion.

Regatta at Carleton Place.

On Thursday the fifth annual regatta of the Carleton Boating Club will be held on Lake Mississippi. There will be a number of aquatic contests and other sports, and a lacrosse match between the Torontos and Shamrocks. Tickets will be issued at reduced rates on the Ontario & Quebec.

The Regatta.

Some of the Chemong Lake Regatta medals are on exhibition at Mr. J. McClelland's jewellery store. They are very beautiful indeed. Mr. Fobert, with his usual far seeing propensity, has provided a barge for judges and reporters. All races will thus be judged fairly, and no doubt a good account will be given of them.

More Domestic.

In a recent issue we referred to a man noted for his domesticity. It appears that he is still more domestic than we were then aware of. Instead of 5 years he has lived in town for 10 years, and has been down to George street only three times during that period. He has been in the Town Hall only twice, and that in one day.

If you want anything in the Gent's Furnishing Line go to McNEIL'S.

An Important Town.

The "Handbook of Canada," prepared for the information of members of the British Association by Mr. S. E. Dawson, of Montreal, on of the local secretaries of the Association, in a notice of the country between Ottawa and Toronto, has the following paragraph on Peterborough:—

"Peterborough is an important town of 8,000 inhabitants, where the Otonabee river, in a space of nine miles, rushes down an incline of 147 feet, and, on the way, does a vast amount of useful work. From this point as a centre, a whole realm of beauty opens out to the lover of nature, quiet lakes innumerable, flashing waterfalls, sparkling streams, abounding in fish and in game. This is the place where the Rice Lake canoe was invented, and in it the whole territory can be traversed with few portages. Through this region, down the Trent, came in early times the ubiquitous Champlain from Lake Huron, leading the Huron raid into Iroquois-land across Lake Ontario. Just on the verge are we here on the quieter landscape and fruitful fields of Central Ontario, towards which he whose holidays in the wilderness are over reluctantly paddles."

G. T. R. Workshops.

We are requested to state, in reply to "Anxious One's" letter in yesterday's REVIEW, that the deputation is arranging for an interview with the railway authorities at Montreal.

The Nile Expedition.

Capt. Ammond, of Ottawa, is in town for the purpose of engaging river men to join the Gordon relief expedition. At noon nine men were engaged. Capt. Ammond leaves this evening for Ottawa.

Pedestrianism.

When H. T. Hamly arrived at the Port Hope station on Saturday night, after winning the race here with A. Williamson, he was met by a number of friends and escorted down town, the 46th Battalion Band playing "See the Conquering Hero Come."

For Cheap Family Groceries

Try CARTON BROS., opposite the Market Square. A fresh stock of everything usually found in a general grocery store always kept on hand. Extra values in best Sugars and Teas. Call and inspect stock and be satisfied that our prices are the best in town.

Beware of the Book Pedlars.

Some parties are now canvassing the town with Albums. We simply say, beware. You can get them from 25 to 50 per cent. cheaper from us. We have decided to clear out our stock at reduced prices in order to make room for our extensive purchases for the Xmas trade. Come and get bargains. A. L. DAVIS & Co.

The Largest Circus Known.

There are twenty-two circuses travelling in America, fourteen in Europe, three in Australia, and several others in various parts of the world. Of these the largest and best known is Adam Forepaugh's, which exhibits here on Monday, Sept. 15th. It was first started in 1864, and has constantly increased since that time, until now it represents more invested capital, employs more agents, artists and laborers, has more wild beasts, has larger tents, more seating capacity, and is altogether and in every respect twice as large as any other exhibition. Its cash value is said to be $2,500,000, though it is doubtful whether Mr. Forepaugh would dispose of it for that sum.

Horticultural Exhibition.

The annual exhibition of the County of Peterborough Horticultural Society will be held in Bradburn's Opera House on Thursday, Sept. 11th. The prize list—copies of which may be obtained at Messrs. Ormond & Walsh's—is a comprehensive one. It is divided into six classes, namely, plants and flowers, fruits and vegetables, fine arts, ladies' work, children's work and miscellaneous. This prize list should attract a large number of exhibitors. Exhibitors are requested to make their entries with the Secretary, Mr. J. I. Davidson, not later than the day previous to the exhibition, and to send in the articles at ten o'clock on the morning of the exhibition, after which no entries will be received. The doors will be open from 3 until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and from 7 until 10 in the evening. Admission to non-subscribers, 10 cents.

Our Canoes.

At the Dominion Exhibition, now being held in Montreal, Peterborough is favorably represented. The Ontario Canoe Company has a fine display consisting of nine canoes of different varieties, with specimens of single and double paddles, &c. The Montreal Gazette says of this exhibit:—

"The Ontario Canoe Company, of Peterboro', Ont., have an attractive exhibit of their celebrated Peterborough canoes, which is the centre of attraction for many of the visitors. An exceedingly pretty rib canoe, complete with sails, is on view and looks the very picture of neatness. The folding canoe is a great curiosity and shows what progress the work of canoe building has made of late years. There are also displayed a number of cedar rib canoes and a cedar rib skiff."

The report of the Montreal Herald is no less favorable, for it says as follows:—

"The Ontario Canoe Co., of Peterborough, Ont., have the finest exhibition of the kind ever shown in Montreal. Their collection comprises longitudinal rib canoe, three cedar rib canoes, basswood canoe, cedar rib skiff and a folding canoe. These canoes and skiff are very highly finished and extremely handsome in appearance, and were greatly admired by visitors. The principle of the folding canoe is something like that of an umbrella."

As a proof of the wide celebrity of these canoes we may state that we have just seen a request for a catalogue, &c., addressed on a Swedish post card.

POLICE COURT.

D, & D.

TUESDAY, Sept. 9.—Napoleon Guerin was charged with having been drunk and disorderly. He admitted the charge. The Magistrate said that this was the first time he had appeared in court, but he could not allow such disturbances as that which occurred on Monday afternoon to go unpunished. Fine, $2 or ten days in jail.

STEALING APPLES.

Willie Fanning, George Manning, Sidney Manning, Fred. McGill and Thos. McGill, boys ranging from 7 to 15 years of age, were charged with having stolen apples from Mrs. Dixon's orchard. All except one pleaded guilty, and it appears that he acted as sentinel. The Magistrate said that apple stealing was becoming a nuisance. People spend labor and money in raising fruit and boys would then steal it. The boys were ordered to pay Mrs. Dixon's costs, which was $4.25, in default of which ten days in jail would be imposed on each. The costs were paid.

VAGRANCY.

Clara Jane Robinson was charged with vagrancy. She pleaded guilty and was committed to jail for three months.

If you want Handsome Coloured Shirts go to McNEIL'S.

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL.

FRIED TROUT.—Clean and wash the fish and dry them on a towel; roll lightly in flour, and fry to a delicate brown in hot butter, or butter and lard, or lard alone. When dished, season slightly with salt only. Send to table as free from grease as possible.

CANNED CORN PUDDING.—One can of corn, drained, three eggs, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter; one tablespoonful of sugar; a little salt; two cupfuls of milk; one tablespoonful of corn starch, wet up in the milk Beat eggs, sugar and butter together; then add the corn. Salt the milk and dissolve the corn starch well in it, and pour, by degrees, upon the rest, mixing well. Bake in a greased bake dish three-quarters of an hour. Keep covered until nearly done; then, brown.

BAKED SALMON TROUT.—Have your trout nicely cleaned, but it must be handled very gently, and lay in a dripping-pan with water and butter just sufficient to keep it from scorching. Bake slowly, basting frequently. When nearly done prepare a sauce in the following manner:—Have ready a half-pint of cream, a gill of milk, two tablespoons of melted butter, the beaten white of an egg and some chopped parsley; put these ingredients into a farina kettle and let it get boiling hot. Serve the fish in a hot dish with a few spoonfuls of this sauce over it.

Apple Tree Borer

In answer to a correspondent respecting tree borers, the Albany Cultivator states as follows: The apple tree borer, known as the 'round headed borer, in its perfect state is a beetle three-fourths of an inch long, with two broad whitish stripes running the whole length of its back, with rather long and curved horn-like autennœe. This beetle lays its eggs in the bark of the tree near the ground early in summer and on till midsummer. These soon hatch, and the young larvæ begin to gnaw their way inward, cutting gradually into the solid wood. They are about three years in reaching maturity, when they come out in the form of the beetle already described. Their presence in the tree may be readily detected by the fine sawdust-like castings from the holes. They are easily killed by clearing away the openings of the holes with the point of a knife, and then punching them with a flexible wire or small twig. We have never found anything better than a small flexible twig from which the bark has been stripped to make it small enough to enter the holes. The operater knows when he reaches them by the peculiar touch. It is better to examine the trees often enough to find the larvæ when they are young, and before they have penetrated far into the solid wood. A partial remedy for preventing the laying of the eggs, is coating the bark from the ground well up with soft soap, or soap made as soft as thick paint, with washing soda and water. If applied in fair weather, it becomes dry and will not soon wash off. It may be applied two or three times from the first to the end of June. This insect attacks the peer, quince, mountain ash, and thorn. The flat headed borer is half an inch long, more or less, of a shining greenish-black color. It is very common in the Western and Southwestern States, and is also found far north. It attacks the trunk of the tree from the ground up to the limbs, and lays its eggs at the south late in May, and in Canada in June and July. The eggs soon hatch, and the worms bore through the bark into the sapwood. It is much shorter lived than the round headed borer. Sickly trees are more liable to its attacks than strong healthy ones. The larvæ are easily found by using the knife, and are destroyed; and the eggs may be mostly excluded with the soap and soda already mentioned. This insect attacks the oak, soft maple, and several other trees.

SO MODEST A VIRTUE
AS
GOODNESS

Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

Daily Evening Review

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1884.

AN HISTORICAL PARALLEL.

As the Reform press is dubbing the Attorney General of Ontario Oliver II, we are reminded of a circumstance in the history of another usurper. As our Oliver would like to compare himself with Cromwell, so Louis Napoleon, before being raised to the purple, wished to liken himself to Napoleon the Great. So orders were circulated to salute the President with cries of "Vive Napoleon!!!" These three marks of exclamation were mistaken for the Roman numeral III, and the hero of the murderous coup d'etat was hailed as Napoleon III. Thus it became necessary to invent a second emperor in the person of the unhappy King of Rome, between the great Emperor and Napoleon Le Petit. The Reform editors should be careful with their notes of admiration, or they may find it difficult to bridge the channel between Cromwell and our little Oliver.

REVIEWS.

FORESTRY OF NORTHERN RUSSIA.—We have received another of the interesting series of works on forestry written by the Rev. Dr. J. C. Brown, and published by Messrs. Oliver & Boyd, Edinburgh. The subject of this volume is the Forestry of Northern Russia, and it is treated with all the thoroughness of our author. It is perhaps the most interesting of the series to Canadian readers, because of the striking similarity between the lumbering operations of the two countries. In reading some of the descriptions one may well fancy oneself as being on one of the rivers of Ontario. This brings out all the more clearly one important difference. We are accustomed to regard the Russians as not far advanced in civilization, and therefore it is the more surprising to find that they are far more scientific in their forest management than we are. Though their forests are even more extensive than our own, they have seen the folly of living upon their woodland capital, and are now treasuring it, so as to perpetuate the supply. Felling is so conducted as not to imply the virtual destruction of the forest, but to secure a perpetual succession of timber. This is the case not only in the enormous Government forests, but in those of private owners, and as we learn, in some instances, even in the communal forests. Surely what the half-civilized Russian can do is not impracticable for Canadians. One very interesting chapter deals with the profuse fossil flora of northern regions, showing what a great change there has been in the temperature of the globe. The information as to the navigation of the White Sea, is also timely, while we are investigating the capabilities of our own Hudson Bay.

A Slanderer's Tactics.

At length the Port Hope Guide notices the sworn refutations of its slander of the member for West Peterborough in the Local Legislature. It says:—

"Mr. John Carnegie, M.P.P for West Peterborough, had to get himself summoned to appear before the Bribery Commission before he could answer a number of questions propounded to him some months ago through the columns the Guide. On Saturday last the REVIEW, the organ of the member for West Peterborough, says, 'The Guide with its characteristic unfairness has not yet informed its readers that Mr. Carnegie has answered the questions addressed to him in June last.' In the language of the Tory sheets, when speaking of Mowat and the boundary award, we would say the questions might have been answered months ago but for Mr. Carnegie's stubbornness. In that gentleman's answers to the questions put to himself before the commission he would lead the public to believe that he is a remarkably pure-minded individual. It gives us great pleasure to state the fact."

This is the Guide's style. First it slanders its political opponents, and then it repeats the offence by means of a pretended acknowledgement of the refutation, without one word of apology for its dastardly invention.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

POOR "GLOBE!"

When the Browns were at the helm the organ had the courage of its convictions. At present it appears to have neither courage nor convictions.—Toronto Telegram (Indep.).

ONLY THE COST CHARGED.

Cottons are to-day cheaper here than in England. How then can it be said that the manufacturers charge the cost of the article and the duty besides?—Toronto Mail.

A RABID ORAAN.

The object of the organ is so palpably to bespatter everybody whom it is pleased to imagine had any connection with the case—even in the face of direct evidence to the contrary—that no reliance can now be placed on anything it says. In view of what Mr. Blake has said concerning Mr. Meredith's statement, it would be interesting to have his opinion the fairness of the rabid Grit organ.—Toronto Telegram (Indep.).

AMPLY VINDICATED.

So far as Hamilton is concerned, the National Policy has been amply vindicated. It has amply proved its ability to resuscitate our almost dead industries; and has proved its ability to carry us without severe suffering through a time of agricultural failure, and a time when the rest of the civilized world has been in the very lowest depths of industrial depression.—Spectator.

DISCREDITABLE SERVICE.

The Globe and the Manitoba Farmers' League, with its anti-immigration resolutions, have, no doubt, done a good deal to make the North-west known in Europe, but so much the worse for the North-west and for the Dominion generally. Men may poison the wells and claim credit for their activity; and the service rendered by the Globe in Europe has been about equally creditable.—Montreal Herald (Reform).

ENTIRELY SATISFACTORY.

Mr. Meredith made a statement, which, as is natural to expect from such a gentleman, was perfectly frank and entirely satisfactory.—Bobcaygeon Independent (Reform).

PART OF THE EXHIBITION.

Arrangments for Mowat's reception are now complete. It will be the chief attraction during the exhibition.—Parkdale Times (Reform).

WOMENS' RIGHTS.

Belva A. Lockwood, Esq., is a strong minded lawyer of Maryland, who has had considerable success in her profession, and is an accomplished bicyclist. She is now a candidate for the Presidency, in the interest of the equality of women before the law and all other reforms. She would have women have votes and their share of public offices. She seems quite sure that these changes would be a blessing. It is hard to find facts on which to base such a conclusion, as the instincts of the race have hitherto pointed the other way. We should like to see the experiment tried first in some community not our own, that the results might be fairly studied for a sufficient length of time. The old view was that God made people in families, and that it is as families that they take their place in the State. All will be much interested in watching experiments in a different state of things.—Montreal Witness.

Speeding in the Ring.

Speeding of horses goes on steadily in the Driving Park. We are informed that several local races will come off at an early date. Mr. E. Thompson's black horse and Mr. E. Brown's Fannie B, have been matched against each other for two hundred dollars a side. The articles of agreement have been signed and Mr. J. E. McIntyre holds the stakes. The race will take place on October 8th, on which date the Peterborough Driving Park fall races will also take place.

A Successful Lawn Social.

A lawn social, under the auspices of the Womans' Foreign and Domestic Missionary Society, of the Church of England, was held in the Court House Park on Tuesday evening. It was very successful. At about seven o'clock the City Band took their places on the grand stand and during the evening rendered pleasing selections. The Peterborough Electric Light Co. had erected a lofty pole which was encircled on the top by four electric lamps. The dazzling brilliancy penetrated every nook and corner of the whole park. Refreshment stands and ice cream tables were presided over by prominent members of the church and the younger ladies took charge of the bouquet selling part of the programme. Chinese lanterns hung from the branches of the trees and the several hundreds of people who were fortunate enough to be present seemed to pass a happy and enjoyable evening. The Court House, in its commanding position, looked stately and grand with the luminous rays of electric light falling upon it. At shortly after nine o'clock the people began to disperse, all seemingly well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

Prompt Payment is Practical Praise.

An exchange tells its readers how "to mind your P's" in the following paragraph: Persons who patronize papers should pay promptly, for the pecuniary prospects of the press have a peculiar power in pushing foward puplic prosperity. If the printer is paid promptly, and his pocket book kept plethoric by prompt paying patrons, he puts his pen to paper in peace, his paragraphs of passing events have more pleasing colors, and the perusal of his paper is a pleasure to the people. Paste this piece of proverbial philosophy in some place where all parties can perceive.

A MYSTERY.

A Terrible Murder or a Gigantic Hoax —The Police Baffled.

QUEBEC, Aug. 8.—A great deal of excitement has been created in Levis to-day over a supposed murder. It appears that at an early hour yesterday morning a resident of Indian cove discovered a man's coat, vest, straw hat, and a torn and a bloody white shirt in a deserted part of of the highway, between Begin's hill and the new St. Charles branch of the I. C. R. A short while afterwards a person passing along picked up a pair of breeches, a short distance further on from where other apparel was found. A thorough search was at once made by a number of residents, who suspected that some foul deed had been done, but no trace could be found of anyone. The articles have since have since been given in charge of the police at Levis, who upon looking closely over the articles, found rents such as would be made by a knife thrust, and also found a number of letters in the coat pocket addressed to M. Belliveau, St. Francois, Beauce. The whole affair savours of murder having been committed, and it is supposed that the victim is one Boissoneau, a native of St. Francois, Beauce, who of late years been prospecting in California, and is said to have recently returned, bringing with him a large amount of gold, which he carried in a belt around his waist. The police are working up the case but so far have failed to discover a clue.

Brother Against Brother.

CHICAGO, September, 8.—Wm. H. Downie, a member of the Board of Trade, was found dead in the basement of his house on Lasalle avenue last night, with a bullet hole in his left temple. He was alone in the house at the time of the occurrence. From the fact that his face was powder-burned and his hair scorched, it was at first supposed to be a case of suicide. But a closer examination of the position and direction of the wound, and the fact that no weapon could be found, led to the conclusion that it was murder. He had a brother, Chas. J. Downie, with whom he had frequent altercations in regard to the undivided estate left them by their mother, these troubles leading to separation yesterday, after an unusually stormy scene and an attempt by Charles to brain his brother with an axe. This, with the fact that Charles once shot at William, led the the suspicion that it was a case of fratricide. The police arrested Charles on the way from the city to his suburban home and found his person a revolver with one chamber empty.

His Biblical History.

Mr. Blake's knowledge of biblical history is very inaccurate. During his remarks at the powwow on Friday he said: "There is no Moses to day; we have no Moses to command the sun to stand still." Did he really not know that it was Joshua who commanded the sun to stand still? —Kingston News.

Daily Evening Review

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1884.

MR. MOWAT'S RETREAT.

THE London Advertiser contains the following editorial note, displaying its usual unfairness :—

"The Peterborough DAILY REVIEW accuses Mowat of keeping the people out of possession of the territory which was in dispute. It was not Mr. Mowat who disputed the right of Ontario to the territory. It was Sir John Macdonald. It was not Mr. Mowat who sent down the Winnipeg battery to Rat Portage to overawe the electors and Provincial officials. The sentiments of the REVIEW shows that it has much more sympathy with the marauders than with those who were seeking to defend what was their own."

We accused Mr. Mowat of keeping the people of Ontario out of possession of the disputed territory because he did so for many years. If Sir John Macdonald disputed the right of Ontario to the territory, Mr. Mackenzie, Mr. Mills, &c., did so likewise. Sir John, as trustee for the whole people of Canada, only did his duty in requiring a legal settlement of the question. Mr. Mowat certainly did not send down to Rat Portage so respectable a body of men as the Winnipeg Battery, but he did send down a little army of gaol birds and their allies, on the eve of his fraudulent election of Mr. Lyon. As to what the "sentiments of the REVIEW shows" we need only say that we have always held that Ontario should have her full rights and should hold them on the secure tenure of a legal decision. We blame Mr. Mowat for keeping us out of those rights for many years, and for consenting to throw a cloud upon our title by endeavouring to make and uphold an invalid, irregular and unconstitutional settlement. Fortunately he was compelled to retreat from his false position, and to adopt the Conservative policy of an appeal to the Highest Court of the realm.

A PECK OF DIRT.

THE Reform wire pullers are working hard to collect a crowd of the faithful to hurrah for Mowat at his return from the successful adoption of Sir John Macdonald's advice, after a sulky refusal for years. It reminds us of the "spontaneous" procession, convened by circular, to meet Mr. E. Blake upon his visit to Peterborough. We do not notice any efforts to excite a full attendence from Haliburton and Minden. This is ungrateful, for it must be remembered that Mr. Mowat has set one of his dearest friends on the judgment seat of the county of Haliburton. It is true that some of those whom S. S. Peck had robbed did not feel grateful for this, but our Attorney General explained in the House that the man who had misappropriated to his own use the funds intrusted to him by the County of Haliburton, was quite good enough in his opinion to judge the people of Haliburton. There certainly should be one supporter from the provisional county to hurrah for Mowat, even if the Attorney General has to swallow the proverbial "peck of dirt."

EXTENDING OUR TRADE.

WE commend to the careful pursual of our readers the suggestive letter of Mr. Lech, which teems with useful hints. That our trade can be extended with our increased facilities is undeniable, and it is no less certain that such a beneficial result would be more easily and thoroughly obtained by co-operation than by individual efforts, however energetic. If the Town Council is too much occupied in the discussion of petty squabbles to attend to this matter of grave public importance, it would be well for the business men of our town to meet together and take in common the necessary steps for opening trade with the new districts to which our increased railway facilities give us access.

THERE was a Reform demonstration in Kingston on Friday last. The Hon. E. Blake, the Hon. G. W. Ross and other M.Ps. and M.P.Ps. were present, and an independent paper in Toronto states that there were about 500 people in attendance. Mr. Blake was presented with a long address. Of course it was a flattering one, prepared by ardent admirers—that is, the language was gushing, but even these ardent admirers could not think of one public act of Mr. Blake that was of sufficient importance to mention in the address, except the bare fact that he had entered public life and become the leader of their party. Mr. Blake has had, the address stated, a "large Parliamentary experience," but it has been barren of good results to the country.

The DAILY EVENING REVIEW is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

THE SOUTH MONAGHAN

HARVEST HOME FESTIVAL AND OPENING OE THE NEW AGRICULTURAL HALL.

A Gala Day at Centreville—Lacrosse Exhibition—Evening Concert—Excellent Dinner—Will South Monaghan Join Peterborough.

On Tuesday afternoon a harvest home festival was held at Centreville under the auspices of the South Monaghan Agricultural Society. This was the day appointed for opening their new hall. The morning opened calm and bright and the committee of management might well have expected the large assemblage which gathered together on this auspicious occasion.

At 10.45 the Whistle-Wing, with about fifty excursionists accompanied by the Fire Brigade Band, left Peterborough. After an hour and three quarter's pleasant and uneventful sail Faucher's wharf was reached. Here carriages to the number of 26 awaited the visitors. After a short delay the carriages turned out and formed a procession, the Fire Brigade Band occupying the formost one. An exceedingly agreeable drive across two and a half miles of fine open country was relished by the Peterboroughites. At a short distance from Centreville the Band alighted and marched into the village playing a favorite air. The time was spent before dinner in seeing the sights. Centreville is situated in the heart of some of the best farming land in the county. It possesses several place of business and a Presbyterian church of a handsome structure. Attached to the church is a cemetery which contains monuments and tombstones which one would be almost surprised to see in villages of more pretentions.

Dinner was served in the Agricultural Hall. The Hall was beautifully decorated with evergreens and sheaves of different kinds of grain. Two tables stretching the entire length of the Hall were ornamented with handsome vases filled with well arranged flowers and they groaned under the weight of toothsome edibles. The people regaled themselves and the waiters were kept busy from 2 p.m., to after 5 p.m. in supplying their wants. The ladies in charge of the tables deserve the greatest praise for the efficient and attentive manner in which they looked after everybody's needs.

At shortly after 2 o'clock the Millbrook Lacrosse team arrived in a buss, and during the afternoon people kept arriving from the surrounding country. It was expected that a team from Peterborough would compete with the Millbrooks for a handsome cup which was presented by the Agricultural Society. It turned out otherwise for the Peterborough team did not appear, probably on account of their approaching match at Cobourg.

Shortly before 3 o'clock a procession was formed by the Milbrooks at Arrot's Hotel, headed by the Fire Brigade Band. They marched to a field which had been prepared for the match, and there the Milbrooks chose sides and gave an exhibition of lacrosse.

Meanwhile, in the upper story of the hall, votaries of the Terpsichorean art were tripping to the music of the Fire Brigade Band orchestra. This upper story was artistically dressed with green boughs and festoons hung in graceful loops. Wreaths and other ornamentations were exquisitely arranged, and the persons having this part of the programme in charge were evidently cultured in the art of decoration.

The Milbrook team played another exhibition match, after which Mr. David Turcott, President of the society, called the team together, and after referring in a few well chosen words to the success of the festival he handed a beautiful silver cup filled with flowers to Mrs. O'Brey who presented it to the captain of the Milbrook team. The Milbrook team responded by warmly cheering the Agricultural Society, the President of the Society and the Queen.

Speeches were now next in order. The following gentlemen took seats in a carriage which stood in the open ground :—Messrs. Ferguson, of Milbrook, and Riddell, Reeve of South Monoghan, and Messrs. Geo. A. Cox, Mayor ; J. J. Lundy, ex-Mayor ; D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate ; Councilors Cahill and Davidson, J. R. Stratton and Dr. Kincaid, of Peterborough.

Mr. T. M. MILLAN, Treasurer of the Society, in a momentary absence of the President, thanked the people for their kindness in attending in such large numbers. He then introduced Mr. Cox.

Mr. COX said that his remarks would be brief. It gave him much pleasure to meet with so many Monaghan people on this occasion. He briefly touched on the advisability of South Monaghan becoming part of the County of Peterborough. If the people would look at it in the right way they would find it to their advantage to belong to a city like Peterborough than to Port Hope and Cobourg. The principal objection could be removed by building a new iron bridge at Rosa's. He understood that there were differences of opinion in the township regarding certain matters and hoped the differences would be healed. He apologized for the Peterborough Lacrosse Club and stated that there must have been some good reason for their non-appearance.

Dr. KINCAID was then called on. He said that he had not intended to make a speech this afternoon. It was a source of great pleasure to be here this afternoon. He agreed with Mr. Cox as to the connection between Peterborough and Monaghan. The farmers would then have every facility of shipping their produce to the seaboard. The town of Peterborough, he said, would meet them half way in opening roads. He and Mr. Cox had been to the Northwest and other places, but had not seen such fine farming land as in the County of Peterborough. He had no aspirations in the political field. Others who were present would, before long, be coming around to see the farms, you know, (laughter). He thanked the people for the hearing given him.

Mr. LUNDY was the next speaker. He had intention of making a speech when he had come down this afternoon. He was glad to meet so many of his Monaghan friends and congratulated the Agricultural Society on the success of the festival. He was not now in public life and therefore it was with no aspiration in that direction that he was here to-day. He coincided with the last speakers in regard to the proposed union.

A. W. FERGUSON, of Millbrook, was now heard. It gave him great pleasure to be present on this occasion. When he first came this afternoon, outside appearances disappointed him a little, but when he came to the inside of the building his disappointment evaporated. He found there all the heart could wish for. The Township of South Monaghan should consider whether they should join the County of Peterborough or not, and act on their own judgment. Northumberland and Durham had been very liberal to Monagan. If they joined the County of Peterborough the taxes would be much higher than at present. He was sorry to take this course, but he was the only representative from Northumberland and Durham. He hoped the sun wuuld go down for many years on their prosperity.

MR. J. R. STRATTON said that it afforded him great pleasure to be present to-day. He referred to the joining of the county and township. For school purposes South Monaghan belonged to Durham, for municipal purposes to Northumberland, and for election purposes to Peterborough. He would like to see it connected to Peterborough for all purposes. He estimated the rate at much less than Mr. Ferguson. He hoped the friendly feeling which existed would continue.

MR. DUMBLE now addressed the assemblage. He said it was the inevitable destiny of the township of South Monaghan come into the County of Peterborough. He referred to the agricultural products and the friendly rivalry between the agriculturalists caused by the fall shows. He congratulated the the society on so successful an attendance. He was glad to see so many happy faces, and felt that morality and happiness pervaded the atmosphere. He was also glad to see no signs of liquor on the grounds to-day. He thanked the people for their kind hearing.

Mr. CAHILL then rose. He said it afforded him the greatest pleasure to be present at this harvest house festival. He approved of and endorsed what the worthy Mayor and preceding speakers had said. He had often heard of tables groaning under good things, and all that sort of thing, but he had never seen such a tasteful and substantial spread as he had to-day partaken of at the harvest home festival. The Peterborough people had not come to-day to coax South Monaghan's trade, for Peterborough already had that trade. If South Monaghan was connected with Peterborough by good roads the farmers would bring their grain to Peterborough and get more for it. All the towns in the vicinity were far behind Peterborough from the commercial point of view. Northumberland and Durham were willing to spend thousands of dollars on a bridge connecting Hastings, but he wanted to know what was done for South Monaghan? If the Council of the Township of South Monaghan would confer with a committee from the Town and County Councils of Peterborough, he had no doubt they would be met more than half way in all the projected improvements in communication. He thanked the audience for their patient hearing.

Mr. DAVIDSON briefly addressed the gathering, concurring in what had been said as to the joining of South Monaghan to the county of Peterborough. The ground had been fully covered by the speakers before him.

Mr. RIDDELL, Reeve of South Monaghan, after a few opening remarks, referred to the amalgamation question. If it would be advantageous to join Peterborough he would support the scheme with heart and will. He had been watching and had seen many signs which seemed to tend in that direction. The difficulty lay in the difference of the rate of taxes. The county rate of Peterborough was 1 9-10 cents on the dollar more than in the present county. An objection was raised as to the incorrectness of the estimate. Mr. Riddell said that he would be glad to receive information on the subject, and that the question of joining should be considered immediately, and the people should act on their own good judgment. He thanked the people for their kind attention.

Cheers were given for the Queen, the Township of South Monaghan, the Counties of Norththumberland and Durham, and the County of Peterborough.

An evening concert was held in the upper part of the hall, and a considerable array of talent was present. Mr. and Mrs. O'Brey took part in various ways, and Mr. M. J. Dunn, baritone, and Mr. W. Dixon, ventriloquist, of Peterborough, performed with their well known good style. An upright piano was furnished by Mr. J. J. Irwin of Peterborough and the accompaniments were played by Mrs. O'Brey with finish. Messrs. Duncan, Johnson and Duncan of Millbrook rendered the "Buccaneer's Bride" pleasingly. Wr. Willan, at the close of the concert, spoke in a concise manner as to the happy and pleasant way in which the events of the day had passed off. The Fire Brigade Band played "God Save the Queen" and the concert was over.

The people dispersed as the Peterborough contingent were driven back to the wharf. After an exceeding enjoyable sail in the moonlight Peterborough was reached shortly after one o'clock.

EXTENDING OUR TRADE.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—It is surprising to me, and it must be to every thoughtful mind, that, smart and active as Peterborough and her surroundings look, which to a great measure is attributable to her natural advantages such as few places possess, while there is no lack of organizations and societies of different kinds, anything to promote trade and commerce is entirely out of the question. Single individuals will, as a rule, exert themselves to the utmost for the gain of a few dollars, but jealousy is always alert to prevent any progress being made by organized action should it benefit all around. Questions such as : Will the O. & Q. Railroad benefit our town ? have been freely passed between our commercial men and have been answered in the affirmative as well as in the negative, and both are literally true according as the people of Peterborough will it. The building of the road did give an impetus to trade ; the money spent coming into circulation for commodities having a most wholesome effect, and all were benefitted, but no railway corporation ever made it a point for their consideration to benefit any particular place their road passed, and the O. & Q. R. R. is no exception. To any common sense mind it is clear that the road will either divert or increase trade for Peterborough, and it is surprising with what indifference our commercial men look on. How Toronto exerts herself with her Provincial Exhibitions, cheap excursions to induce buyers from smaller places, the selfishness in preventing anything which does not directly help her, as in the case of the Trent Valley Canal, fearing that others might gain thereby. Should this not also induce us to common action to increase our trade, as we have the means at our disposal ? I noticed some time ago, a letter in the Peterborough REVIEW by a gentleman of Ashburnham, Mr. H. Strickland, wherein attention was called to a vast trade east of us, of which Belleville has been in possession so far mostly. This part of the country is brought by the O. & Q. R. R., which the latter traverses, within easy reach of Peterborough, and as little as the most of us know about the population and its circumstances concerning trade, just so little is Peterborough known to them. As Mr. Strickland, in his official capacity, has the knowledge and is prompted by no other motive than to see the town flourish, the kindness with which he has acted to bring such points to light deserves recognition, and not that it should be passed over in silence. Years ago a board of trade in Peterborough was ushered in with all the pomp of framing a constitution, making laws and regulations : great talk was indulged in—on affiliation with the Dominion Board of Trade, and other high notions, so that it was clear to anyone with reason that all would end in failure. It is a lamentable fact almost with all organizations, that official ceremonies form the most important part, whereby the aim in creating such a body is lost sight of entirely, and hence the failure in many cases. Now, if our trading community could harmonize and form such a social gathering without the embellishments alluded to, a great deal of good done might be the result. Questions of importance in trade, as well as municipal matters, could be freely discussed and ideas exchanged, whereby many things by common action might be made attainable. Is it not worth the while to look after the obtaining of that trade alluded to, and not look on indifferent as to who gets it? As the O. & Q. RR. is an interested company in seeing that such a trade should rather go by their road to Peterborough, than to Belleville, no doubt they would meet us half way, and I further suggest that invitations should be sent to the different municipal councils, as also in pamphlet form, setting forth the different trades carried on in Peterborough, and send to all of the voters, and Peterborough will soon be known that she is a far superior place in trade than Belleville.

If we had an energetic council (and a letter like Mr. Strickland's must have been noticed), action would have been the result. But I shall not urge the matter on them, as it would take up a whole night's deliberation as to whether this should be defrayed by a general or local tax. There is a small balance on hand by the defunct board of trade, and this could not be made available for any better purpose, and I am sure no one would make opposition in giving his share for such a laudable purpose. Who will take the matter up ?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, &c.

Yours,
WM. LECH.

If it Were Possible

To get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring debility, langnor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medical value than any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking the Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public ; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as the people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so often humbugged by the week decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make the people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by those unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Mrs. Orme had carefully instructed Mrs. Ward concerning the details of her daughter's toilet, and selected certain articles which she desired her to wear; but Regina saw her mother no more that day, and late in the afternoon, when she knocked at the door, soliciting admission, for a moment only, the mother answered from within:

"No, my child would only unnerve me now, and there is too much at stake. Uncle Orme understands all that I wish done to-night."

Regina heard the quick restless tread across the floor, betraying the extreme agitation that prevailed in her mind and heart; and sorrowfully the girl went back to her uncle, in whose society she daily found increasing balm and comfort.

The theatre was crowded when Mr. Chesley and Regina entered their box; and though the latter had several times attended the Opera in New York, the elegance and brilliance of the surrounding scene surpassed all that she had hitherto witnessed. Mrs. Orme had created a profound impression by her earlier roles at this theatre, and the sudden termination of her engagement by the illness that succeeded her extraordinarily pathetic and touching "Katharine," had aroused much sympathy, stimulated curiosity and interest; consequently her reappearance in a new play, of whose plot no hint had yet been made public, sufficed to fill the house at an early hour.

Soon after their entrance Mr. Chesley laid his hand on his companion's arm and whispered:

"Will you promise to be very calm and self-controlled if I show you your father?"

He felt her hand grow cold, and in reply she merely pressed his fingers.

"When I hold the curtain slightly aside, look into the second box immediately opposite, where two gentlemen are sitting. They are your father and grandfather."

She leaned and looked, and how eagerly, how yearningly her eyes dwelt upon the handsome face, which still closely resembled the Cuthbert of college days, and the ambrotype she had studied so carefully since her arrival in Paris.

As she watched, her breathing became rapid, laboured, her eyes filled, her face quivered uncontrollably, and she half rose from her seat, but Mr. Chesley held her back, and dropped the curtain.

"Oh uncle! How handsome, how refined, how noble-looking! Poor darling mother, how could she help giving him her heart? In all my dreams and fancies, I never even hoped to find him such a man. My father, my father!"

She trembled so violently, that Mr. Chesley said hastily:

"Compose yourself, or I shall be forced to take you home, and your mother will be displeased; for she particularly desired that I would watch the effect of the play on those two men opposite."

She leaned back, shut her eyes, and endeavoured to conquer her agitation, and luckily at this moment the stage curtain rose.

By the aid of photographs procured in America, and by dint of personal supervision and suggestions, Mrs. Orme had successfully arranged the exact reproduction of certain localities; the college, the campus, the humble cottage of old Mrs. Chesley, with its peculiar porch, whose column caps were carved to represent dogs' heads, the interior of a hospital, of an orphan asylum, and of the library at the parsonage.

Leaning far back, in his chair, a prey to gloomy and indescribably bitter reflections as he accustomed himself to the contemplation of the fact that the beautiful woman in whom his own fickle wayward heart had become earnestly interested, would sell herself to the gray bearded man beside him, Cuthbert gnawed his silky moustach, while his father watched with feverish impatience for the opening of the play, and the sight of his enchantress.

The curtain rose upon a group sitting upon a sward, before the cottage door. Minnie Merle in the costume of a very young girl, with her golden hair all hidden under a thick wig of dark curling locks, that straggled in childish disorder around her neck and shoulders, while her sun bonnet, the veritable green and white gingham of other days, lay at her feet. Beside her a tall youth who represented Peleg Peterson, in the garb of a carpenter, with a tool box on the ground, and in his hands a wooden doll, which he was carving for the child.

In the door of the cottage sat the grandmother knitting and nodding, with white hair shining under her snowy cap border; and while the carpenter carved and whistled an old-fashioned ditty, "Meet me by Moonlight Alone," the girl in a quavering voice attempted to accompany him.

Minnie sat with her countenance turned fully to the audience, and when Cuthbert Laurance's eyes fell on the cottage front—and upon the face under the cloud of dark silish locks—he caught his breath, and his eyes seemed almost starting from their sockets. His hand fell heavily on his father's knee, and he groaned audibly.

Gen. Laurance turned and whispered:

"For God's sake—what is the matter? Are you ill?"

There was no answer from the son, who tightened his clutch upon the old man's knee, and watched breathlessly what was passing on the stage.

The scene was shifted, and now the whole facade of the college rose before him, with a pretty picture in the foreground; a tall, handsome student, leaning against the trunk of an ancient elm, and talking to the girl who sat on the turf, with a basket of freshly ironed shirts resting on the grass beside her. The identical straw hat, which Cuthbert had left behind him when summoned home, was upon the student's head, and as the timid, shrinking girl glanced up shyly at her companion, Cuthbert Laurance almost hissed in his father's ear:

"Great God! It is Minnie herself!"

Gen. Laurance loosened the curtain next the audience, and as the folds swept down, concealing somewhat the figure of his son, he whispered:

"What do you mean? Are you drunk or mad?"

Cuthbert grasped his father's hand, and murmered:

"Don't you know the college? That is Minnie yonder!"

"Minnie? My son what ails you? Go home, you are ill."

"I tell you that is Minnie Merle, so surely as there is a God above us. Mrs. Orme—is Minnie—my Minnie! My wife! She has dramatized her own life!"

"Impossible, Cuthbert! You are delirious, insane. You are"———

"That woman yonder is my wife!" Now I understand why such strange sweet memories thrilled me when I saw her first in 'Amy Robsart.' The golden hair disguised her. Oh, father!"

The blank dismay in General Laurance's countenance was succeeded by and expression of dread, and he looked from his son's blanched convulsed face, to that of the actress under the arching elms of the campus, the horrible truth flashed upon him, like a lurid glimpse of Hades. He struck his hand against his forehead and his grizzled head sank upon his bosom. All that had formerly perplexed him was hideously apparent, startlingly clear; and he saw the abyss to which she had lured him, and understood the motives that had prompted her.

After some moments, he pushed his seat back beyond the range of observation from the audience, and beckoned his son to follow his example, but Cuthbert stood leaning upon the back of his chair, with eyes rivited on the play.

The courtship, the clandestine meetings, the interview in which Pleg intruded upon the lovers, the revelation to the grandmother, were accurately delineated, and in each scene the girl grew taller, by some arrangement of the skirts, which were at first very short, while she appeared in a sitting posture.

When the secret marriage was decided upon and the party left the cottage by night, Cuthbert turned, rested one hand on his father's shoulder, and as the scene changed to the quiet Parsonage, he pressed heavily, and muttered:

"Even the very dress that she wore that day! And—there is the black agate! On her hand where I put it! Don't you know it? How she turns it!"

THIEVES CAPTURED.

Three Arrests Made—Silverware, Postage Stamps and Burglars' Tools Found.

Three persons, two men and a woman, are under arrest in Belleville, charged with burglarizing Mr. H. B. Rathbun's house in Deseronto. For some time past burglaries have been frequent in Belleville and surrounding country, and last week a man named Farrell, alias Frall, alias Warls, took twenty ounces of silver to Mr. Spargenberg, a jeweller in Belleville, to sell. Mr. Spargenberg's suspicions were aroused, and he bought the silver and made arrangements to purchase more. When the man returned with 74 ounces of the silver Chief of Police McKinnon interviewed him, and his answers, to the Chief's questions not being satisfactory, he was placed under arrest. His rendezvous was in a suburb of Trenton, and John Henry Zufelt and a woman calling herself Mary Ann Harrigan were arrested there. In the house the police found burglars' tools, keys, fuse, punches, files, candles, new silk handkerchiefs, large quantities of tobacco, pocket cutlery, several revolvers, two hammocks, diamond glass-cutters, large quantities of post office material (including postal cards, registration and postage stamps of different denominations) new table cutlery, ivory handled pickle fork, nutcracker, etc. The prisoners were taken before the Police Magistrate on Monday and remanded for four days.

A Strange Story

DETROIT, Sept 8.—Three courageous Americans went hunting yesterday in the marsh, at the mouth of the little Basset channel Detroit river, Canadian Customs revenue officer, on the look out, rowed along side their boat and grabbed one of the guns belonging to the party, on the ground that it was unlawful for Americans to bring guns into Canada. One of the men hit the official over the head with an oar, which made him drop the gun and get out of reach, when another of the party deliberately aimed at him with his gun and gave him a charge of small shot to remember them by. Then they concluded the place would soon become to sultry to hold them, and so they made a bee line for Detroit.

Market and Sell Early!

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one of the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone. * * * * *

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer"

The above we clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its common sense points. Alexander has already marted and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexanders. Call and be convinced.

Another New Church.

At a meeting of the congregation of St. Andrews' Church held on Tuesday evening it was unanamously decided to proceed with the erection of a new church according to the plans furnished by Messrs. Gordon & Halliwell, architects, of Toronto. Estimated cost, $15,000.

Prepare!

For the time is coming when you will consider not how many degrees in the shade, but how many degrees below zero. Any of my customers wanting their furs repaired will do me and themselves a favor to call on me now, as later in the busy season repairing don't pay, and cannot be done. W. LECH.

Fearful Attempts at Puns.

"Could you men who are going up the Nile be called Nile-ists?" asked a man on Tuesday evening. "Yes," responded one of the boatmen, "because we are going to an-Nile-ate the False Prophet and his rebels." "There is no use of attempting a de-Nile of that," remarked a third. "Oh, such see-Nile puns!" exclaimed a fourth, putting his fingers in his ears. "Well," said the man who had first spoken, "if you are going to get Mad-I——." The crowd could stand it no longer: they dipersed rapidly.

Leave Dull Care for an Afternoon.

To-morrow is the day on which the long talked of Chemong Lake regatta is to take place. Mr. Fobert was in town to-day and he informs us that all arrangements are made. Our townspeople should not miss this most interesting event. Take a half holiday and view the charming scenery, which is to be seen through the townships of Smith and Ennismore. Go out to Chemong Lake and inhale the cool, freshening breeze which ever blows from the water. You cannot spend an afternoon with greater benefit to health and spirits and you will come back to your duties invigorated and ready to do double the amount of work. By all means leave dull care for a few short hours.

Dr. Barnardo's Home.

On Thursday last a Ladies' Committee Meeting was held at Hazel Brae, at 4 o'clock, to transact business in connection with the home. The following ladies were present:—Mrs. Wallis, Mrs. Beck, Mrs. Bradshaw, Mrs. Geo. A. Cox, Mrs. T. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Gilmour, Mrs. McLelland, Mrs. A. Smith, and Mrs. Stratton. Mrs. Wallis presided over the meeting. The following resolution was adopted:—That a working meeting in the interest of the Home be held fortnightly at Hazel Brae. A subscription was at once taken up for the purpose of procuring material suitable for winter clothing for the children at present in the Home, so that there might be work ready for the next meeting, which is fixed for Thursday, the 11th. inst., at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Donations to this fund either in money or material are earnestly solicited. It was suggested that a sewing machine would be a very desirable addition to the property of the Home.

CANADIANS FOR EGYPT.

A PARTY FROM PETERBOROUGH TO JOIN THE NILE EXPEDITION.

Twenty Men From this Vicinity Leave to Form Part of the Canadian Contingent of the Gordon Relief Force.

On Tuesday morning Capt. T. Ammond, of Ottawa, one of the Canadian officers selected to be in command of the Canadian contingent of the Nile expedition, arrived in Peterborough in response to a despatch stating that there were men here who wished to join the expedition.

It is generally understood, we presume, that the Canadians are engaged as boatmen, not as soldiers, and that Lord Wolseley wants them to force their way up the famous Egyptian river in boats. For this reason river men or men accustomed to managing boats are required.

The Canadian contingent is to consist of six hundred men, and Major F. C. Denison has been appointed to take command of them. The other officers are Capt. Ammond, of Ottawa, and Capt. McCrea, of London. Capt. Ammond stated that Mr. O. Z. Hamel, of Three Rivers, was going with the party as superintendent, and the Rev. Father Bauchard as chaplain.

Capt. Ammond, although only here one day, engaged twenty men to go on the hazardous expedition. He received much assistance in engaging the men from Mr. T. Cavanagh, who had been talking with the river men about the expedition since the announcement was made that Canadians were wanted. The men were engaged for six months, and to go as far as Khartoum, where Gen. "Chinese" Gordon is believed to be. The following copy of an agreement signed by one of the men will explain the conditions on which they go, as the agreements are all alike:—

"Sept. 9th, 1884.

"I, Sidney Blade, agree to accept service from the Imperial Government as boatman, to take part in the expedition up the Nile to Khartoum, upon the following terms:—

"1. My term to be for six months, dating from the 9th September, 1884.

"2. My pay to be at the rate of forty dollars per month, out of which twenty dollars shall be paid monthly to my wife, Mrs. Sidney Blade, Peterborough, County of Peterborough, Ont., at the office of J. T. Lambert, Ottawa, or of the Agent of the Imperial Government in Ottawa.

"3. The Imperial Government to provide me with the following articles:—1 blanket, 1 smock, 1 pair trousers, 1 jersey, 1 undershirt, 1 pair of drawers, 2 pairs of socks, 1 pair moccasins, 1 flannel belt, 1 towel, 1 felt hat, 1 tump line, 1 canvas bag,—to provide me with free rations during the time of my engagement, and to defray all my travelling expenses from and back to the place of my engagement.

"4. During my engagement I agree to be subject to the authority of the foremen and officers under whose charge I may be, it being understood that such officers shall have the power of punishing any act of insubordination or irregularity by stoppage of my pay and, if necessary, my dismissal.

"SIDNEY BLADE."

Five of the men who were engaged here are married men, and they all made the same provision for half of their wages to be paid to their wives during their absence. Several of the young men made provision for the payment of a portion of their wages to their parents in the same manner. The following are the names of those who were engaged here and went from this vicinity:—

Wm. Hy. Anderson,	Wm. Hy. Lawry,
Sidney Blade,	John Walsh,
John Faulkner,	William Harris,
Murray Matheson,	John Corcoran,
John White,	Albert Bradshaw,
Thomas Hanson,	John McMahon,
Samuel Clancy,	John A. Sherlock,
J. Marcello Mowry,	Peter Phelan,
Adolphus Sinatt,	John Welsh,
Alex. Ross,	John Gorman.

The men were examined by Dr. O'Shea, and the doctor states that they are a fine, hardy lot of men, who are likely to do good service. Of all the applications the doctor did not have to reject one, but one enthusiastic old man was not allowed to go on account of his age.

The party left on Monday night on the 10.58 train for Ottawa. There was a number of people at the station to see them off, and as the train moved away they were loudly cheered, and they as heartily responded in loud hurrahs.

The party will sail from Montreal on Saturday next, and it is expected that they will go direct to Alexandria.

SO MODEST A VIRTUE
AS
GOODNESS
Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

CHOLERA
—IS—
COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all remedies, and the natives place the most perfect confidence in it

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:

DEAR SIRS,—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants tell us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

Believe me, dear sir, gratefully and faithfully yours.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

Oddfellows Excursion.

Don't forget the Oddfellow's excursion to Belleville to-morrow, Friday, 12th. The train leaves the Grand Trunk Station at 7 o'clock. Tickets only one dollar, good for two days, can be obtained at the bookstores of Messrs. T. Menzies and J. Sailsbury and from the committee at the station. This is the first excursion to Belleville this season, and as it will in all probabtlity be the only one, there should be a large attendance. The City of the Bay is an attractive place in itself, and a few hours can be spent very pleasantly there; but as the tickets are good for two days, the excursion affords a good opportunity for visiting friends.

Syracuse vs. Peterborough.

The cricket match played yesterday on the Ashburnham grounds was rather a surprise to the Syracuse men, who, having beaten Cobourg the day before, expected to treat Peterborough in a similar fashion. They were, however, beaten in the first innings by 45 runs. The second innings was commenced, and Peterborough had made 79 with 8 wickets down when time was called. For Peterborough Norley made top score with 65 runs, and he also bowled excellently. One of the Syracuse players stated the Peterboroughs were the strongest team they had met for a long time. They left on the evening train for Toronto, where they play a two days' match with Toronto to-day and to-morrow. The following is the score of yesterday's match:—

EXTENDING OUR TRADE.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—The spirited and business-like letters of Messrs. Strickland and Lech remind me of a practical and successful manner in which we could permanently advertise our town. That is by having a pretty full description of Peterborough printed on the backs of envelopes (all our busines envelopes) and they would be distributed continually throughout this section of Ontario, and more or less over America.

Peterborough and suburbs must have about 11,000 inhabitants—almost unlimited water power, mills, foundries and factories. The C. P. R. and G. T. R. competing, give us reduced freights, and the best distributing point in this section—no place to equal it between Toronto and Kingston.

Let a reporter go round and get the number of railways, banks, mills, foundries, factories, churches, schools, stores, &c., &c., short discription of our fine surrounding country, distances from important points, stages to surrounding villages, steamboat lines to summer resorts—bring out any and every advantage our town possesses.

This discription of Peterborough will be read by outsiders. They will compare it with their own villages or towns, and the comparisons will be to our advantage. They will see that Peterborough is the hub of this section commercially, as well as geographically.

I enclose a sample of said envelope.

Yours truly,
G. W. MORGAN.

Peterborough, Sept. 11, 1884.

[The enclosure mentioned above is an envelope from a business firm in Collingwood, having on the back a concise but attractive discription of that town, and the publicity thus given must necessarily be beneficial.—ED. REVIEW.]

POLICE COURT.

THURSDAY, Sept. 11.—John Bell was charged by John Gordon with having committed an assault on him on the 10th of September.

Mr. John Burnham appeared for the defendant, and pleaded not guilty.

After hearing all the particulars of the case the Magistrate imposed a fine of $2 and costs on the defendant.

Lacrosse Notes.

The Ottawa Daily Sun, in speaking of the recent lacrosse match between the Mets. and our boys, has the following:—

"It was a desperately close shave.

"Little Jumbo was the pet of the field and grand stand.

"Highly pleased with the treatment we received and entertain the warmest feelings of respect for our entertainers of yesterday. A more gentlemanly lot than the Peterborough Lacrosse Club and friends would be hard to find. —First Twelve Mets.

"A return match between the Peterboroughs and Mets. will take place on the Rideau Hall grounds during the exhibition—probably on the 25th."

Championship Lacrosse Match.

The last match of the season for the championship of Central Ontario will be played on the Ashburnham grounds on Tuesday, Sept. 16th, by the Peterboroughs (the present champions) and the Beaverton Club. The Beavertons have made two attempts to secure the championship this season and as they hold the Peterboroughs pretty tightly on both occasions this match will be an exciting one. The ball will be faced at 2:30 o'clock. The City Band will be in attendance.

An Important Arrest.

Detective J. W. Murray, of Toronto, arrived from Fenelon Falls on the 11.30 Grand Trunk train to-day, bringing with him a man named Frederick Cook, who is charged with robbery and larceny. This arrest may prove to be an important one. Cook was in Peterborough for about a month, and his business was, ostensibly, at any rate, that of a sewing machine repairer and canvasser. His headquarters he stated to be in Toronto. On Aug. 18th Mr. Renton, watchmaker, missed five silver watches, and he suspected Cook of having taken them. Mr. Renton had been in the British army and Cook had also served in that army. This caused the two men to be on friendly terms, and Mr. Renton believes that he was repaid by the loss of the watches. An information was laid against Cook, and as he had left town the case was placed in the hands of Detective Murray, who arrested his man at Fenelon Falls. Cook was brought before the Police Magistrate at noon to-day and pleaded "not guilty" to the charge Mr. Renton had preferred against him. He was remanded until Sept. 18th and was taken to gaol by Constable Pidgeon. Detective Murray states that other charges will be laid against Cook, and that he is "wanted" in Millbrook and other places.

Schooner Sunk.

BUFFALO, Sept. 8.—Cosby & Gunning, of this city, have received the following message from Peninsula Harbour:—"Schr. W. R. Taylor sunk in fourteen feet water. Loaded with steel rails for the Canadian Pacific Railway at Heron Bay, Lake Superior. Please take notice, I abandon her to underwriters. Want tug and two good steam pumps. Will meet tug at the Sault or Detroit, etc., etc. Signed, H. Buckley." The Taylor had evidently reached her destination, as other vessels from this port have unloaded at Herons Bay. She is 322 tons burden, was built in 1877, and registered in Picton.

Eloped With a Coachman.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Victoria Morosini, aged 25, daughter of the millionaire broker, G. H. Morosini, eloped yesterday afternoon with E. J. Schelling, a coachman, who was recently discharged by Morosini for making love to the girl. Schelling is a good looking young man of the dude type. Morosini is Jay Gould's partner.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Direct communication is maintained between Paris and Tonquin. The official journals are silent regarding the reported intention of the Government to declare war against China. Several powerful organs insist on a vigorous campaign. 50,000 troops are ready for the East.

ANOTHER REBEL DEFEAT.

Cairo, Sept. 10.—Mudir Pasha telegraphs from Debbeh that many rebels from Kerdofan and Merawi under the Mahdi's Ameers have been defeated near Anibikel with great slaughter. The military have resumed hauling steamers through the cataracts and hope for success despite the state the water is in.

THE KHEDIVE SATISFIED.

CAIRO, Sept. 10.—Typhoid fever has broken out in one of the British regiments here. Lord Northbrook had an audience with the Khedive to-day, and presented a letter from Lord Granville, requesting the assistance of the Egyptian Government in solving important questions, chiefly of a financial character, which England is now considering. The Khedive expressed himself highly satisfied with Lord Northbrook's declarations.

HORRIBLE MURDER.

A Railway Navvy's Scull Crushed by His Companion—The Victim Robbed.

The Globe of Sept. 11 says:—News has reached this city of a horrible murder which occurred on the 26th of July last at Jackfish Bay, on the north shore of Lake Superior. The victim was a navvy working on Mr. Reid's contract of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and the murderer is believed to be another navvy, who only worked a day or two a week to pay for his board. John Collings, the victim, an Englishman, was a good, steady labourer who saved his money. It appears that on the 26th of July last, Collings was last seen at the camp in company with a young man named John Ryan. The men were missed and a short time afterwards Ryan returned. He was asked where his companion had gone, when Ryan replied that he had quit the job and taken the steamer for Toronto. Of course this story was believed, and a short time afterwards Ryan left the camp and took the steamer Spartan down the lake. Colling's companions did not suspect that anything was wrong till about six weeks aiterward, when some men belonging to the camp who went out huckleberrying, discovered a body in the bush in such an advanced state of decomposition that it was almost beyond recognition. The clothing which the man wore, however, was the chief means of identification. The remains were then found to be that of Collings, who had gone away from the camp with Ryan on the 26th of July. His skull was smashed in a most horrible manner, the pockets were rifled, and the waistband of the trousers worn by the deceased in which he had sewn his money, had been cut open and everything taken. Beside the body lay a shoemaker's hammer, with the awful deed had been accomplished. Ryan was at once suspected of being the murderer, and the people remembered that he was generally without money and that the next day after he had been seen with the murdered man he purchased a suit of clothes and appeared to be possessor of plenty of cash. The hammer was also identified as belonging to Ryan, who had been in the habit of putting heavy nails in the soles of the boots for the men to make them wear longer while working in the rock cutting. Ryan came to Toronto after leaving Jackfish Bay and cashed a check, forging the dead man's name, for $42. This was another link in the evidence. The murdered man was known to have had in his possession when last seen with John Ryan some $480, which had been taken from his clothing after he had been so brutally murdered. The whereabouts of the man suspected of the murder are unknown, but is is believed that he has respectable relatives living in Montreal.

JAMAICA.

THOSE who object to the admission of Jamaica into the Dominion allege that it would lead to the introduction of very unsatisfactory additions to the Canadian Parliament. This by no means follows, for the Dominion members would, no doubt, be returned in accordance with the Dominion franchise, which would, we are convinced, afford fitting constituents and representatives. The local franchise would be the concern of Jamaica itself. There are grave reasons why such an addition should not be made to our Dominion without full consideration and proper safeguards, but any question as to the constituencies need not trouble us greatly.

CANADIAN PAPERS AT THE MEETING OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

WE notice that the Toronto World's Montreal correspondent complains that the papers prepared by Canadians for the recent meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science scarcely received fair play, and particularizes the fact that the papers prepared by special request by General Laurie on the Agriculture of Nova Scotia, by John Carnegie, M. P. P., on the Agricultural Resources of Ontario, and by Sidney Fisher, M.P., on those of Quebec, although accorded a place on the programme, were crowded out by being placed the last on a list of ten for a single sitting of five hours. While it was no doubt absurd to expect these papers to be reached under such circumstances, yet we think it would have been much better had the World's correspondent refrained from suggesting that there was anything like a "ring" opposed to the reading and discussion of the papers prepared by Canadians. Indeed we understand that the President of the section in which the papers particularized should have been read—Sir Richard Temple—much regretted the result, and that he expressed himself as particularly anxious that their authors should hand in, for publication in the transactions of the association, a summary of their contents. Moreover, it should be remembered that, we believe at the suggestion of our English friends, a sum of money has been reserved by the local committee for the publication in a separate volume of all the Canadian papers not read at the meeting. The authors will not, therefore, have spent their labour in vain, although it would no doubt have been more gratifying to them had time permitted not only the reading but the discussion of their respective papers.

WHO WISHED TO SURRENDER OUR TERRITORY.

The Advertiser having rashly asserted that Mr. Mowat and the Opposition wished to surrender the territory of the Province, our challenge to it to furnish proof of its assertion has made obvious the fact that no such proof could be given. On the other hand we have shown that Mr. Meredith contended for every inch of territory the Province was entitled to, that he wanted to take the proper steps to have our title legally acknowledged, while Mr. Mowat was refusing to take such steps, and that on the point on which they differed the Privy Council has decided Mr. Meredith to be right and Mr. Mowat wrong. Now that is made quite plain to even the comprehension of the Advertiser that Mr. Mowat never purposed to surrender any territory, it may not be amiss to point out who did purpose to surrender the territory—not leaving it to mere assertion, but giving proof of our statements. Even after the question of the boundary had been submitted to arbitration, so careless was Mr. Mowat about insisting upon the full right of the Province that he commenced to negotiate for a "compromise boundary." Somehow or other his negotiations to compromise the claims of the Province miscarried and though he admitted the negotiations in the Lieutenant-Governor's speech in the session of 1875-6, he has been dumb as an oyster about them ever since, and none of the particulars can be dragged from him.

Mr. Mowat having failed in his scheme to give away our territory by a "compromise boundary," immediately the award was made known the Globe, as the organ of the party, announced the policy of the Grits (on 6th August, 1878) as follows:—

"The decision of the Commissioners gives Ontario a territory to the westward of Lake Superior some 200 miles beyond the conventional limits now generally understood as bounding the jurisdiction of the Province in that direction. This region is included within the territory of Keewatin, which is governed by a very simple administrative authority, regulated by the laws of the Dominion of Canada. The legal boundaries being defined, the question becomes simply one of public policy, and that must be settled by friendly negotiations between the two Governments. We do not believe that Ontario has anything to gain by assuming the control of a district so extensive as that now held to be part of her north western possessions. Up to and from a certain point settlers and traders would gravitate towards Thunder Bay, but that distance passed the objective point of commerce would be the Red River. The construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway will of course make communication in either case comparatively easy and shorten distances, but it may be anticipated that the timbered region especially, which lies some distance west of the height of land, will find its chief market in the wants of the population of the North-West.

"The probability of a new province being established in the country intervening between the present eastern limits of Manitoba and the watershed of Lake Superior is very remote. Settlement no doubt there will be at intervals, and perhaps in a little time a considerable population, but that is a very different thing from such an aggregation of people as will constitute an efficient self governing community. Ontario will be entitled to secure all such lands and territories as may be either already surveyed or in process of development and contiguous to her present settled districts. Beyond that, it will be more profitable to hand them over to the Dominion to be dealt with by Federal legislation. Possibly Imperial authority might be required to accomplish this, but that is a mere question of detail.

"We are quite aware that territory, and consequent settlement, carry with them certain political rights in the Federal constitution. But there is not the least reason to fear that the political objects or proclivities of the new western provinces will be in any sense hostile to or other than quite in accord with the general interests of Ontario. We are more concerned to see the work of progress carried on energetically and prosperously—as it is, we believe, being carried on at present—within reasonable limits, than a large unoccupied—or very sparsely occupied—and remote region held, subject to much immediate cost and trouble, in view of some possible but altogether prospective benefits."

Here was a deliberate offer to surrender the territory that had been awarded us; nor was the idea confined to the Globe, for it is evident Messrs. Mowat and Mackenzie talked it over, and the latter incidentally admitted as much in a debate in the House on the 19th of February, 1880. Sir John Macdonald was saying that the fact of the Dominion having extinguished the Indian title over the greater part of the disputed territory had complicated the question. Mr. Mackenzie thought that all Ontario would have to do would be to repay the Indian annuities to the Dominion, and went on to say, (Hansard, p. 83):—

"Now, I recollect very well calling Mr. Mowat's attention to this very thing. I have so strong impression, however, of that territory, and I told him that, so far as my personal opinion was concerned, I would rather have the Indian money paid back than have possession of the territory."

These extracts are interesting reading in view of the great fuss Mowat and his followers have been making about being the champions of the Province, and put the hypocrisy and inconsistency of the Grit leaders in a striking light. They prove beyond a shadow of doubt that the Grits were the party who wished to surrender our territory; and had Mackenzie remained in power he and his friend Mowat would have consummated it—but Sir John having come into power at Ottawa, the tune was changed, and we have these same men now claiming to be the champions of our territoral rights. Their hypocrisy is only equalled by their cheek.—Owen Sound Times.

UNLICENSED LIQUOR SELLING.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Allusion has been made once or twice lately to the disorderly conduct of certain persons at a late hour in the northern part of the town, especially the north end of George street.

Now, it is well known to the residents of that part of the town that these disorderly persons have been spending the night in a house in that part of the town holding a shop license, it is equally well known that liquor is sold there freely by the glass, and the writer can name a number of homes in that part of the town that have been literally cursed and made miserable and unhappy through the presence of this "hell hole" in their midst. And yet, with two paid License Inspectors and three constables, this open violation of the law is allowed to go on. I wonder how long we are to submit to this state of affairs, a License Inspector who lives three or four miles out of town, and an ex-brewer at that. He certainly ought to do the work or resign. I am sure men can be found to fill this office who will do something more than to draw their salary. Thanking you for your space, I am,

Yours, &c.,
VERDI.

Peterborough, Sept. 11th, 1884.

The Oldest Maid.

LEBANON, Conn., Sept. 8.—Probably the oldest maid in Connecticut, if not in New England, is Miss Eunice Sexton, of this town. She resides with her greatnephew, William Sexton, and yesterday celebrated her one hundredth birthday. She was born September 7th, 1784, in Colchester, this State, and has resided there eighty-four years. During her long life she has never been sick enough to require a doctor, and even now her bodily health is good. Her only defects seem to be sight and hearing, which, though obtuse, have not departed. Once she has ridden on the cars to New London, but never has she laid eyes on a steamboat.

Sir John's Entrance into Public Life.

A writer in the Montreal Gazette, "Lacride," furnishes the following:—An interesting circumstance connected with Sir John's entrance into public life, forty years ago, is furnished me by a friend of the Gazette. It is that, of the many members of Parliament of 1844, only three survive besides Sir John. They are Hon. Wm. Cayley, of Toronto; Hon. P. J. O. Chauveau, of Montreal; and Mr. Laurin, of Quebec. It is clear that at the banquet to be tendered to Sir John, on this anniversary, these three gentlemen must occupy places of honor.

Arrested for Manslaughter.

IN connection with the drowning of a child in Toronto bay on Sunday last, through a perambulator in which it was seated slipping from the gangway of the ferry D. C. West into the water, a coroner's jury last night returned a verdict of culpable negligence against Captain Carnegie and John Quinn, deck hand, who were immediately arrested on a charge of manslaughter.

Cattle Disease in Western States.

IN view of the outbreak of pleuro-pneumonia among the cattle of the Western States, an order-in-council has been passed at Ottawa, prohibiting the importation of neat cattle from the United States and territories into Manitoba and the North-West, except under certain conditions, framed with the object of preventing the disease being communicated to Canadian cattle.

A Fatal Mistake.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9.—Wm. Callison, telegraph operator on duty in the Hocking valley, was shot and killed by Guard Beatlon last night, being mistaken for a striking miner, who was supposed to be firing one of the hoppers.

CONT'T DELAY SENDING IN YOUR ANSWERS.

At the solicitation of many friends Truth announces one more—the final—Bible competition. Owing to the fact of so many valuable rewards going to citizens of Toronto, this competition will be open only to persons living outside the city of Toronto. Any one residing in any other part of the habitable world will be eligible to compete for these magnificent rewards. The questions—which are supplied by an eminent Presbyterian minister—are very difficult, but the rewards are valuable. We hope the publisher of Truth will meet with the success his enterprise so richly merits. Everything he has offered in previous Bible Competitions has been promptly and cheerfully handed over to the successful ones the moment they are known. We most heartily commend the paper to our readers. They will find it all it is represented to be. Full and complete lists of all those who gain rewards are given in Truth the week following the close of each competition. There will be no change, and no postponement in any way; everything will be carried out exactly as stated.

HERE ARE THE QUESTIONS.

1.—Where is Gold first made mention of in the Bible?

2.—Where does it first state in the Bible that there was only one language and one speech on the whole earth?

3.—When is Inn first referred to in the Bible? by the word inn is meant a place of rest and refreshment, commonly known now as an hotel).

Everyone competing must send one dollar with their answers, for six months subscription to Truth. And aside from the rewards themselves they will find that they have made the best investment of one dollar they ever did. Truth is full and big value for the money. Bear in mind that you pay nothing extra for the privilege of competing for these costly rewards, as you will get Truth for six months in any case for your one dollar, which is the regular subscription price, and will also get one of these rewards, provided you answers are correct, and reach Truth office in time. Don't delay.

The land mentioned above could be divided up into building lots and sold to great advantage, as there are no vacant houses in the town of Clifton or Niagara Falls, as it is now called. Then, that even the last ones may not feel that they are to be left out, Truth will give a series of

The further you live from Toronto the better you can compete for these last or consolation rewards. Bear in mind that it is the last correct answer received at the office of Truth that gets number one in these consolation rewards. The offer is open only to the 15th September, and as long as your letter bears the post mark, where mailed, of the date of 15th September, it will take its place in the order received at Truth office. Fifteen days after date of closing will be allowed for letters from distant points to reach Toronto, but don't forget your letter must not bear a later post mark than September 15. All competing must send with their answers one dollar for six months' subscription to Truth, which will be sent to any desired address for the twelve months. Wherever you live, outside Toronto, you can compete at any time between now and the closing day for either the first or middle rewards, and as well as, of course, for the consolation rewards. Some one will get those five acres of land—why not you? Look up your Bible now, and see if you can find the answers to these questions. It will do you good, apart from the opportunity you have of obtaining a valuable reward in addition to Truth

SPECIAL CLUB OFFER.

If twenty-five persons join and send $50 each one of the twenty-five whose answers are correct will get their choice of a solid rolled gold brooch, new and elegant design, worth at retail two dollars; a Chambers' Etymological Dictionary, worth about same amount; a World's Universal Cyclopedia, or a volume elegantly bound of Shakespeare's Complete Works. Of course, each of the club will have the same opportunity of gaining one of the rewards in the regular list (in addition to the certainty of one of the prizes aforesaid), as though they had sent in singly. This is simply an extra inducement to clubs.

The rewards in last competition were very widely scattered over Ontario and Quebec. In fact every Province was represented in the list, not excepting British Columbia. A great many also went to the States.

No information will be given any one beyond what has above been stated. So don't waste time by waiting, but send in your answers and money now. If you happen to be too late for the first, you may be fortunate enough to obtain a middle reward, and that is where the biggest ones are. Truth directs special attention to the fact that clergymen are not permitted to compete, neither are persons who in previous competitions won prizes exceeding one hundred dollars in value. This we think exceedingly fair, and as no Torontonians are allowed to compete, the field is now open for a fair and square race for these rewards to any one, as Truth says, on the habitable globe, outside Toronto. No money will be received by telegraph or in any way but through the post-office or by express. One dollar only required. Try your skill. You are sure of good value for your money anyway. Address S. Frank Wilson, Truth office, 33 and 35 Adelaide street, Toronto, Canada.

DISTRICT INTELLIGENCE

KEENE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ENTERTAINMENT.—The entertainment on behalf of the Methodist Sunday School, to be held on Sept. 19th, promises to be a grand event. Several features new to Keene are to be produced, viz., mind reading, by Mr. J. Miller, songs by Misses Gallon, and also Mrs. Jarley's celebrated wax works. Proceeds for the library.

PICNIC.—The V. B. B. intend to hold a grand picnic before long.

SAVED ARMY.—The Saved Army have at last left Attendale. It is to be hoped that the officer lately in charge at that place has a better opinion of it than she has of Keene.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—This church is going ahead grandly and promises to be a very fine structure when completed.

RIFLE MATCH.—The match on Saturday last between Keene and Hastings resulted in favor of Keene by 29 points. One man who was supposed to know better thought he would use the large target at the 200 yd. range.

ST. ANDREW'S EXCURSION.—A very large number left on Thursday last for Campbellford and had a very pleasant time, as the day was all that could be desired.

[The above was received last week too late for insertion.]

DEATH.—Mr. Thos. Lavelle died at his residence, Hiawatha road, on Wednesday, the 4th, and the funeral was held on Thursday last. He was 66 years of age.

INDIAN RIVER.—The water is very low.

BAND PICNIC.—We understand that there is to be a picnic by the V. B. B., on the 18th. Wait for it and be sure and attend. Good dancing, &c. It will be held in Dinsdale's Grove, near Keene station. Admission, 10 cts.

NOT SO MUCH IN ERROR.—The score of the rifle match, given last week by a correspondent, was not so far wrong as a contemporary would make it appear. The introduction to the score pointed out that two ricochet shots were counted, which made the difference.

NEW HOUSE.—Mr. Lang's new house is still progressing favorably.

PERSONALS.—Mr. R. M. Wylie has returned from an extended trip to his native place and elsewhere, and has resumed business. Mr. Jas. Dickson is with Mr. R. Proutt at Marmora. Mr. Wilson, agent for the North Western Life Insurance Co., was in the village this week. Rev. Mr. Tazeland is on a visit to Montreal. Messrs. Wedlock & Kennedy returned from Montreal on Monday last.

WEDDING.—Mr. Jno. Hope of Lang, and Miss Millar, 6th line, were married on Wednesday last, we extend them the usual congratulations.

SAVED ARMY.—The Saved Army has dwindled down to almost nothing in our Northern Village. We wonder if Lang is as bad as Keene.

ALLENDALE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE.—Rev. Mr. Butcher, of Peterborough, delivered a lecture in the Hall on Saturday evening, 6th inst., practical and instructive. The lecturer exhibited a number of oil paintings as illustrations. At the close of the lecture the Rev. Mr. Sexsmith, Hiawatha, gave a short address, which was well received; then followed a vote of thanks to the lecturer and also to the Rev. Mr. Sexsmith, the congregation rising.

SAVED ARMY.—The Rev. Mr. Butcher gave an eloquent and practical discourse on Sabbath evening, subject, "The New Birth." After the sermon Lieut. McCormack took charge of the meeting. A large congregation was in attendance, but no apparent effect was made on the ranks of sin. Miss McCormack intimated that next Sabbath, 14th inst., would probably be the last service she would hold in this place, as the time had come to change her scene of labors. Some 8 or 10 have been induced to leave the service of Satan through her efforts. She has labored faithfully and amidst great discouragements, has stood to her post. While some may think she occasionaly used strong language, it is a question whether any other officer could have exercised greater patience in similar circumstances. May she have a more promising field of labor and meet with far greater success. It would be well if a competent person were appointed constable for this village and neighborhood. We hope steps will be taken in this direction by the proper authorities.

REMOVAL.—We hear that Dr. Shaw intends shortly to remove to his new drug store, where he will be able to meet the wants of his numerous customers, and have greater facilities for carrying on his increasing practice. Success!

SHIPMENT OF CATTLE.—Mr. James Fife took two car loads of cattle from the station here, on Saturday, the 6th inst., for the Montreal market.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.—The Sabbath School at Keene, Methodist Church, is increasing in numbers and interest, under its zealous and efficient Superintendent, Dr. Harrison.

Mr. Robb, commissioner, filed his statement of expenditure of $200 on 9th line, with vouchers for same, which were examined and found correct. On motion, John Hunter was appointed collector at a salary of sixty dollars. On motion, the clerk was instructed to strike the rate, and levy the amount required by trustees of U. S. S. No. 6 on receipt of their requisition. An appropriation of $150, under Messrs. Kelly and Kirk, commissioners, was made for opening 7th con. line, from boundary to lot 6. Orders granted:—To A. F. Chate, balance of contract on bridge in Warsaw, $137.00; to S. Rorabeck, refund of statute labor tax, $6.00; to C. H. Young, for lumber for sidewalks, $15.00. HASTINGS.

CHEESE SHIPMENT.—Two car loads of cheese, one from Norwood and one from Westwood factory, were shipped and billed through to Liverpool from this station on Tuesday.

CIVIC HOLIDAY.—On the requisition of a number of the business men of the village, the Reeve has been pleased to proclaim Monday next 15th inst, as a Civic Holiday, and our people will no doubt govern themselves accordingly by going to the circus.

THE RIFLE.—Arrangements are in progress for a number of Rifle matches to take place here at an early day, to which volunteers teams from Keene, Norwood, Warkworth and Cambellford as well as civilians from those villages and our own people will be invited to take a part.—Star

LAKEFIELD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

COUNCIL MEETING.—The regular monthly meeting of the Lakefield Village Council was held in the Council room on Monday evening last, Sept. 8th. Members present:—Messrs. McWilliams, Moore and Urquhart, Mr. Urquhart was appointed to the chair. The minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed. Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Moore,—That the Road Master be authorized to obtain the plank necessary to repair the sidewalks.—Carried. Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Moore,—That T. J. Nelson, Esq., get the use of the Council room for a cheese meeting.—Carried. Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Moore,—That the bon. presented by Mr. W. McDonald as Collector be and the same is hereby accepted.—Carried. Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Moore,—That this Council do now adjourn to meet at the call of the Reeve.—Carried.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.—The Lakefield Public School Board met on Tuesday evening last, the 9th inst. in the Council room. Members present, Mr. Sanders, Chairman, in the chair, and Drs. Armour and Caldwell and Messrs. Gordon and Dench. The Managing Committee, Messrs. Dench and Gordon, reported concerning repairs, &c., which was considered satisfactory by the Board. Mr. McWilliams complained to the Board concerning the ink supplied by the Board; referred to the managing committee to have the matter attended to. Moved by Mr. R. Q. Dench, seconded by Dr. Caldwell, that Mr. Isaac Watson's account for work $35.00, and Mr. Arnett's account for repairs $6.50, total $41.50, be paid.—Carried.

A discussion took place concerning the re engagement or hiring of teachers. The matter was finally left over for the regular meeting in October.

Moved by Dr. Caldwell, seconded by Mr. Gordon, that this meeting do now adjourn.—Carried.

YOUNG'S POINT DAM.—The construction works have been seriously interfered with during the present week. It seems that someone has let off an unusual flood at Buckhorn. The water on Clear Lake has rose over 2 feet in a week. The water pours over at such a rate at Young's Point that it is with difficulty the men are kept at the work on the dam. Coffer dams, etc., seem powerless to keep back the flood. It is really too bad that the control of these waters is not held by some one person. Such a flood is of no earthly use to any one but an injury to many as there is not sufficient water back to keep up the supply. It is a flood and then not enough to sail a canoe.

BOATS FOR THE NILE EXPEDITION.

We have the following particulars of a boat built by Messrs. John Reid & Son, of Portsmouth, for the Nile expedition, and tried on Monday in the Gun Wharf, Cumber, under the direction of Colonels Butler and Alleyne, of the War Office, and some officials of the Admiralty. The boat is 30 ft. long by 6 ft. 6in. beam, and 2½ ft. deep, is built of fir painted white, carries twelve oars and two sales, and her weight is about half a ton. She is said to be roomy and buoyant, with a flat floor, and is provided with awnings and other conveniences. A working party of seamen from the Asia, guardship, stowed on board two and three-quarter tons of commissariat stores, biscuits, preserved meat, vegetables, lime juice, and ammunition, it being intended to allow 350 rounds of ammunition for each of the 12 men to be carried. The provisions will, it is believed, last 100 days—the period required for going up and down the Nile. The stores were packed in oblong and square boxes, and with the 12 seamen also on board the boat exactly represented the condition she would be in when forming part of the expeditionary flotilla. He mean draught was 1 ft. 8 in., or 4 in. under the prescribed limit. The total weight then on board was estimated at over 3½ tons, including valises, camp equipment, and other necessaries. Thus for stability the boat answered all expectations and she was pronounced by the War Office and Admiralty representatives all that could be desired. Four hundred of these boats are to be built, and, doubtless, Messrs. J. Read & Son will have a large order to execute for the Government, as their trial boat gave so much satisfaction.—Timber Trades Journal.

Market and Sell Early!

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one of the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone. * * * * *

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer"

The above we clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its common sense points. Alexander has already marted and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexanders. Call and be convinced.

The History of a Great Show.

The history of the Great Forepaugh Show, which comes here on Monday, Sept. 15th, and which is the oldest, largest and best in America, has been an eventful one. Its owner embarked his all in the enterprise many years ago, but his rare skill in selecting attractions and his excellent habit of keeping faith with the public, have caused him never to regret the action. The show has travelled further than any other, it represents more money, has been seen by more people, and is conceded even by the most envious rival to be the best of all the circuses.

Bon Voyage.

On Tuesday evening, the Peterborough contingent of the Gordon relief expedition took farewell of their home and friends to do duty in Pharaoh's land in navigating boats on the Egyptian River Nile, and to aid in the rescue of a British soldier, Gen. "Chinese" Gordon. The stern fact stares us in the face that it may, perhaps, prove a fatal trip to some; death may overtake some in many forms, yet, notwithstanding this, whatever the result may be, Canada, and especially the citizens of this town, will feel proud of the twenty souls who left home on Tuesday to undergo the trials and hardships that are sure to be theirs—yet we understand and believe none are better able to perform these hazardous duties than Canadians, and rest assured of the fact that they will do their duty like men. Let us trust in an All-wise Providence that at the end of their sojourn they may return home again sound in body and limb. The work these men will be called on to perform, will prove not an easy undertaking, and it will require pluck, energy and courage to carry them successfully through. We feel confident the Peterborough contingent will give evidence, when on duty, of possessing all the above excellent features. Farewell, boys; a right hearty good-bye; may the cruel and relentless hand of adversity never tighten its grasp on one of you. May success crown your efforts in this last but not least evidence of your true loyalty. Again, boys, we wish you farewell.

Personal.

Miss Clench, pianist, and Miss Leonora Clench, violiniste, who have been in town visiting friends since Monday, departed this morning. They sail for Leipsic, Germany, on the 25th September.

Town vs. County.

A football match, Town vs. County, will be played on the Ashburnham grounds on Saturday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock. As the county men are heavy, strong fellows, and as the town boys have had considerable practice, the game no doubt will be worthy of patronage.

The Nile Expedition.

This forenoon forty-two men from the west—principally from Winnipeg—passed through here on the Ontario and Ruebec Railway, on their way to Ottawa, in charge of Col. Kennedy, of Winnipeg. They were going to join the Canadian contingent of the Gordon relief expedition.

Lacrosse Tournament.

The young Peterborough lacrosse team left this morning per Calcutt's line of steamers to attend the grand lacrosse tournament at Cobourg. Between forty and fifty votaries of lacrosse accompanied the team this morning, and some few persons went on last evening's Grand Trunk train.

The Weather.

The readings of the Thermometer and Barometer in Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store today were as follows:—

Wedding Bells.

We extend congratulations to Mr. George Hatton, son of our late Police Magistrate, and Miss Ella Campbell, daughter of James Campbell Esq., who were united in marriage on Wednesday afternoon at St. John's Church. The nuptial ceremony was performed by the Rector, Rev. J. W. R. Beck. Long before the appointed hour the church was filled to the doors with an expectant and eager assemblage, consisting chiefly of the fair sex. Shortly after three o'clock the carriages arrived, and the father of the bride led her to the altar. Twelve front seats were reserved for friends, and were separated from the rest by two evergreen gates. The bride was beautifully attired in cream brocade satin and a wreath of orange blossoms encircled her brow. The bridesmaids to the number of five were dressed with exquisite taste, in cream satin, white silk, and brown muslin, and each wore a garland of jasomine blossoms. After the service the organ pealed forth Mendellshon's grand wedding march. Two little ten year old girls in white, Misses Rackham and Carnegie, preceded the bride and bridesgroom, carrying baskets of flowers. The bridal party repaired to the residence of the bride's father, where breakfast was partaken of. The Ontario & Quebec evening express carried the happy pair away. They will spend their honeymoon in New York. The bridesmaids were Miss Cottingham, Peterborough; Misses Caldwell and Mortimer, Ottawa; Miss Matchett, Lindsay, and Miss Hatton, Peterborough. Mr. Henderson, of Toronto, acted as groomsman.

Our Fuel Supply.

As every one, be he rich or poor, has a direct pecuniary interest in any project calculated to increase the supply and lessen the cost of fuel, our readers will be glad to learn that Mr. Geo. Hilliard has been experimenting in this direction during the past season and that his efforts promise to be crowned with entire success. As the reader is aware, there still exists to the north of us a considerable supply of good hardwood, which would be invaluable to us could it only be transported to our doors at a moderate cost. One or two attempts have already been made to float it down in the same manner as sawlogs, but they were not attended with any great success, chiefly owing to the loss sustained by lockages, and the expense attending its removal from the water. Believing that these difficulties could be largely overcome, Mr. Hilliard had a considerable quantity of ordinary cordwood taken out last winter and delivered on the shores of Stony Lake, where it was allowed to remain drying until about six weeks ago. He then had it placed upon rafts or cribs for transport to Lakefield, from whence it was proposed to "run" it down the river loose. Owing, however, to the work now going on, on the Young's Point and Lakefield dams, the present lot had to be driven loose from the former point, but, although this materially enhanced the chances of loss, we understand that the percentage actually lost will not be serious. The other point to which Mr. Hilliard directed his attention was the devising of some cheap and expeditious means of taking the wood immediately on its arrival out of the water and placing it where it could be piled. To this end he determined to build a floating elevator which could be moved along the river bank as it became filled with wood. This was done by placing a portable steam engine on a raft and attaching thereto, to be driven by it, an elevator which takes the wood out of the water, carries it to a considerable height and then drops it into an inclined spout, whose bottom is a series of rollers, which, aided by the wood's own weight, conveys it to the shore and drops it where it is desired to pile it. From the success which has attended this year's operation, notwithstanding the untoward circumstances already mentioned, there can be little doubt that Mr. Hilliard will be able to make this method of increasing our wood supply a complete success, and materially benefit both himself and every householder in Peterborough.

SO MODEST A VIRTUE
AS
GOODNESS
Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

CHOLERA
—IS—
COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all remedies, and the natives place the most perfect confidence in it

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:

DEAR SIRS,—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants tell us that eight out of every ten to whom it was proscribed recovered.

Believe me, dear sir, gratefully and faithfully yours.

LACROSSE TOURNAMENT.

The Third Lacrosse Tournament for the Brewery Cup is Unsatisfactory to the Home Club.

On Thursday morning, the Young Peterborough Lacrosse Club, accompanied by the Fire Brigade Band and a number of admirers of the game, went down the river on the Whistle Wing, to compete at Cobourg for the Brewery cup in the lacrosse tournament which was being held in that town. Going down the river, several vocalists rendered songs to beguile the hours away. At 10.30, Harwood was reached, and the Cobourg railway then received the excursionists. After an hours ride the boys were brought into the town of Cobourg, and marched at once to the Dunham house, where they were quartered for the day.

After dinner the Fire Brigade Band, the Young Peterboroughs, and the Cobourg team formed a procession and after parading the principal streets, marched to the lacrosse grounds. Although several other clubs had entered to contest for the cup, only two clubs filed an appearance, namely, the Young Peterboroughs and Cobourgs.

About two o'clock, the umpires and referees were chosen and the match commenced. The Young Peterboroughs won the first game after 15 minutes play. During the next hours play the Peterboroughs claimed three successive games, but they were dissallowed by the referee and umpire. The Peterboroughs then protested against the referee and umpire, and a change was made. The match lasted three hours, and the Cobourgs won the second, third, and fourth games, thus winning the match. Our boys speak on favorable terms as of the Cobourg team, but all uniting in stating that the referee was incompetent.

At 7 o'clock in the evening, the home team boarded the Cobourg railway train, which had been kindly held over time for them, by Mr. Barber, the General Manager, and started homeward. Connection was again made at Harwood and the Whistle-Wing arrived in town at about one o'clock in the morning.

BREAKING WINDOWS.

FRIDAY, Sept. 12.—A boy of about 10 years, named W. D. Jewett, was charged by Wm. Yelland with having maliciously injured his property, by throwing sticks through the windows. Jewett pleaded not guilty. When the evidence was heard, the Magistrate said that he had determined that the first case of window breaking coming before him should receive severe punishment, but, as several extenuating circumstances were in the boy's favor, he would impose a fine of only $1, without costs.

CALAMITIOUS CYCLONE.

Towns and Villages in Wisconsin Ravaged by a Furious Storm.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 10.—It is rumored that a cyclone wrecked thirteen houses between Stillwater and Marine Mills, a few miles north of that place. Many were injured. All the physicians in Stillwater were called out. The town of Clear Lake, Wis., was badly wrecked by the storm yesterday evening. Half the town is in ruins. Three yersons were killed and many injured. Its path was half a mile wide in the first place struck, a mile and a half north of Minneapolis, moving easterly through the town of Marine, an the St. Crox river, thence to Clear Lake. Nothing has yet been heard of any damage at that point. Mr. Geo. Rutherford was fatally injured at Grant. Ira J. Scale received severe injuries. Where wire fences enclosed pasture land horses and cattle were blown against them and badly cut up.

A SCENE OF HORROR.

CLEAR LAKE, Wis., Sept. 10—Yesterday's cyclone caused general devastation hereabouts. The greater portion of the town is in ruins. The scene after the storm passed over was horrible in the extreme, men, women and children running about in a perfect frenzy of excitement and fear. Here and there people could be seen coming out of their cellars, almost paralyzed with fear. The strongest man was as a child, for no human power could have resisted the terrible force. One house of brick veneer was taken from the foundation and turned completely around. A large barn was blown away, leaving the floors and mangers, with the horses peacefully eating their supper. A little girl was taken in the arms of the tempest and landed in the branches of a tree, but slightly injured. One large frame house was blown completely out of sight; not one particle of the house or goods could be found, though search for a mile was made in the track of the storm. The family fortunately had taken refuge in the cellar. Many families are left destitute, not a vestige of their wordly possessions remaining.

FOUR YOUNG MEN DROWNED.

Their Boat Run Down by a Steam Tug—Their Bodies Recovered.

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 11.—A terrible accident happened here last evening, whereby four young men lost their lives. The particulars as near as can be learned are as follows:—Five young men, named Henry McIntyre, son of Mr. McIntyre, tailor, of Leamington; I. W. Kennedy, son of Rev. Mr. Kennedy, of Thorndale, Ont.; Jas. Milne, son of Mr. Milne, Agincourt, Ont.; Peter Lamphier, son of Mr. Peter Lamphier, of Grahamsville, Ont.; and another named Benyon, of St. Catharines, ranging from seventeen to twenty years of age, attending the Collegiate Institute in this city, hired a row boat last evening to take a row on the canal. They proceeded some distance down the old canal towards Port Dalhousie, where they went in bathing. While they were returning to the city, about 8 o'clock, and when about 400 yards below lock No. 2, the steam yacht Lively, plying between St. Catharines and Port Dalhousie, on her down trip ran into and cut down their boat. All five were thrown into the water, and, with the exception of Benyon, who clung to the bottom of the boat, were drowned. Efforts were at once made to recover the bodies, but up to 8 o'clock this morning only two, Lamphier and McIntyre, had been recovered. Benyon, the young man who was saved, exonerates Captain Chestnut, of the Lively, from all blame. The bodies of Kennedy and Milne were recovered between 10 and 11 a.m.

Burned to Death.

On Sunday about midday, Mrs. Jones, wife of William Jones, blacksmith, residing at Durham village, Que., and about sixty years of age, while preparing dinner set fire to her clothing, which she did not discover until she felt it burning about her body. She then uttered a scream which brought down her husband and daughter who were upstairs. The husband ran for water and used it with but very little effect. The poor woman ran out in the yard in the rear of the house and threw herself on the ground, when her daughter covered her with a blanket, which subdued the flames, but not before her clothing was completely burned and her body so badly injured that she died that same evening. The family have been residents of Durham for over thirty years and are greatly respected.—Montreal Witness.

A Winnipeg Alderman Arrested.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 10.—Alderman Wilson, ex-Chairman of Finance, was arrested at a late hour last night, for alleged conspiracy to defraud the city of $2,500. He was released on bail of $15,000, and the case came on to-day before the Police Court, but was adjourned till Tuesday. The accusation is that Wilson and ex-City Solicitor Wood got the money on land not owned by Wilson, and for which no mortgage was given. It is believed Ald. Wilson can clear himself, and will sue the city for false arrest. Health Inspector Kerr was reinstated to-day. Wood is believed to be in Fargo. The council will ask the Local Legislature to issue a commission to enquire into the affairs of the city.

The Canadian Contigent.

OTTAWA, Sept. 10.—Everything is going on smoothly in connection with the departure of the Canadian contigent of the Nile. Lord Melgund, Major Deniston, and Mr. Lambert are still busy with the work of organization and suppling the men with their outfits. To-day the Rev. Mr. Gavin, on behalf of the Auxiliary Bible Society, made arrangements for supplying each of the men with a Bible prior to his leaving for Egypt. The contingent will leave on Saturday.

A Workman Burned to a Crisp.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 10.—A fire broke out in Cragin's japan works this afternoon. A kettle of varnish exploded, and James Hodgkins was burned to a crisp. It is feared four other workmen were fatally burned.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1884.

THE REASON OF IT.

We have often wondered why it was that Reformers would cling to a palpable absurdity as tenaciously as if it were an established fact, and we are greatly obliged to the Waterloo Chronicle, a Reform paper, for furnishing the reason, as follows:—

"Experienced politicians have calculated that the change of one vote in every polling subdivision is enough to settle the result of a general election in this Dominion. It is also calculated that on the average there is among the unattached voters of each sub-division at least one man so peculiarly constituted as to swallow with avidity proportioned to its size the most incredible absurdity that can be invented, if the narrator keeps a straight face."

This explains why the Reform papers and orators repeat so often that Mr. Mowat has achieved a victory on the boundary question, while the fact is that he has been forced into doing what for years he refused to do. The Conservatives in the Provincial Legislature urged him to refer the question to the Privy Council for settlement, and the Dominion Parliament invited him to do, but he refused and attempted to take forcible possession of the territory, regardless of consequences. He failed to secure possession in his own way, and he then, after much time had been lost, adopted the course advocated by the Conservatives. The Reform organs know this; the people generally understand it, but by repeating that Mr. Mowat is a hero who has won a victory they hope to make this one "peculiarly constituted" man in each sub-division "swallow the incredible absurdity." We do not believe that they will succeed. No one but a strong partizan blinded by political prejudice could turn a defeat into a victory, or could be made believe that the man who for years kept the province out of the possession of territory that belonged to it and tried to create a civil war, was a patriot and a hero.

This paragraph, which this strong Reform supporter publishes, also affords an explanation of other strange acts of the Reform party. They know that the National Policy has been of great benefit to the country, but they rely on this "peculiar man," and declare that it has not and that the country is going to the dogs; they know that the Province has been living on its capital and depleting its treasury, but they again remember the "peculiar man," and boldly declare that the surplus has increased and that the Mowat Administration are economical financiers; they know that the license laws would be better enforced by non-partisan commissioners, but the thought of this "peculiar man" cheers them and they continue a system which is incompatable with a strict and impartial enforcement of the law and injurious to the Province. This confession of the Chronicle also explains why the Reformers reiterate slanders that have been again and again refuted: they hope to make this "peculiar man" swallow the story, and they do not care how untruthful or devoid of all foundation the slander is, because, they remember, this "peculiar man" will "swallow with avidity proportioned to its size the most incredible absurdity that can be invented." The idea was once published in the columns of the Globe that "the public would believe anything." The Chronicle has entered into the subject more scientifically and argues it upon a mathematical basis. But is the calculation a correct one? We will not exactly dispute it, but we wish to point out to the too hopeful arithmetician one truth. Even if there is in each polling sub-division one unattached voter as gullible as it states, there are those who have been in the ranks of the Reformers, and whom the Chronicle would probably consider as "attached" to that party, who are not so strongly partisan that they cannot see the false claims of the party, and who are fair enough, and patriotic enough, to leave that party and vote for the one that has served the best interests of the Province and of the Dominion. This fact, which the Chronicle has overlooked, will have a bad effect upon the calculation of the Reform party. They may reiterate the absurdities as persistently as their elastic consciences will allow them, but the people will perceive the hollowness of their pretentions and reject them accordingly.

HORTICULTURAL EXHIBITION.

A Good Show of Flowers and Vegetables—The List of Prize Winners.

The annual exhibition of the Peterborough Horticultural Society was held in Bradburn's Opera House, on Thursday, Sept. 11th. The Exhibition was opened at three o'clock in the afternoon, and continued until five o'clock, when it was closed for two hours. In the evening it was open until ten o'clock.

The vegetable department was filled with very fine specimens of various kinds of garden produce, and the judges in this department must have had difficulty in awarding the prizes.

The exhibition of flowers was a very good one, the collection being quite large and the flowers carefully arranged. The boquets were made up with great taste.

The display of fruit was small. The apples, plums, grapes and pears shown were good specimens.

Of foliage plants there were some splendid specimens, but the collection was not a large one.

The ladies' department included some exceedingly fine specimens of fancy work. One patchwork quilt, 12,755 pieces, attracted considerable attention.

The Judges were Mr. J. D. Roberts, of Cobourg, and Mr. F. Mason, Peterborough, for vegetables, fruit and flowers, and Mr. David McDougall and Mrs. G. Burnham for ladies' work.

In the tableau of the marriage ceremony, she had taken her position with reference to the locality of the box, and as near it as possible, and in the glare of the footlights, the ring was clearly revealed.

Lifting his lorgnette Gen. Laurance inspected the white hand he had once kissed so rapturously, and by the aid of the lenses, he recognized the costly ring, the valued heirloom for the recovery of which he had offered five hundred dollars. He had still cherished a shadowy hope that Cuthbert was suffering from some fearful delusion, the sight of that singular and fatal ring utterly overthrew the last lingering vestige of doubt. Stunned, miserable, dimly foreboding some overwhelming denouement, he sat in stony stillness, knowing that this was but the prelude to some dire catastrophe.

When the telegram arrived and the young husband took his bride in his arms, the girlish face was lifted, and the passionate gleam of the dilating brown eyes sent a strange thrill to the hearts of both father and son. Vowing to return very soon and claim her, the husband tore himself away, and as he vanished through a side door near the box, Minnie followed, stretched out her arms, and looking up at its two tenants, she breathed her wild passionate prayer which rang with indescribable pathos throughout that vast building:

"My husband! My husband—do not forsake me!"

Cuthbert put his hand over his eyes, and but or the voices on the stage his shuddering groan would have been heard outside the box. In the scene where Peleg's advances were indignantly repulsed, and his threats to unleash the bloodhounds of slander, hunting her to infamy, were fully developed, Cuthbert seemed to rouse himself from his stupor, and a different expression crossed his features.

Skilfully the part played by Gen. Laurance in bribing Peleg, and returning the letters of the wretched wife, the disgraceful threats, the offer to buy up and cancel her conjugal claims were all presented.

When the grandmother departed, and the child wife secretly made her way to New York, seeking service that would secure her bread and still hopeful of her husband's return, Cuthbert grasped his father's arm and hissed in his ear:

"You deceived me! You told me she went with that villian to California, to hide her disgrace!"

Cowed and powerless, the old man sat recognizing the faithful portraiture of his own dark schemes in those early days of the trouble, and growing numb with a vague prophetic dread that the foundations of the world were crumbling away.

His son suddenly drew his chair a little forward and sat down, his elbow on his knee, his head on his hand; his gaze fixed on the woman, who had contrived to reproduce even the fall, that caused her removal to the hospital.

The ensuing scene represented the young mother, sitting on a cot in the hospital, with a babe lying across her knee, and the storm of horror, hate, and defiance with which she spurned Peleg from her, calling on heaven to defend her and her baby, and denouncing the treachery of Gen. Laurance who had bribed Peterson to insult and defame her.

As he was dragged from the department, vowing that neither she nor her child should be permitted to enjoy the name which they were entitled, the feeble woman, shorn of her brown locks, and wearing a close cap, lifted her infant and with streaming eyes implored heaven to defend it and its hopeless mother from cruel destruction.

In the wonderful power with which she proclaimed her deathless loyalty to the husband of her first love, and her conviction that God would interpose to shield his helpless child, the audience recognized the fervour and pathos of the rendition, and the applause that greeted her, as she bowed sobbing over baby,—told how the hearts of her hearers thrilled.

The curtain fell, and Cuthbert's eyes, gleaming like steel, turned to his father's countenance,

"Is that true? Dare you deny it?"

The old man only stared blankly at the carpet on the floor, and his son's fingers closed like a vice around his arm.

"You have practiced an infernal imposture upon me! You told me she followed him, and that the child was his."

"He said so."

Gen. Laurance's voice was husky, and a gray hue had settled upon his features.

"You paid him to proclaim that base—falsehood! You whom I trusted so fully. Father, where is my child?"

No answer; and the curtain rose on the fair young mother, who came forward with her own golden hair in full splendor.

Involuntarily the audience festified their recognition of the beautiful actress who now appeared for the first time, looking as when she made her debut, long ago in Paris. She was at the asylum, with a young child clinging to her finger, tottering at her side, and as she guided its steps, and hushed it in her arms, many mothers among the spectators felt the tears rush to their eyes.

Walking with the infant cradled on her bosom she passed twice across the stage, then paused beneath the box, and murmured:

"Papa's baby—Papa's own precious baby!" and her splendid eyes humid with tears looked full, straight—into those of her husband.

It was the first time they had met during the evening, and something she saw in that quivering face—made her heart ache with the old numbing agony. Cuthbert could scarcely restrain himself from leaping down upon the stage, and clasping her in his arms; but she moved away, and the sorely smitten husband bowed his face in his hand, luckily shielded from public view by the position in which he sat.

The dinner scene ensued, and the abrupt announcement af the second marriage. The anguish and despair of the repudated wife were portrayed with a vividness, a marvellous eloquence, and passionate fervour which surpassed all former exhibitions of her genius, and the people rose, and applauded, as an audience sometimes does, when a magnectic wave rolls from the heart and brain on the stage to those of the men and women who watch and listen—completely en rapport.

The life of the actress began, the struggle to provide for her child, the constant care to elude discovery, the application for legal advice, the statement of her helplessness, the attempt to secure the license; all were represented, and at last the meeting with her husband in a theatre.

Gradually the pathos melted away, she was the stern relentless outraged wife, intent only upon revenge. She spared not even the interview in which the faithless husband sought her presence; and as Cuthbert watched her, repeating the sentences that had so galled his pride, he asked himself how he had failed to recognize his own wife?

In the meeting with the child of the second marriage, her wild exultation, her impassioned invocation of Nemesis, was one of the most effective passages of the drama; and it caused a shiver like a serpent to creep over the body of the father, who pitied so tenderly his afflicted Maud.

As the scheme of saving her own daughter, by sacrificing herself in a nominal marriage with the man whom she hated and loathed so intensely, developed itself, a perceptible chill fell upon the audience; the unnaturalness of the crime asserted itself.

While she rendered almost literally, the interviews at Puzzuoli, and Naples, Cuthbert glanced at his father, and saw a purplish flush steal from neck to forehead, but the old man's eyes never quitted the floor. He seemed incapable of moving gorgonized by the beautiful Medusa whose invectives against him were scathidg, terrible.

As the play approached its close, and the preparation for the marriage, even the details of settlement were narrated, suspense reached its acme. Then came the letters of reprieve, the deliverance from the bondage of Peterson's vindictive malace, the power of establishing her claim; and when she wept her thanksgiving for salvation, many wept in sympathy; while Regina, borne away in breathless admiration of her mother's wonderful genius, sobbed unrestrainedly.

Market and Sell Early!

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one of the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone. * * * * *

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer"

The above we clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its common sense points. Alexander has already marted and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexanders. Call and be convinced.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the following twenty-four hours, counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto observatory, are as follows:—South westerly to northwesterly winds, fresh to strong during the day; fair cooler weather preceded by a few showers.

Excursion to Belleville.

This morning an excursion under the auspices of Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows, No. 13, passed out from the Grand Trunk station, bound for Belleville. The five coaches occupied by the Oddfellows and their friends were connected with the ragular train. The coaches were well filled, and before Belleville was reached no doubt the excursion was considerably swelled by reinforcements from along the line.

Important to 'Crossemen.

We are informed by good authority that the Checkers of Beaverton are practising twice daily for the coming championship match. If our lacrosse club would muster and have two or three good practice matches before the event takes place, their chances for retaining the Championship of Central Ontario, would be much strengthened. The Checkers are not the Club they were when our club first played them.

Boys, Beware!

A boy was brought before the Police Magistrate this morning, charged with breaking the glass of the windows in a house. He was fined $1, and although this may even appear a heavy enough punishment to boys, those of them who take pleasure in the amusement of breaking the windows of unoccupied houses should be careful, as the Magistrate states that he will punish much more severly any one who is convicted of such conduct in the future. There are few empty houses in the town, but the windows of those that may happen to be temporarily vacant had better be respected.

Fell into a Trench.

On Thursday night shortly before nine o'clock a man named Robinson was, accompanied by a lady, driving up George Street. Water pipes were, on Thursday, being laid at a short distance above Edinburgh Street and a lantern hung burning at the trench. The man, perhaps, did not understand the signal, for he drove his horse into the trench. The horse fell, and in struggling, turned partly on its back. A crowd gathered and shovels were busily plied in digging the horse from its uncomfortable position. Ropes were brought into requisition, and the horse was again placed upon its feet. No person was hurt and the animal was but slightly injured.

Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Geo. E. Williams, Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, wrote to Dr. Gladstone, one of the members of the British Association, asking him if he could make it convenient to visit Peterborough and give an address. Dr. Gladstone takes a deep interest in Association work in England. The following reply will speak for itself:—

"LAKE JOSEPH, Sept. 7, 1884.

"DEAR SIR,—Many thanks for your kind invitation. I should have been very happy to visit your Y. M. C. A. if it could have been conveniently arranged, but I fear that cannot be. We passed through Peterborough on Thursday, but shall not be in that direction again.

"Wishing you every blessing from on High,

"I remain yours truly,

"J. H. GLADSTONE.

THE WIND AND THE WAVES

The Chemong Lake Regatta on Account of the Windy Weather Is Unsuccessful.

For the past few weeks the Chemong Lake Regatta has been "the talk of the town." Many of our citizens fully intended to be present at Thursday's regatta, but when the morning of the eventful day rolled in not a few faces might have been noticed on the streets wearing a disappointed expression. The fact of the matter was, all those who knew anything about boat racing might plainly see that no races could possibly take place unless the wind abated. At noon the breeze was not quite so strong, but everyone knew that the races could not be contested advantageously.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable aspect of affairs, nearly all the boatmen from this town who had entered for the races packed their boats on vehicles and started for the Chemong. The drive out was delightful; the weather was cool and the breeze refreshing.

At 3 o'clock quite a number of people had gathered at the Chemong Lake Park and at the hotel. A base ball match was the first event on the programme. The Silver Stars and Maple Leafs were to have opposed each other, but members were lacking from both clubs, owing to the discouraging state of affairs. Sides were chosen, however, and a very interesting match was played. A commodious refreshment stand had been erected by Mr. Fobert, but everyone seemed to be dejected as to the prospects of the regatta, and very little business was done. At about 3:30 o'clock Messrs. Stevenson and Cox, and Rutherford and Mercer, took a trial spin out on the lake in double sculls, but they found that a race could not be successfully rowed on such rough water. Messrs. J. Mercer and A. Strickland plainly saw that it would be next to insanity to venture out in their singles. Quite a number of Lakefield's citizens and people from the surrounding country had come out, and altogether there were in the neighborhood of two hundred persons wandering listlessly around in search of excitement. Five o'clock went by and the wind had not lulled in the least. The judges, Messrs. A. Elliott and H. LeBrun, asked the single canoe men if they would care to buffet the waves. Two refused to do so, but Messrs. Weller, Fitzgerald and Blade set the weather at defiance. They "sailed the stormy wave" for a mile up the course and after the customary delay they were called on by Mr. John McClelland, the starter, to prepare themselves for the race. A good even start was made and the spectators opposite the finishing buoy eagerly listened to every word which fell from the lips of the owner of a field glass, as to the probable result of the race. Towards the finish Blade fell behind, but Fitzgerald and Weller toiled and tossed on the tempestous water with equal speed. It was indeed difficult to guide the canoes in the right direction, and this circumstance made the race doubly interesting. Weller made, when near the buoy, an admirable spurt and won by half a boat length.

After waiting until past six o'clock in expectancy of a calm the rest of the disappointed oarsmen departed.

NOTES.

Mr. Fobert informs us that a large excursion, from Lindsay came as far as Bobcaygeon by way of boats, but returned when they found it useless to come farther.

Although Mr. Fobert lost a large amount of money by the non-success of the regatta, yet he is not at all discouraged, and says he will arrange another, hoping more favorable weather will crown his efforts.

A Lively Run.

This afternoon a team of horses attached to a waggon, and belonging to Mr. Joseph Boyd, of Douro, were being driven out of the City Hotel yard. The driver alighted for a moment and the horses immediately ran out to George street. Here a man tried to stop them, but in vain. They turned up George street, galloping at full speed, and several buggies had narrow escapes from destruction. Opposite the Golden Lion they dashed by the watering-cart, the wheels of the waggon tearing off the end of the sprinkler. The water gushed out and the cart was soon released from its load. When opposite the Bank of Commerce the waggon struck the street crossing and the fore wheels were severed from the rest of the waggon. The horses were then secured.

Wedding Bells.

We extend congratulations to Mr. George Hatton, son of our late Police Magistrate, and Miss Ella Campbell, daughter of James Campbell Esq., who were united in marriage on Wednesday afternoon at St. John's Church. The nuptial ceremony was performed by the Rector, Rev. J. W. R. Beck. Long before the appointed hour the church was filled to the doors with an expectant and eager assemblage, consisting chiefly of the fair sex. Shortly after three o'clock the carriages arrived, and the father of the bride led her to the altar. Twelve front seats were reserved for friends, and were separated from the rest by two evergreen gates. The bride was beautifully attired in cream satin, a veil and a wreath of orange blossoms. The bridesmaids to the number of five were dressed with exquisite taste, in white satin, white silk, and white muslin, and each wore a garland of jessamine blossoms. After the service the organ pealed forth Mendellsohn's grand wedding march. Two little girls in white, daughters of Mr. Rackham and Mr. Carnegie, preceded the bride and bridegroom, carrying baskets of flowers. The bridal party repaired to the residence of the bride's father, where breakfast was partaken of. The Ontario & Quebec evening express carried the happy pair away. They will spend their honeymoon in New York. The bridesmaids were Miss Cottingham, Peterborough; Misses Caldwell and Mortimer, Ottawa; Miss Matchett, Lindsay, and Miss Hatton, Peterborough. Mr. Henderson, of Toronto, acted as groomsman.

If it Were Possible

To get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring debility, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medical value than any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking the Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as the people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so often humbugged by the week decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make the people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by those unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

SO MODEST A VIRTUE
AS
GOODNESS
Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN
Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

Daily Evening Review

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1884.

THE Paris Star-Transcript evidently has a 'mint in its mind," as it has coined a new phrase, the "votive power." But we are reminded, in reading the article in which this brand new phrase occurs, of a reply of a British orator to a claim put forward by a friend of a certain Minister that he possessed a "mint in his mind." "Ah," was the reply, "would he had some sage in his head!"

PROGRESS.

It is now quite half a centry ago since the harness manufacturers were dependent upon the rude workmanship of village blacksmiths for a vast number of those articles of necessity and convenience in saddlery hardware, or imported from foreign countries those that were badly adapted to their wants.

Had this state of things continued our country would not have earned its fame for ingenuity and enterprise. Fortunately for us a change has taken place. With improved hardware and good leather we are enabled to manufacture the best makes of harness at prices that will compare favorably with honest competitors.

Anticipating an abundant harvest (in which, I am glad to see, we will not be disappointed), I have made very extensive preparation for this Fall's trade. My stock of Harness and Horse Blankets was never so extensive and complete, and the prices are such as cannot but prove satisfactory.

ALMOST

every person is now aware that every year makes it more difficult to procure good Buffalo Robes. I entered the market early and purchased at a time that will enable me to sell my Robes at prices that will astonish you.

JAPANESE ROBES.

I would also call your especial attention to the fact that many houses have been selling a very inferior robe, and insisting that it is the best quality. Only last year I was obliged to return a great number that an unprincipled house tried to pa'm off on me as No. 1. I can with confidence recommend my Japanese Robes, and only ask you to see them to be convinced.

I still keep the largest and best stock of Trunks, Valices, Satchels, Pocket-books and Ladies' Hand Bags, Express Waggons, Baby Carriages, &c.

Serious Smash-up on the Grand Trunk.

BUFFALO, Sept. 12.—There was a serious smash-up on the Grand Trunk road near Merriton, twenty miles west of Buffalo. As the train coming east left Merriton it was run into by a Welland train, and several cars thrown from the track and badly wrecked. Fortunately no one was seriously injured, although there were many narrow escapes. The accident was caused by a misplaced switch.

Accidently Shot Himself.

FRANKFORD, Ont., Sept. 12.—Wm. Hoople, head miller for E. G. Sills, M. P. P., while fooling with a pair of pistols accidently shot himself last night. The ball entered the head just above the ear, and there are no hopes of his recovery.

THE WISCONSIN FLOOD.

Losses Over a Million Dollars—All the Bridges in the Country Destroyed.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Sept. 12.—The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway will lose, in the Chippewa Valley, half a million dollars worth of property by the flood. The lumber companies all lose heavily, but the heaviest losers are poor people whose homes were swept away. The newspaper offices are all flooded, and no papers are being issued. A man named Ehler was drowned while trying to rescue his sick wife. The east and west sides of the Chippewa are cut off from communication with each other except by way of Omaha bridge, four miles up the river.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Sept. 12.—All the bridges through the country, with hardly an exception, have been carried away. The loss will not be less than a million.

HARVEY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ANNUAL PICNIC.—On Saturday, Sept 6th, the employees of Mr. Mossom Boyd, proprietor of the Bobcaygeon lumber mill, held their annual picnic at Oak Orchard on Pidgeon Lake. As was anticipated there was a good time. The sports indulged in were numerous and interesting. Oak Orchard is one of the many beautiful sites that may be found on this lake, that can be adapted for the convenience and pleasure of pic-nicers. It is to be wondered why some summer resort is not erected for tourists, who would no doubt find one of these places as well suited for retirement as many of our fashionable watering places.

MATRIMONIAL.—On Wednesday, Sept. 3rd, in the morning at 10 o'clock, Mr. John Jones and Miss Mary Jane Elliott were bound with wedlock's ties, Mr. Johnston, Methodist minister, of Lakefield, performing the ceremony. Many of the elite of the district, who were invited, attended the bridal feast. The happy pair then took the train from Lakefield on a western tour. We wish them a pleasant honeymoon, and, on their return, the beginning of a joyful, happy and prosperous life.

BOBCAYGEON.

LITTLE BOB PICNIC.—Saturday was a day long to be remembered. Little Bob took its annual holiday and with its numerous friends spent the day at Oak Orchard. There were about 250 employees present. The amusements consisted of a cricket match and a number of sporting events. A very enjoyable day was spent by all.

WONDERFUL ESCAPE.—A horse pelonging to Mr. Fairbanks, valued at $200, fell into a well on Tuesday. The well was twenty-one feet deep, and there was about six inches of water in the bottom. The well was a rock one, and the spiked edges hung out all around. The horse was pulled up with a rope. Strange to say after a few moments rest, he got up on his feet, kind of shook himself out, and went off as though nothing particular had happened.

QUARRYING.—The gang of stone cutters under Mr. Milburn, who have been engaged in getting out stone for the Omemee bridge, have nearly completed their work. The steamer Ontario started last Friday with three scows of the stone, intending to go up the river to Omemee. Owing to the lowness of the water, they were unable to get much past the floating bridge. If the stone has to be taken by way of Lindsay, and railway, it will add very much to the expense. The Harvey quarry is opening up again, the difficulty between Mr. A. P. Macdonald and Freeman, the owner, having been amicably arranged. The stone that is being obtained is very good, but it is hard to work, and a bank from ten to fifteen feet in depth has to be removed, which makes it costly.—Independent.

LINDSAY.

THE STEAMERS.—The steamers are doing a large business between Lindsay and the Point and Bobcaygeon. One of the boats made six trips to the point one day this week. A full complement of passengers each trip.

BUILDING ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.—A meeting of the church wardens and officials of St. Paul's Church was held in the church rooms on Thursday evening at which it was decided to advertise for tenders for the erection of the new church according to plans already prepared by Denison & Rogers, Peterborough. If a suitable offer is made the work of building will be gone on with at once. The new church will be built on the site of the present church on Kent street.—Post.

LORETTO ACADEMY.—The work on Lorette academy is making rapid progress under Mr. Duffu's supervision, and the building is looking like itself again, Oicar-Gen. Laurent has been very active in helping on the work of restoration. The class-rooms in the wing at the rear have occupied. in re-building some improvements have made; and when fully restored the convent will be more convenient than it was before—though it was then a model in every respect. The good ladies will be glad to be once more in their beautiful home, and here they will now soon be. The attendance of pupils at the re-opening is very large.—Post.

A NEW WAY TO FISH.—A summons has been issued against Langoon Druillard, of Dog Point, near Windsor, for fishing without a license. The manner in which Druillard breaks the fishing law is rather curious. Instead of taking a net and fishing himself, he has a flock of thirty geese. To the legs of these fowl he has a line and baited hook attached. The flock is driven into the water and followed by Druillard's two sons, who drive them up stream, thus making them troll. As soon as a goose gets a bite it becomes frightened, and with a great floping of wings and squawking flies to the shore, where the fish is taken from the hook. The hook is again baited and the fowl placed back among the others.—Warder.

Groceries and Liquors.

When the by-law was passed in Newmarket prohibiting the sale of liquor where other merchandise was sold, Patrick Hardy divided his grocery store by a partition, devoting one half to liquor and the other to groceries, each having a separate entrance. He was fined $20 for infringement of the law. On Tuesday he appealed to the county judge, who quashed the conviction, holding that the stores were entirely separate.

The Government officials hope the natives will become friendly, so that it will not be necessary for the expedition to proceed beyond Dongola.

Escaping From Brigands

The circumstances under which the son of Consul Dussi, recently captured by brigands near Rodosto, Roumelia, was liberated without paying a ransom are related as follows: The brigands were surrounded by a detachment of troops under orders not to attack until the young man should be in safety. Meanwhile the brigands had run short of provisions, especially wine. M. Dussi, their captive, suggested that he should be allowed to write to his father to send a few bottles, which was readily assented to. M. Dussi accordingly wrote the letter, but as none of the band could read, he proposed that a strong narcotic should be mixed with the wine, and a sum of $500 and a free pardon should be promised to the messenger if he assisted him to escape. The plan was carried out. When the wine arrived the brigands eagerly partook of it, and were soon stupefied by the effects of the narcotic it contained. M. Dussi and his guide were thus enabled to get away and to reach the nearest village occupied by the gendarmes. The brigands were then easily taken prisoners by the troops under the command of General Mehemet Pacha. The member of the band who contributed to M. Dussi's escape has received the $500 promised to him, and will not be in any way molested by the authorities.—English Paper.

Daily Evening Review

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1884.

THE REFORM LEADER'S QUIBBLE.

ONE of the salient points of Mr. E Blake's character is his trickery,—his lack of the honesty and straightforwardness that a statesman should possess. It may be very well for a counsellor to defend his client by making the best of his case and ignoring all inconvenient facts, but one who claims to be a statesman, should not thus juggle with the truth.

Mr. Blake has recently given a striking instance of his being but the mere advocate, hoping to snatch a verdict by deluding a jury. At a recent meeting he urged, by means, as reported, of the exhibition of a checker-board, that the Reformers had not a fair share of the representatives, because in Eastern Ontario there were twenty-seven Conservatives returned to three Reformers, while to be in proportion with the ballots, they should have been only sixteen to fourteen.

It is open to argument whether it is advisable to change our present system so as to diminish the power of the majority,—whether in short parties should be left so evenly divided as to place the Administration of the day at the mercy of any catch vote, when a handful of adherents might differ with them on some point Of course it is fairly open to Mr. Blake to advocate his view, and to plead for his cumbrous fancy voting systems. But we maintain that it is not fairly open to him as the leader of a great party to palter with the facts, and to endeavor to obtain sympathy under false pretences. Mr. Blake points out that the Conservative majority in East Ontario has more than its numerical share of representatives, but he dishonestly concealed from his hearers the fact that the Reform majority in parts of West Ontario also had more than its numerical share of representatives, thus redressing the balance.

Mr. Blake was talking of the Ontario members in the House of Commons, and we see how he falsified the record. But we would like Mr. Blake to turn his attention for a moment to the Local Legislature. How with his views on this subject does he contemplate with equanimity the maintenance in power of Mr. Mowat, when, notwithstanding his parliamentary majority, there were actually more Conservative ballots cast than Reform ballots? We proved this fact at the time from the official figures, and though our calculations were repeated far and wide by the Toronto Mail and a host of other journals, not a Reform newspaper from the Globe downwards dared to criticise them in detail or showed any flaw in them. By skilful gerrymandering Mr. Mowat succeeded in getting a Reform minority of the voters to choose a Reform majority of members. What does Mr. Blake think of this?

A BOOM TO ORDER.

As an evidence of the artificial nature of the Mowat "boom," we notice that several of our exchanges publish a long editorial praising the Ontario Premier and that the editorials are identically the same, having evidently been furnished to them from headquarters at Toronto. One journal, perhaps more conscientious than the rest, eliminated the sentence in which it was stated that Mr. Mowat "had never suffered personal defeat at the hands of his constituents." It might have gone further, however, and struck out many other statements, such as the one that Mr. Mowat received "the increasing esteem of the entire electorate." His diminished following in the House, after the last general election, and the fact that a majority of the whole vote cast in the Province was in favor of the Conservatives, shows that that statemen was not correct. In fact, if the paper referred to had eliminated all the overdrawn and false statements in the article there would only have been a few dates left.

THE Brockville Recorder, through a mistake, no doubt, added $70,000 to the amount which was paid to Mr. Wilkinson for his service as land valuator, and no less a paper than the London Advertiser copied the item, mistake and all! Mistakes will occur, we presume, in the best regulated newspapers, but such a huge one surely deserved to be corrected. Was it allowed to remain uncorrected in order to impress the man in each sub-division so "peculiarly constituted that he will swallow with avidity the most incredible absurdity," of whom the Waterloo Chronicle tells?

THE HEALTH OF THE TOWN.

A Meeting of the Board of Health is Held on Friday Evening.

At a meeting of the Board of Health on Friday evening the following members were present:—

Messrs. A. McNeil (Chairman), C. Stapleton, W. Paterson, R. H. Green, A. Rutherford and G. A. Cox. The Health Officer, Dr. Clarke, and Sanitary Inspector Adams were also present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

WHY THE MEETING WAS CALLED.

The CHAIRMAN said the object in calling this meeting was to consider the Hunter street drain. It was a great nuisance to the merchants on that street. Dr. Bryce, the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, had told him that if the Local Board would take steps to have Spaulding's Bay filled it would be supported by the Provincial Board. The constables had so much work to do that the resolutions of the Board could not be carried out. Something should be done about it. He also referred to the disgraceful condition of the lockup.

Mr. STAPLETON said that he did not see how the policemen could do so much work. They were supposed to act as License Inspectors, look after the cow by-law, act as night-watchmen, and look after the health by-law. He thought they were over-taxed,

Mr. PATERSON thought that the cow by-law could be amended.

Mr. Cox said it would be better to appoint some person to attend to the Health By-law,

SYNOPSIS OF WORK DONE.

Dr. CLARKE submitted the following synopsis of the sanitary work done during the season:—

No. of yards examined	416
do water closets examined	337
do yards in good condition	86
do yards cleared	225
do manure heaps, hog pens, etc., removed	120
do notices served	231
do prosecutions	12
do old wells closed up	5

REPORT.

Dr. CLARKE also made the following verbal report:—

He had gone through the slaughter houses and the sanitary inspectors had visited them twice a week. The slaughter houses was in as good a condition to keep them under the circumstances. If the Board of Health wished any improvement in the state of affairs, the sloughter houses would have to be removed from town altogether. He had analyzed the water in 14 wells. Had sent the ratio of diseases to the Provincial Board of Health. One case of diphtheria, one case of scarlet fever, and one case of diphtheretic sore throat had been reported. They were each placarded.

The report was received.

LANDLORDS OR TENANTS.

A discussion then arose as to the responsibility of landlords or tenants regarding offensive closets.

Mr. Cox said that he had introduced into the new buildings an excellent dry earth closet manufactured at Hamilton.

DRY EARTH CLOSETS.

Mr. Cox moved, seconded by Mr. STAPLETON, That the Sanitary Inspectors be authorized to notify all persons now having closets on George street, from Brock to Charlotte streets, and on on Hunter from Queen to Aylmer streets, to substitute dry earth closets therefor.—Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

A SECOND TICHBORNE CASE

Seeking the Heir to $350,000—A Remarkable Case.

Mr. O. Marin, N. P., of this city, has been appointed Commissioner by the Supreme Court of the State of Minnesota, to take evidence in the suit of Despoyers vs. Ryan, a case somewhat similar to the great Tichborne trial. The plaintiff is George I. Desnoyers, of York, Neb., and the defendant, Dennis Ryan, of St. Paul, Minn. George I. Desnoyers, it appears, was born in Troy, N.Y. His mother died in childbirth, and he was taken by his uncle, Antoine Desnoyers, to be "brought up," Stephen Desnoyers, his father, paying Antoine $200 a year for this, until he was 14 years of age. At that time Stephen had the boy sent to him at St. Paul, Minn., where he was put to school and kept there for three or four years. The boy's stepmother was a Scotchwoman, who drank heavily, and he got into trouble with her and through her with his father, having so violent a quarrel with the latter that he told him he should never have any of his property. Naturally after such a rupture the young man never had any correspondence with his parents. As soon as he heard of his father's death he employed W. P. Connor, Attorney, of York, Neb., in which city he had settled, to work up evidence in his claim against his father's estate. Connor made two trips to Canada at an expense of $300 or $400, and obtained all the papers and correspondence between Antoine and Stephen Desnoyeed About this time George I. Desnoyer learn a from neighbours in York that Connor waged man not to be trusted. He then employrs. Messrs. Scott & Frank, lawyers in that city, to assist him. They of course wished to see all the papers in connection with the case, which Connors had collected, but he stated that he had lost them. However, it is said now that the lawyers for the defence have them and that they are endeavoring to use part of them to show that the plaintiff is the son of Antione Desnoyers. It is stated that from the appearance of the papers and from the character of Conner—he having been guilty of forgery and embezzlement in York—it is believed that the letters purporting to be from Stephen Desnoyer are forgeries. Eight witnesses from St. Philip, where Antoine resided, have been examined so far, and the evidence goes to show that the boy "raised" by Antoine Desnoyers was the son of Stephen, and some witnesses have sworn that Stephen and also Antoine told them that the boy Stephen's son and that Anthony got $200 a year for bringing him up until he was 14 years of age.

From the look of things at present the plaintiff will obtain his father's property, amounting to some $350,000.

Stephen Desnoyers died about six years ago, and four years after his death George, the claimant, having returned from his travels in the "far West" and settled down in York, Neb., wrote to his stepdaughter in Illinois and through her got to know of his father's death, when he commenced proceedings as before described. After Stephen's death his sisters took possession of his property and they disposed of it to Ryan, hence the case against him. The land is situated between Minneapolis and St. Paul, and consists partly of land lots in both cities. Antoine Desnoyers is now an old man of 94, slightly insane, and his wife 93 years of age. Neither is of any use in giving evidence. The old man says at times that the claimant is the son of Stephen, and at others that he does not know who he is.

The defendant is represented here by Messrs. C. A. Geoffrion and Eugene Lafluer, of this city, and the plaintiff by Messrs, Scott & Frank, of York, Neb., and S. L. Pierce, St Paul, Minn.—Montreal Star.

CAMPBELLFORD.

CHEESE SHIPMENT.—On Monday five factories of Seymour township shipped from the station here one thousand boxes of cheese, the value of which is $7,000. The weight of this consignment was about 62,000 lbs. Mr. J. C. Warrington, of Montreal, was the purchaser.

SAVED FROM DROWNING.—Charles Hurst, a boy about ten years old, fell into the river behind the grist mill on Monday, and the current was carrying him down stream. Mr. Wennan saw the lad in the river and shouted to Mr. W. Morton, a shop mate, who ran out and into the river and rescued the boy before he reached deep water.

FUN ON THE WATER.—Anglers meet with good luck and have abundance of sport at Heeley Falls, just now. A few days ago Mr. Geo. Whitty, of Campbellford, caught a fine bass weighing 7 pounds 5 ounces. A man residing near the falls lately hooked an 18 pound maskinonge, and brought him safely ashore; and another fisherman had the pleasure of hauling out a maskinonge weighing 28 pounds.—Herald

When the letters of Peterson and of the lawyer were read, mapping the line of prosecution for the recovery of the wife's rights, the father slowly raised his eyes, and looking drearily at his son, muttered:

"It's all over with us, Cuthbert. She has won, we are ruined. Let us go home."

He attempted to rise, but with a glare of mingled wrath and scorn, his son held him back.

The last scene was reached; the triumphant vindication of wife and child, the condemnation of the two who had conspired to defraud them, the foreclosure of the mortgages, the penury of the proud aristocrats, and the disgrace that overwhelmed them.

Finally the second wife and afflicted child came to crave leniency, and the husband and father pleaded for pardon; but with a malediction upon the house that caused her wretchedness, the broken-hearted woman retreated to the palatial home she had at last secured, and under its upas shadow died in the arms of her daughter.

Her play contained many passages which afforded her scope for the manifestation of her extraordinary power, and at its close the people would not depart until she had appeared in acknowledgement of their plaudits.

Brilliantly beautiful she looked, with the glittering light of triumph in her large mesmeric eyes, a rich glow mantling her cheeks, and rougeing her lips; while in heavy folds the black velvet robe swept around her queenly figure. How stately, elegant, unapproachable she seemed, to the man who leaned forward, gazing with all his heart in his eyes, upon the wife of his youth, the only woman he had ever really loved; now his most implacable foe.

The audience dispersed, and Cuthbert and his father sat like those old Roman Senators, awaiting the breaking of the wave of savage vengeance that was rolling in upon them.

At length Gen. Laurance struggled to his feet and mechanically quitted the theatre, followed by his son. Reaching the carriage, they entered, and Cuthbert ordered the coachman to drive to Mrs. Orme's hotel.

"Not now!" "For God's sake—not to-night," groaned the old man.

"To-night, before another hour, this awful imposture must be confessed, and reparation offered. I sinned against Minnie, but not premeditatedly. You deceived me. You made me believe her the foul, guilty thing you wished her. You intercepted her letters, you never let me know tha I had a child neglected and forsaken—and father, God may forgive you, but I never can. My proud, lovely Minnie! My own wife!"

Cuthbert buried his face in his hands, and his strong frame shook as he pictured what might have been, contrasting it with the hideous reality of his loveless and miserable marriage, with the banker's daughter who threatened him with social disgrace.

During that drive Gen. Laurance felt that he was approaching some offended and avenging fury, that he was drifting down to ruin, powerless to lift his hand and stay even for an instant the fatal descent; that he was gradually petrifying, and things seemed vague and intangible.

When the reached the hotel, they were ushered into the salon, already brilliantly lighted as if in expectation of their arrival. Cuthbert paced the floor; his father sank into a chair, resting his hands on the top of his cane.

After a little while, a silk curtain at the lower end of the room was lifted, and Mrs. Orme came slowly forward. How her lustrous eyes gleamed as she stood in the centre of the apartment, scorn, triumph, hate, all struggling for mastery in her lovely face.

"Gentlemen, you have read the handwriting on the wall. Do you come for defiance or capitulation?"

Gen. Laurance lifted his head, but instantly dropped it on his bosom; he seemed to have aged suddenly, prematurely. Cuthbert advanced, stood close beside the woman whose gaze intensified as he drew near her, and said brokenly:

"Minnie I come merely to exonerate myself before God and man. Heaven is my witness that I never knew I had a child in America, until to-night, that until to-night I believed you were in California living as the wife of that base villian Peterson, who wrote, announcing himself your accepted lover. From the day I kissed you good-bye—at the cottage, I never received a line, a word, a message from you. When I doubted my father's and Peterson's statements concerning you, and wrote two letters, one to a resident professor, seeking some information of your whereabouts, in order at least to visit you once more, when I became twenty-one, both answered me that you had forfeited your fair name, had been forsaken by your grandmother, and had gone away from the village accompanied by Peterson, who was regarded as your favored lover. I ceased to doubt, I believed you false. I knew no better until to-night. Father, my honor demands that the truth be spoken at last. Will you corroborate my statement?"

Pale and proud, he stood erect, and saw that a consciousness of rectitude at least in purpose, sustained him.

"Mrs. Orme"——began Gen. Laurance.

"Away with such shams and masks! Mrs. Orme died on the theatrical boards to-night, and henceforth the world knows me as Minnie Laurance! Ah! by the grace of God! Minnie Laurance!"

She laughed derisively, and held up her fair slender hand, exhibiting the black agate with its grinning skull lighted by the glow of the large radiant diamonds.

"Minnie, I never dreamed you were his wife,—oh my God! how horrible it all is!"

He seemed bewildered, and his son exclaimed:

"Who is responsible for the separation from my wife? You, father, or I?"

"I did it my son. I meant it for the best. I naturally believed you had been entrapped into a shameful alliance, and as any other father would have done, I was ready to credit the unfavorable estimate derived from the man Peterson. He told me that Minnie had belonged to him until she and her grandmother conceived the scheme of inveigling you into a secret marriage; and afterwards he informed me of the birth of his child. I did not pay him to claim it, but when he pronounced it his, I gave him money to pay the expenses of the two whom he claimed, to California; and I supposed until to-night, that both had accompanied him. I did not manufacture statements, I only gladly credited them; and believing all that man told me, I felt justified in intercepting letters addressed to you, by the woman whom he claimed as mother of his child. Madam, do not blame Cuthbert, I did it all."

The abject wretchedness of his mein disconcerted her, robbed her of half her anticipated triumph. How could she exult in trampling upon a bruised worm which made no attempt to crawl from beneath her heel? He sat, the image of hopeless dejection, his hands crossed on the gold head of his cane.

Mrs. Orme walked to the end of the room, lifted the curtain, and at a signal Regina joined her. Clasping the girl's fingers firmly she led her forward, and when in front of the old man, she exclaimed:

"Rene Laurance—blood triumphs over malice, perjury and bribery; whose is this child? Is she Merle, Peterson or Laurance?"

Standing before them, in a dress of some soft snowy shining fabric, neither silk nor crape, with white starry jessamines in her raven hair, and upon her bosom, Regina seemed some angelic visitant—sent to still the strife of human passions, so lovely and pure was her colorless face; and as Gen. Laurance looked up at her, he rose suddenly.

"Pauline Laurance, my sister; the exact, the wonderful image! Laurance, all Laurance; from head to foot."

He dropped back into the chair, and smiled vacantly.

Cuthbert sprang forward, his face all aglow, his eyes radiant and eloquent.

"Minnie is this indeed our child? Your daughter—and mine?"

He extended his arms, but she waved him back.

"Do not touch her! How dare you? This is my baby, my darling, my treasure. This is the helpless little one, whose wails echoed in a hospital ward; who came into the world cursed with the likeness of her father. This is the child you disowned, persecuted; this is the baby God gave to you and to me; but you forfieted your claim long years ago, and she has no father, only his name henceforth. She is wholly, entirely her mother's, blue-eyed baby. You have your Maud."

As she spoke a wealth of proud tenderness shone in her eyes, which rested on the lily face of her child, and at that moment how she gloried in her perfect lovliness!

Her husband groaned, and clasped his hand over his face to conceal the agony that was intolerable, and in an instant, ere the mother could suspect or frustrate her design, the girl broke from her hand, sprang forward and threw herself on Cuthbert's bosom, clasping her arms around his neck, and sobbing:

"My father! Take me just once to your heart! Call me daughter; let me once in my life hear the blessed words from my own father's lips!"

He strained her to his bosom, and kissed the pure face, while tears trickled over his cheeks, and dripped down on hers. Her mother made a step forward to snatch her back, but at sight of his tears, of the close embrace in which he held her, the wife turned away, unable to look upon the spectacle and preserve her composure.

A heavy fall startled all present, and showed General Laurence lying insensible on the carpet.

Spontaneous Combustion.

At this time of the year, with so much dry weather and solar heat, there are a great number of brush fires raging through the country. It is often a mystery to many how such fires originated, probably where no human being has been or where no fire has ever existed before. It has been known for a long time that a given amount of chemical action will give rise to a certain amount of heat, such as changing the element of wood and coal, together with atmospheric oxygen, into carbon dioxide and water. It has also been known that by putting a quantity of grain and hay into a barn in a green state it heated, and several cases fires occured. It is also known that by chemical action oily rags put together in a heap under certain conditions may produce a flame; but these states and conditions have not been definitely explained. However, so far as observation has reached it has never been recorded that oxydation and nitrification of humus—old rotten logs, or peat—will, under certain atmospheric conditions, produce flame or spontaneous combustion; yet such is the case. Recently our informant had full evidence of this by a fire breaking out at the bottom of an old low pasture, where the remains of a number of large trees were deposited, and had been covered by a slight growth of grass. The fire was promptly checked in the dry grass, and in examining the surroundings this humus or peaty matter was found to be in a high state of ferment, or heat, and smoked when exposed to the atmosphere. There is no doubt that this relation of heat, to chemical affinity may be the cause of the large bush fires which have devastated this continent. And it will explain the mystery of how so many swamps appear to immediately get on fire during weather like that of the past week. There has been a swamp on the fifth con. of London that has been on fire for two months through spontaneous combustion.—London Free Press.

CHOLERA

—IS—

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all remedies, and the natives place the most perfect confidence in it

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:

DEAR SIRS,—I ought to have acknowledged lone ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants tell us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

Believe me, dear sir, gratefully and faithfully yours.

Market and Sell Early!

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one of the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone.

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer"

The above we clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its common sense points. Alexander has already marted and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low. People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexanders. Call and be convinced.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Appreciated.

The O'Brey Musical and Humorous Entertainment Company gave such an interesting performance at Centreville on Tuesday evening that they were called upon to repeat the programme on Thursday evening. Mr. O'Brey's immitation of the harmonicon on the lithophone is particularly clever.

Single Sculls.

Mr. A. Strickland, of Lakefield, and Mr. J. Mercer, of Peterborough, have been matched to row a single scull race at Chemong Lake on Tuesday, Sept. 16th. The opponents are strong, powerful, young men and fast time may be expected. Although the match was made only two days ago, yet the excitement is already running high.

Personal.

Mr. E. K. Harris, formerly salesman in Mr. J. Hackett's dry goods store, has returned to town. His numerous friends will once more enjoy his geniality.

The Rev. J. S. Baker, Rector of St. Mark's Church, Port Hope, was in Town to-day.

Mr. Wm. Watt, an old Peterborough boy, for the last four years residing in Brantford, Ont., has returned to town. We understand that he will establish a horse collar manufactory.

Regatta on the Little Lake.

The fall regatta under the auspices of the Peterborough Boating Club will be held at the Little Lake on Thursday, the 18th September. An extensive programme has been arranged, and no doubt the regatta will be attended by a large number of people. Mr. Wm. Rutherford (at Ormond & Walsh's) will receive all entries, and requests us to state that it is desirable that all those intending to compete hand in their names at once.

The Market.

The market this morning was largely attended by both sellers and buyers, and a considerable quantity of various kinds of produce was disposed of. The following are the prices which chief commodities were sold at:—Butter 22c. to 24c., eggs 16c., chickens 45c. to 60c. per pair, ducks 45c. per pair, turkeys 80c. to $1.00, geese 60c., potatoes 50c. to 60c. per bag, apples 90c. to $1.00 per bag. Fall fruit and vegetables appeared in quantities.

Acknowledgment.

The ladies of the W. F. & D. M. S. of St. John's Church desire to tender their grateful acknowledgments to those who so kinkly assisted at the social on the Court House grounds on Tuesday last, and specially to express their thanks to Mr. Hazlitt for the trouble he took in giving the electric lights, also to the town band, whose services so greatly enhanced the evening's entertainment. The kind liberality of other denominations together wish their attendance was much appreciated, combining with the favourable weather, to render the affair a great success.

The City of the Bay.

The Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows, No. 18, and a number of friends, excurted to Belleville on Friday. A fairly proportioned number departed on the excursion train at shortly after 7 o'clock a.m. The ride down was pleasant, and Belleville was reached at 11.15. The company then scattered and strolled around the city. When dinner time came they again met at the Dafoe House, where mine host Huffman had prepared an excellent spread for his Peterborough friends. Joke after joke went around the long table at which they sat and everybody was in the best of humor. During the afternoon carriages were obtained and the sights seen. Among other places visited by some of the party, was the Police Court, where a trial case was heard by one of our local artists. No doubt he took advantage of the opportunity by studying character from his loft perch in the judicial chair. Belleville was left behind at 6.30 p.m., and Peterborough was reached at 10. All united in saying that the trip was most enjoyable.

The School Board declines to pass any resolution making Monday a holiday, but it is understood that the pupils are to decide whether there is to be school or not on that day. They will not be slow to understand what this means. No one will blame the youngsters for desiring to see the elephants.

The Championship Match.

The following is the team which will compete against Beaverton on Tuesday, the 16th, for the championship of Central Ontario:—J. Joyal, P. Myles, M. Tierney, J. Howden, M. Halpin, J. Sheehy, E. S. Kelly, R. H. Fortye, A. Yelland, J. Henderson, W. J. Scott, C. Rutherford; J. Coughlin, field captain.

The Weather.

The readings of the Thermometer and Barometer in Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store today were as follows:—

One o'clock	53	29.55

Peach Festival.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's Church purpose having a peach festival in the school room on Friday evening next in aid of the new church. A programme consisting of songs, readings, etc., will be given to add pleasure to the entertainment. The Peterborough orchestra will furnish music during the evening. The public are cordially invited. Admission 15 cents, children 10c.

A Holiday All Around.

On Monday the great show, Forepaugh's menagerie and circus, will visit this town, and there is every probability that there will be a very large number of visitors in town. The villages of Norwood, Hastings, Lakefield and Omemee have their civic holidays on that day, and a large number will probably come from those places. The show has been in Western Ontario during this week and our western exchanges speak of the street parade as being a magnificent spectacle, and of the show itself they use no words but those of praise.

Excitement Among Canoeists.

One or more challenges are generally the outcome of any important sporting event. Such was the case at the Chemong Lake regatta on Thursday. Weller had scarcely landed his boat after winning the single canoe race, before Fitzgerald's backers proposed another race. A meeting was held on the same evening at the Little Windsor hotel and it was decided to purchase a handsome medal to be paddled for at an early date. As Weller won the race at Chemong Lake by only half a boat length, the race will doubtless be close and exciting. The race will probably form a prominent feature in the Little Lake regatta on the 18th of September.

Our Firemen.

The Electric Hose Company of the Peterborough Fire Brigade will leave on Monday morning on the 5.55 Ontario and Quebec express, to compete in the firemen's demonstration which will be held in Toronto on the 15th and 16th. The company competing will comprise thirty members and they will be accompanied by the Fire Brigade Band. The company have entered for the international race. They will run 200 yards to a hydrant, lay 350 feet or hose, disconnect the 7th, or last length laid, take out the third length from the hydrant, and replace it by the 7th length, attach to the hydrant and put on the branch pipe. The first prize for the above event is $400, and the second prize, $150. The company will appear for the first time in their handsome fatigue caps, which are supplied by Mr. J. Mills, and are on exhibition at his hat store. The caps are both ornamental and substantial, and reflect credit on the manufacturer. The company will turn out this evening at 5.30 o'clock for their last practice before going to Toronto. A special car has been placed at the disposal of the "Electrics."

On the Way to Egypt.

The following letter has been received from one of the young men who left Peterborough to join the expedition for the relief of Gen. Gordon. It is dated at Ottawa on Sept. 12th:—

"At the earnest request of all who have left Peterborough on this Nile trip, I have agreed to write and give a truthful description of the journey to the REVIEW, which we all hope you will print for the benefit of those we leave behind. Our journey to Egypt will be full of interest to many a friend we have left behind. We got here all right on the morning of the 10th, and our detachment was billeted at the British Lion. Since that time we have been doing the city, which is a very handsome one. The Parliament Buildings are well worth seeing. I took in the Senate Chamber, the House of Commons, the Library (which is superb), and the Patent Office, which is so full of curious things to see that you come out with your head so muddled that memory is gone. The fishery exhibit is the most interesting sight of all. One would have to see it to believe there is such a variety of fish in Canadian waters.

"We have all got our outfits, which are good, a great deal better than I expected, and we muster to-morrow with our regulation outrig. We will be given a grand banquet to-morrow before we start for Montreal. Col. Wm. Kennedy, of Winnipeg and Capt. Jas. Kennedy, came through here last night with 90 men from Manitoba. I had a shake hands with both. Capt. James K. is going with the expedition, but I don't think the Colonel is.

"We had a wedding at our hotel this afternoon—a German couple who walked 8 miles in this morning. They were without doubt the gawkiest couple I ever saw. Most of our lads witnessed the ceremony, and when it was over one of our boys raised a laugh by saying, 'Kiss your darling wife and give me a dollar and I'll treat the boys for you.' 'Vell, I'll not got much money; how much you'll vant?' He opened his heart strings and gave a quarter, on which the hotel keeper gave the lads a smile. It was a eat fun; the hotel was in one grand hearty laugh, and my p ar ribs are aching yet. There is nothing more this time. Good-bye, Peterborough, until you hear from the boys again.

"J. A. S."

AS
GOODNESS

Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business; low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

"I wish to express my appreciation of the valuable qualities of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

as a cough remedy.

"While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

"I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to be an invaluable remedy for throat and lung diseases. J. W. WHITLEY."

Thousands of testimonials certify to the prompt cure of all bronchial and lung affections, by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily.

GIANT PUFF BALL—LYCOPERDON GIGANTEUM.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Our genial friend, Mr. Archie Moffatt, was showing me on Friday evening a monstrous puff ball that he was going to place on exhibition at Mr. Tully's drug store. Having to leave town on Saturday morning, I did not get the exact size, but as far as my memory serves me it would measure nine or ten inches one way by seven or eight inches the other way, and about five or six inches in thickness. Many are not acquainted with the fact that the little puff ball of the field has such big relations. Certainly this one is considerably puffed up and would, I suppose, if it had a little of the human nature in it, look down with disdain upon its more humble relations. Another thing that is not generally known about the puff ball is that if peeled and cut in slices, placing in salt for about ten minutes, and then fried in a little butter, they are delicious food, resembling the mushroom in flavour.

FRANCIS MASON.

AN ARCTIC ROMANCE.

From the Dairy of One of the Members of the Greeley Party.

The following romantic incident, says the Omaha Bee, is epitomized from the dairy of Sergt. Rice, one of the Greeley Arctic explorers. In one of the preliminary sledge parties at Hall's Rest, on the Greenland side, every match but one in the party had been exhausted. The shivering group had no hope of life save in the ability to strike a spirit lamp from the remaining match, and the man now dead wrote the following description:—

"The match snapped, crackled and showed a little flame, which by dexterous management, was communicated to the wood and triumphantly applied to the wick of the spirit lamp. But, great heavens! the wick is wet from the falling moisture of the tent! It splutters—fizzles—the match itself is burned up to the benumbed fingers of the holder, when one of the agonized spectators springs from his bag, and, with admirable presence of mind, withdraws from his breast pocket a document, which he holds to the expiring match in time to perpetuate its fire. They are saved! We must show that the action was heroic. The paper so promptly sacrificed in the interests of science and humanity was one received by its possessor at the last moment before leaving civilization, and it was surmised that it contained the last fond evidence of the tender emotion entertained for him by a fair writer, who mayhap penned the loving missive with trembling hands and blinding tears. No doubt a gentle hand had traced on that worn letter sweet words of devotion and prayers for success. It was evidently worn as an amulet or talisman. The romance is yet not unravelled, for the hero is—as heroes are—reticent. But are we not reminded of the Bible, which, placed by tender hands with thoughtful care in the breast pocket of the soldier, stops the fatal bullet, or of the crusader's cross turning the deadly scimitar of the Saracen? Surely, our incident may take its place beside these. We can hope that the fire was indeed Prometheus and that the epistle may assist a match that was made in heaven as well as that was lighted on the desolate Greenland coast."

THE NILE EXPEDITION.

The Canadian Contingent Fairly Under Weigh for Egypt.

MONTREAL, Sept. 14.—The steamship Ocean King, with the Canadian contingent for service in Egypt, left port for sea at daylight this morning. She will touch at Three Rivers and Quebec for portions of the expedition that are to embark at these port. The Ocean King, which has been specially fitted up as a troopship, is of 2,500 tons register, and is built of steel. Her officers expect to make Alexandria within 24 days. The number of applications to join the expedition were so numerous that had it been a fighting force that was wanted 4,000 or 5,000 men could have been obtained.

SOUTH RENFREW ELECTION CASE.

Dr. Dowling is Unseated Once More—The Algoma Election Case.

Judges Burton and Galt delivered judgment on Saturday on the petition against the return of Dr. Dowling, Reform M. P. P. for South Renfrew. Dowling was once before unseated, Judge Cameron declaring him disqualified. He was once more nominated and elected, and has now been unseated a second time.

With regard to the Algoma election case, Judges Burton and Rose stated they had received no further evidence from Mr. Lyon, and expected none. For the petitioners two letters were read, and judgment was announced to be given Nov. 15.—World.

The Baronet and the Butler.

A story is told of Sir William Ingleby, a Yorkshire baronet. It was his habit to pay his own bills, periodically, and in person. On one occasion he repaired to one of his houses with which he dealt, in the neighbouring county town, for this purpose. The proprietor was a new-comer, and did know Sir William; but hearing him say he had come to pay Sir William Ingleby's bill, he took the baronet for the baronet's butler, and invited him into his parlor. Such a mistake was the greatest joke possible to Sir William, who sat down with his grocer, smoked his tobacco, drank brandy-and-water with him, answering all his questionings as to the comfortable place he had got, and the time he had been there, man and boy, and finally took butler's discount upon his own bill, as no one had a better right to do. It was only when he drew a cheque that the grocer saw his error, and rose to vehemently apologise. "Sit down man, sit down," cried jolly Sir William, "your tobacco is good, and your brandy is better; let us have some more of each, and part friends."

The Mystery of a Well.

NEW BRIGHTON, Sept. 14.—The citizens are excited over the finding of human remains and a silver watch in a well here. The premises about the well were occupied several years by one Cunliffe, who suddenly disappeared after a violent dispute with three men with whom he had been speculating in Wall street. The watch found is said to resemble the one worn by Cunliffe.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—It is stated here that Lord Wolseley will be in position on his arrival at Khartoum or wherever he meets Genera Gordon, to redeem any pledges the latter may have given in carrying out the instructions of the British Government. Daily Evening Review

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1884.

NOT MENTIONED.

OUR Reform contemporaries are busily publishing histories of Mr. Mowat, some being evidently supplied by wholesale from headquarters. In these, among other incidents of his life, is duly chronicled the fact that Mr. Mowat held office for a few hours in the Brown-Dorion Administration. They all, however, as far as we have seen, forget to mention the means by which Mr. Mowat attained this position. We will venture to supply the omission. The Parliament of Canada formally applied to the Queen to decide what should be the capital of Canada. Our Sovereign thus appealed to, formally gave her award in favor of Ottawa. Mr. Mowat and his friends found that by a dishonest piece of "log-rolling," by uniting the votes of all the discontented advocates of other cities, they could carry the repudiation of this invited award by the Queen. In a traitorous manner he broke faith with his Sovereign; in a cowardly manner he insulted a woman; in a faithless manner he disregarded the plighted faith of the parliament of which he was a member; in a dishonest manner he combined with malcontents, who disagreed totally in their views, to commit this outrage. He and his fellows were successful in their dirty attempt. He had his reward in a few months of office.

And this is the same Mr. Mowat who raged because of the refusal to ratify an award which the highest court of the realm has pronounced to be irregular and invalid.

GLOBE FALSIFICATIONS.

AFTER some of its customary abuse the Globe asks "what construction does the REVIEW put upon the following statement by Mr. Merrick":—

"After I heard the announcement, or at least the rumours in the smoking room that some members had been approached, I mentioned the matter to Mr. Meredith."

The construction we put upon it is the obvious one that Mr. Merrick told Mr. Meredith that there was a rumour that some members acting with Mr. Mowat, had been "approached," that is, that attempts had been made to induce them to desert their leader, not necessarily by any improper means, but by persuasion, propositions for a coalition, and so forth. There was no mention of bribery or of any corrupt infidence.

We have the evidence of Mr. Meredith that he repudiated any idea of such assistance, because he would not owe power to deserters obtained by such means. We have also his evidence that he knew nothing of any bribery or of corrupt inducements.

His statement and Mr. Merrick's are by no means contradictory. The Globe, however, dishonestly endeavours to make them appear so. This it does by repeatedly uttering the shameless falsehood that Mr. Merrick swore to having warned Mr. Meredith that bribes were being offered. Having perpetrated this falsehood it is not surprising that the Globe on Saturday added to its usual falsifications by stating editorially, that no friend of Mr. Meredith and Mr. Merrick had "ventured to make the slightest allusion to the contradiction," though in another editorial, as we have seen, it abuses us, for pointing out its disreputable attempts to manufacture a contradiction which does not exist.

Only by falsehood can the Globe hope to make a point against its political opponents, strong evidence of the weakness of its own cause.

DEGRADING THE BENCH.

THE idea that Mr. Mowat degraded the Bench by descending from it to re-enter politics is scouted by the Globe. We are somewhat of the same opinion as Mr. Mowat's organ. It was later that he degraded the Bench. He degraded it when he placed upon it a thief—a man who had misappropriated to his own use the funds of others entrusted to his keeping. He degraded it when he maintained in his place in the House that the fact of having applied the funds of others to his own use did not disqualify a man for the Bench. He is degrading the Bench now and every day while he keeps upon it a malefactor who has been guilty of such conduct.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION.

The First Examination Papers for Third Class Certificate.

The first annual examination for second and third class certificates having now been completed, so far as the candidates are concerned, we are enabled to place before our readers the questions which candidates for third class certificates were requested to answer with more or less correctness at the recent examination. They were divided into two papers which were as follows:—

FIRST PAPER.

1. Mention the chief constituents of a fertile soil, and give a list of the principal soils in Ontario in the order of their productiveness.
2. State how land is affected.
   (1) By tillage operations.
   (2) By grazing.
   (3) By rest.
3. Describe what you consider the best method of managing a sandy loam, so as to secure the best results without impairing its productiveness.
4. Give a statement of what you regard as the best means of restoring fertility to light and heavy soils respectively, that have been partially exhausted by continued cropping.
5. Enumerate the advantages which result from the drainage of land, giving reasons.
   (a) Why is underdraining better than open drains or furrows on the surface?
   (b) In heavy clay soil, with a stiff and almost impervious subsoil, how deep and how far apart should the drains be?
6. How would you manage farm-yard manure so as to get the largest quantity with the least possible waste of valuable constituents?
7. What is gained by the use of green crops as fertilizers, and what plants may be most profitably grown for the purpose?
8. Name the crops that are most benefited by the use of salt as a fertilizer, and state briefly the quantity to be used and the best means of applying it in each case.

SECOND PAPER.

1. What are the special advantages arising from autumn cultivation, and how do you account for them?
2. Take a stubble field of clay loam in medium condition, and describe briefly the best methods of preparing it for fall and spring wheat respectively.
3. Explain what is meant by the rotation of crops. Why is it necessary, and what is the difference between a good and a bad rotation?
   (a) Describe in a few words the soil on your farm or in your neighborhood, and give a rotation which under ordinary circumstances, would be adapted to it.
4. At what stage should a mixture of clover and timothy be cut, to get the best quality of hay—
   (1) For horses?
   (2) For fattening cattle?
5. Name and describe briefly the points or characteristics in a steer which indicate a propensity to fatten.
6. Give what you consider the essential characteristics of a good dairy farm.
7. Explain what is meant by 'atavism' and 'prepotency' in breeding animals, and state your views as to the importance of the latter and its relation to pedigree.

THE GUIDE'S SLANDERS.

The following extract from an editorial in the Lindsay Post is a striking contrast to the style of the Port Hope Guide:—

"Mr. Carnegie did an eminently proper thing in going before the bribery commission and answering the questions put to him by the Port Hope Guide with regard to his connection with the Bunting-Big Push conspiracy. These questions were re-printed in the Post and were of a nature that called for a reply from Mr. Carnegie. Taking up the questions seriatim Mr. Carnegie, according to the Mail's report, said 'he had never met Messrs. Bunting, Meek, Wilkinson and Lynch together on the day on which the exposure was made, nor, indeed, at any other time. The first time he had seen Mr. Kirkland to his knowledge was in the police court; it was, therefore, impossible that he had exerted himself to get a front seat in the gallery for him on the night of the exposure. He had not despatched a messenger to warn Lynch of the arrest of Messrs. Kirkland and Wilkinson, and he had not assisted to hide Mr. Smith. Mr. Carnegie, in the most emphatic terms, denied that he had ever heard, in a Conservative caucus, any mention of a conspiracy to overturn the Mowat Government.' Mr. Carnegie stated that he wrote editorials for a newspaper—presumably the Petesborough REVIEW. We do not take the view expressed by the Globe and some others, that Mr. Carnegie was 'conscience-stricken' in going before the commission and making his statement. When a journal of the standing of the Port Hope Guide puts a series of questions in the manner it did, Mr. Carnegie was bound to answer; and it is to his credit that he promptly replied."

MILLBROOK.

LAYING CORNER STONE.—The laying of the Corner Stone of the new St. Thomas Church, Millbrook, will take place at 2 o'clock p. m. on Tuesday, Sept. 16. Col. Williams, M. P., has kindly consented to undertake that interesting job. A number of able speakers will be present, including the Rev. Dr. O'Mera, of Port Hope, Rev. Dr. Smithett, of Omemee, Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, of Ashburnham, most of the Clergy of the Deanery, Judge Benson, of Port Hope, Dr. Brereton, M. P. P., Bethany, and others. The public, generally, are invited to be present.

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.—On Sunday afternoon as Mr. James Widdis was driving eastward, past Dr. Turner's, his horse ran away. Mr. Harry Richards was in the buggy with him. Mr. Richards was thrown out, but was not injured. The horse got one of his legs over the shaft, when he immediately began to kick violently, smashing the dashboard, and running into the ditch, capsized the buggy, which became completely demoralized. The horse ran into the wire fence in front of Mr. Argue's lot, and was cut up. Mr. Widdis had his leg broke.

COBOURG.

SENTENCED.—The prisoner Holland, who was arrested some time ago on a charge of attempting to steal a horse belonging to Mr. T. O'Neill, was brought before Judge Clark on Monday morning, when he was sentenced to five days' imprisonment and a fine of $100, and to remain in gaol until it is paid. He was defended by the Hon. S. Smith.

A PECULIAR ACCIDENT.—Last week Mr. R. J. Winch missed a steer from a lot he had bought for slaughter. No trace of it could be got for several days. Finally, one of the men, passing through a clump of saplings, found the steer choked to death. It had gone in there, probably, to take shelter from the flies, and in tossing its head got a young sapling around its neck, and in its endeavors to get rid of the encumbrance, only succeeded in making it tighter, which resulted in strangulation. The accident was a very peculiar one.

Prof. Hotchkin's treatment is practical, rational and economical. Its object is immediate relief and eventual cure. It is based on scientific principles and easily demonstrated to the comprehension of every intelligent person, that a truss without steel springs or hard substance, having healed Inguinal and Umbilical as well as Varicocele, at the advanced ages respectively of from 65 and 95 years, must and will stand the test against all Spring Trusses to children as well as adults. Prof. Hotchkin having had 30 year's experience has become master of his profession, and defies the Hernia he cannot hold in its place.

Prof. Hotchkin has invented an apparatus to hold the piles in their proper place, which has been as successful as his other inventions. Go and see for yourselves.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

In the clear, cold analytical light which the "Juventus Mundi" pours upon the nebulous realm of Hellenic lore, and Heroic legend, we learn that Homer knew "no Destiny fighting with the gods or unless in the shape of death, defying them," and that the "Nemesis, often inaccurately rendered as revenge, was after all, but self judgment, or sense of moral law." Even in the dim Homeric dawn, Conscience found personification.

Aroused suddenly to a realization of the wrongs and wretchedness to which his inordinate pride and ambition had chiefly contributed, the Nemesis of self-judgment had opened its grim assize in Gen. Laurance's soul, and he cowered before the phantoms that stood forth to testify.

The deepest, strongest love of his life had bloomed in the sunset light; wearing the mellow glory of the after-math; and his heart clung to the beautiful dream of his old age, with a fierce tenacity that destroyed it, when rudely torn away by the awful revelations of "Infelice." To lose at once not only his lovely idol, but that darling fetich—Laurance prestige; to behold the total eclipse of his proud reputation and family name, to witness the ploughshare of social degredation, and financial ruin driven by avenging hands over all he held dearest, was a doom which the vanquished old man could not survive.

When his eyes closed upon the spectacle of his son, folding in his arms his firstborn, they shut out forever the the things of time and sense, and consciousness that forsook him then never reoccupied its throne.

"Some men's sins are open beforehand, going before to judgment, and some men they follow after."

During the week that succeeded his temporary entombment in the sacred repose of Pere La Chaise, Mrs. Orme completed her brief engagement at the theatre where she had so dearly earned her freshest laurels; and though her tragic career closed in undimmed splendour, when she voluntarily abdicated the throne she had justly won, bidding adieu forever to the scene of former triumphs—she heard above the plandits of the multitude, the stern whisper—"Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord, I will repay."

The man whom she most intensely hated, and most ardently longed to humiliate and abase in public estimation, had escaped the punishment; housed from reproach by the stony walls of the tomb, mocking her efforts to requite the suffering he had inflicted, and the keenest anticipations of her vindictive purposes were foiled, vanquished.

One morning, ten days after the presentation of "Infelice," Mrs. Orme sat listening to her daughter, who, observing her restless, dissatisfied manner, proposed to read aloud. Between the two had fallen an utter silence with reference to the past, and not an allusion had been made to Cuthbert Laurence since the night he had first held his daughter to his heart. Death had dropped like a sacred seal upon its memorable incidents, which all avoided; but mother and child seemed hourly to cling more closely to each other.

To-day sitting on a low ottoman, with her arm thrown across her mother's knee, while the white hand wearing the black agate wandered now and then over the drooping head, Regina read the "Madonna Mia."

She had not concluded the perusal when a card was brought in, and a glance at her mother's countenance left her no room to doubt the name it bore,

"After five minutes, show him in."

Mrs. Orme closed her eyes, and her lips trembled.

"My daughter, do you wish to be present at this last earthly meeting?"

"No, mother. My wrongs I freely forgive, I told him so, but yours I can never forget; and I would prefer in future not to meet him. God pity and comfort you both."

She kissed her mother's cheek, lips, even her hands, and hastily retreated. As she vanished, Mrs. Orme threw herself on her knees, and her lips moved rapidly, while she wrung her fingers; but the petition was inaudible, known only to the Searcher of Hearts. Was it for strength to prosecute to the bitter end, or for grace to forgive?

She placed a strong metal box on the ormolu stand near her chair, and had just resumed her seat when Mr. Laurance entered, and approached her. He was in deep mourning, and his intensely pale but composed face bore the chastening lines of a profound and hopeless sorrow; but retained the proud unflinching regard peculiar to his family.

Of the two he was most calm and self-possessed. Bowing in answer to the inclination of her head, he drew a chair in front of her, and when he sat down, she saw a package of papers in his hand.

"I am glad, Mrs. Laurance, that you grant me this opportunity of saying a few words, which after to-day I shall seek no occasion to repeat; for with this interview ends all intercourse between us, at least in this world. These papers I found in poor father's desk, and I have read them. They are your notes, and the marriage contract, which only awaited the signature, he intended to affix."

She held out her hand, and a burning blush dyed her cheek, as she reflected on the loathsome purpose which had framed that carefully worded instrument.

"To-day I leave Paris—for America, to front as best I may, the changed aspect of life. I have not yet told Abbie of the cloud of sorrow and humiliation that will soon break over our family circle, for poor little Maud has been quite ill, and I deferred my bitter revelation until her mother's mind is composed and clear enough to grasp the mournful truth. In the suit which I presume you will commence, as soon as I land in America, you need apprehend no effort on my part to elude the consequence of my own criminal folly and rashness. I shall attempt no defence, beyond requiring my counsel to state, that no communication ever reached me from you; that I believed you the wife of another; and I shall also insist upon the reading of the two letters in answer to those I wrote, requesting the President and Professor to ascertain where you were. I was assured that a marriage contracted during my minority was invalid, and without due investigation of the statutes of the State in which it was performed, and which had unfortunately undergone a change, I believed it. Your right as a wife is clear, indisputable, inalienable, and cannot be withheld; and the divorce you desire will inevitably be granted. I cannot censure your resolution, it is due to yourself; doubly due to your child—our child! My child! Oh that I had known the truth seventeen year ago! How different your fate and mine!"

She leaned back, closing her eyes against the eloquent pleading of that mesmeric countenance, which was slowly robbing her of her stern purpose; renewing the spell she had never been able to fully resist.

He saw the spasm of pain that wrinkled her brow, blanched her lips; and gazing into the lovely face so dear to him, he exclaimed:

"Minnie! Minnie! Oh my wife! My own wife!"

(To be Continued.)

RURAL BREVITIES.

A small dose of sulphur given to pigs once in two or three weeks will keep them free from disease and greatly increase theis general thrift.

The richness of the food given stock has much to do with the value of the manure made from them. It is for this reason that manure from hens and pigs fed on grain is more valuable than that from cows fed on grass or horses fed on grain and hay.

At this season almost every farmer will find an advantage in having some hurdle fence that can be quickly moved and set up where wanted. Fifty rods of such fencing will supersede the necessity for permanent inside fences on many farms.

Young orchards should, so far as possible, be kept in hoed crops and never in grain, except buckwheat. The first year after setting the trees corn is the best hoed crop, as the stocks grow high enough by midsummer to shade both soil and trees.

Horses that have been hard at work through the week need the day of rest as well as their owners. Road driving is, for a good many horses, much harder than work on the plough, as the hard surface not only tests their feet but jars the frame in trotting.

The new variety of amber wheat is in extensive demand in wheat growing sections. It is hardy, stands well, stools abundantly and will produce a good crop with a seeding of one bushel per acre. Its straw is stiff enough to support the heavy heads from any ordinary storms.

It is not so general a practice as formerly to plant pumpkin seeds in hills of corn or potatoes with the idea of getting a stolen crop. The vines begin to run too early, interfering with cultivation. If the corn grows as it should, not many pumpkins will be grown in it. The better way is to give the pumpkin patch a place all by itself.

From 1830 to 1871 the world's supply and use of wool increased much more rapidly than the world's population. There has been also a like increase in the use of cotton, but of flax and hemp, which will last five to ten times as long as modern cotton or wollen goods, there has been a large decrease.

The earliest buckwheat is rarely well filled unless a succession of cool days and nights come as the grain is forming. The latest date which will ripen the grain before frost will give the best crops. Salt is a very good application for buckwheat from the property which salt has in making the soil moist and cool.

The Road to Khartoum.

The selected line of route which the Gordon Relief Expedition, under Gen. Wolseley, will follow, says the London Standard, divides itself naturally into two portions, the former being that over which the Valley of the Nile is followed, the latter the passage across the so-called "desert" of the Bayooda. This first portion of the route may be again divided into three classes—namely, about four hundred miles of railway, eight hundred and fifty miles of navigable river, and some two hundred miles of consecutive rapids, the transport over each of which sections demands totally different treatment. These may be briefly noted down:—Railway from Alexandria to Assiout, three hundred and fifty-seven miles; navigable river, Assiout to Assouan, at the foot of the First Cataract, three hundred and thirty miles; rail to Philæ, seven miles; navigable river, Philæ to Angah or Wady Halfa, two hundred and forty-eight miles; rail to Sarras, thirty-two miles; a series of rapids or cataracts, extending as far as the top of the Third Cataract, at Hannek, one hundred and eighty-six miles; a stretch of navigable water from Hannek to Ambukol, one hundred and fifty-eight miles; the camel route over the Bayooda Desert to Metemmeh, one hundred and sevrnty-five miles; whence the river is navigable during the entire year both to Khartoum and Berber, the distance being in the former case one hundred and fifteen, in the latter one hundred and five miles. The total length of the route to be traversed is thus something over sixteen hundred miles, about three hundred miles being saved by avoidance of the river bends.

Daily Evening Review

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1884.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Rather Cool.

The spirit in the Rev. V. Clementi's self-registering thermometer fell to 29½° on Saturday night.

Rev. Mr. Munro's Bible Class.

This class will not be held to-morrow night, as was previously announced, but will be re-opened on Tuesday, 23rd Sept., in the Y. M. C. A. Rooms.

Fast Time.

We are informed by good authority that some of our local talent in the pedestrian line, are making time in 100 yard and ½ mile dashes that would astonish Hamley. The course and time are the Driving Park and at 6 a.m. respectively. The man who holds the stop-watch says his arm is getting tired.

A Miraculous Escape.

On Sunday forenoon a little three year old son of Mr. Geo. Cluxton escaped from home and went to see the arrival of the circus trains. While the process of unloading was being gone through a heavy waggon passed over the foot of the child. Those who saw the accident thought the foot was crushed, but strange to say the boy escaped with only a few scratches.

For the Queen City.

The Electric Hose Company, accompanied by the Fire Brigde Band, departed this morning to participate in the firemen's demonstration to be held in Toronto to-day and to-morow. Their special car, on account of the express train being late, was attached to a special which passed through town at 7.45. A reel will be furnished at Toronto.

Lawn Social.

The ladies of the Baptist Church intend having a lawn social at 7 p.m. on Thursday, the 18th September, at the residence of Mrs. Gilmour. The grounds will be illuminated. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance, and refreshments provided. The charge for admission at the gates will be 15 cents. All are invited.

A Friendly Game.

A friendly game of football, Town vs. County, was played on the Ashburnham grounds on Saturday afternoon. The County men had the advantage in aggregate weight, but the play nevertheless was even. The County men had three goals to the Town's one when the play finished. A few more matches of this kind would place our club in a good position to contest with the Torontos early in the season. We understand another match will be played on Saturday afternoon next.

Fast Work.

Frequently the press is called upon to record the quick work done by a reaper, a binder or a threshing machine, and what remarkably quick time a harvester has made with a cradle or a rake, and why should the butcher not have a chance as well as the farmer? We are informed that Mr. Kemp, who is employed by Mr. Wainwright, dressed a sheep in five minutes—that is, in five minutes after it was dead it was flayed and dressed. In the language of the big egg and mammoth pumpkin item, we ask, Who can beat it?

If you want
A Good all Wool Working Shirt
go to McNeil's.

The Wrong Boy.

The generality of boys are mischievous and destructive. The chief destructive trait of the average Peterborough boy seems to be window breaking. Mr. Helson, tanner, Ashburnham, has been for a long time pestered with this nuisance; so much so that the lower windows of his tannery have been nearly all broken. On Saturday afternoon he spied a group of the window breaking species lurking in the vicinity of his premises, and, hearing a crash, rushed out in pursuit. The boys scattered and Mr. Helson followed one who ran towards the bridge screaming with all the ff possible. The boy was caught, but after the explanation which followed, proved to be the wrong one. This nuisance should be put down with a strong hand. If a building is left vacant for a few weeks the proprietor generally returns to see only a few whole lights of glass remaining.

THE GREAT FOREPAUGH SHOW.

Every Appointment in Connection Wit the Great Show on a Stupendous Scale.

For weeks past not only the small boy, but a large proportion of the older population of our town have been more or less expectant in regard to the visit of Adam Forepaugh's huge circus. On Sunday morning shortly after ten o'clock arrived. It was drawn by three engines and loaded with horses only. Other trains continued to arrive until after 12 o'clock.

THE FIST TRAIN

THE MAGNITUDE

of the immense aggregation may be conceived by perusing the following items:—Three millions of dollars are invested; the running expenses are four thousand two hundred dollars daily; more than six hundred people are employed and it takes fifty-eight cars of unusual length to carry the equipment. The spread of canvas is considerably larger than was ever seen in Peterborough, and ten thousand people may find comfortable seats under one vast tent.

THE STREET PARADE

this forenoon was witnessed by the thousands of spectators which crowded the thoroughfares through which the long line of dazzling brilliancy passed. Fife and drum bands, brass bands, and a band composed of sons of Sahara, at certain distances from each other, enlivened the proceedings. There were so many interesting features in the grand procession that it would be next to impossible to enumerate them. It passed with stately grandeur and magnificence through the principal streets and proceeded to the grounds, near the locks bridge.

POLICE COURT.

NON-PAYMENT OF WAGES.

MONDAY, Sept. 15.—Alfred McDonald was charged by Robert Geoffery with non-payment of $35 due him. R. E. Wood appeared for the complainant, and J. O'Meara for the defendant. A judgment was given in favor of the complainant for $19.10.

Sudden Death.

We regret to chronicle the death of the wife of our esteemed townsman, Mr. Robert McWhinnie. The sad event occurred on Saturday night, between the hours of 9 and 10. It seems that Mrs. McWhinnie was of a delicate constitution, and was fearful of burglars entering the house. A sharp rap came to the door and Mrs. McWhinnie answered the summons. Shortly afterwards she sat down and put her hand on her heart and remarked that she had drradful pains. She fell forward and silently expired. Dr. Kincaid was summoned, but when he arrived his services were of no avail. He pronounced the disease to be paralysis of the heart.

It is Probable.

—That a bicyle tournament will be held in Peterborough this fall.

—That an exciting lacrosse match will be played on the Ashburnham grounds to-morrow between the Checkers, of Beaverton, and the home team.

—That the Strickland-Mercer single scull race at Chemong Lake to-morrow will be close and exciting. Both men are in excellent condition.

—That we will have moderate to fresh, south-east to south winds; fair to cloudy weather, with local rains towards evening or at night; higher temperature.

OVER MOUNTAIN HEIGHTS.

A Steamer Transported Forty Miles on Mens' Shoulders in British Columbia.

A remarkable feat is now being carried out by a young Englishman representing a party of English capitalists who have acquired a large block of land from the British Columbia Government in the exquisitely beautiful Lower Kootenay Valley, lying just over the northern confines of Idaho, where the international boundary lines separate the waters of Pend d'Orielle Lake and Kootenay River. This pass, traversed by a narrow Indian trail, which winds through the almost impenetrable forests that clothe this great spur of the Rocky Mountains known as the Clarke's Forkrange, has never been passed by a waggon, and now a steamer, the hull built of teak in one piece, is to be spirited across this mountain barrier for a distance of forty miles. A large force of Indians belonging to the Kootenay tribe, a race that has as yet remained perfectly untouched by civilization and who have never seen a white woman, have been engaged, together with ten or twelve white men, to help in the work.

The little steamer had seen much travel. Built last year on the banks of the placid Dee, that washes the Roman walls of beautiful Chester, one of England's oldest cities, she made a summer trip to the rock bound coast of Norway, where her owner explored some of the most inaccessible fiords of that picturesque coast, bent on salmon fishing and bear hunting. Brought back to England, she left Liverpool safely stowed away on the deck of the Polynesian, one of the ocean leviathans, May 21. Laden at Montreal, she was placed on the deck of one of the large propellers running from that point to the western extremity of the great lakes, Duluth, when, after passing through some 150 locks that make navigation through the long chain of great lakes possible, and after a narrow escape from being wrecked on a hidden rock, on which the propeller struck one dark night heavily, she safely reached the latter port, when she was immediately placed on a flat car, on which, after being placed in bond, to enable her to pass through the United States, she began her long transcontinental journey of 1,500 miles over the Northern Pacific line to Sand Point, or Lake Pend d'Oreille.—Spokane Falls (Nevada) Chronicle.

A Blaze at Trenton.

TRENTON, Sept. 13.—This morning about seven o'clock a fire broke out in the sash and door factory belonging to T. Lewis, on the market square, completely destroying it. In a short time the flames spread to a dwelling house adjoining, occupied by Freeman McMullen, and owned by Mr. Griffiths, which was also entirely destroyed. By the united efforts of the town and Gilmour's brigade, Funnel's brick building was saved, though damaged very much. The drill shed opposite had a narrow escape; nearly all the roof was burned off. The loss will be about $4,000. Lewis had no insurance; Funnell was well insured; Griffiths a small insurance. A high wind prevailed at the time.

PROGRESS.

It is now quite half a centry ago since the harness manufacturers were dependent upon the rude workmanship of village blacksmiths for a vast number of those articles of necessity and convenience in saddlery hardware, or imported from foreign countries those that were badly adapted to their wants.

Had this state of things continued our country would not have earned its fame for ingenuity and enterprise. Fortunately for us a change has taken place. With improved hardware and good leather we are enabled to manufacture the best makes of harness at prices that will compare favorably with honest competitors.

Anticipating an abundant harvest (in which, I am glad to see, we will not be disapointed), I have made very extensive preparation for this Fall's trade. My stock of Harness and Horse Blankets was never so extensive and complete, and the prices are such as cannot but prove satisfactory.

ALMOST

every person is now aware that every year makes it more difficult to procure good Buffalo Robes. I entered the market early and purchased at a time that will enable me to sell my Robes at prices that will astonish you.

JAPANESE ROBES.

I would also call your especial attention to the fact that many houses have been selling a very inferior robe, and insisting that it is the best quality. Only last year I was obliged to return a great number that an unprincipled house tried to palm off on me as No, 1. I can with confidence recommend my Japanese Robes, and only ask you to see them to be convinced.

I still keep the largest and best stock of Trunks, Valices, Satchels, Pocket-books and Ladies' Hand Bags, Express Waggons, Baby Carriages, &c.

A Terrible Murder.

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 14.—At Coal Valley Smith Older and Alex. Tincher had a quarrel. Older struck Tincher with an axe, cleaving his breast open from the right shoulder through both lungs and heart, part of the heart dropping out. The murderer was arrested.

Fire at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Sept. 13.—This morning the large repair shop of the G.T.R. at this place took fire from a spark from a passing engine and was destroyed. Eleven cars were burnt. The loss is about $60,000. The workmen lost their tools. The G.T.R. fire brigade did good work. Fully insured.

THE St. Marys Carriage Manufacturing Company, an enterprise managed by capitalists of that town, is meeting with great success, having sold already over twenty-three thousand shares. The surplus stock of the Company amounting to $106,000 will be divided on October 22nd. Shares are $2 each and all those desiring to participate in this Grand Division, should buy a share at once. Address: H. A. L. WHITE, Sec'y., St. Marys.

Pale, Poor, Puny, & Pallid.

Considering all the ills that attack little children, it is a wonder that any of the poor little youngsters live to grow up.

There are children who are truly objects of pity. They seem almost bloodless. Their cheeks are thin and pinched; their eyes are hollow; and their skin is tightly drawn over their foreheads. There is nothing hearty about them. They do not enjoy their lives. They are suffering from the debility that leads to marasmus. Poor things!

Do a good deed for the pale, poor, puny, pallid child. Hand its mother a bottle of the Shaker Blood Syrup. Here is life even for the most delicate; the most debilitated; for the child almost given up for dead. Pure blood is what the child needs, to bring it up. The little digestive apparatus will recover. The pale cheeks will fill out. The weary groan of the child will be exchanged for the merry prattle of infantile gladness. Your druggist will tell what wonders the Shaker Blood Syrup has done for very sick children.

GOODNESS
Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

SOME of the Reform journals are amusing themselves with twitting the Mail with not publishing the decision of the Privy Council in the boundary matter. We would like to learn from them how they interpret that decision, and what meaning they gather from it in the shape in which it has so far been published in Canada? What is the exact result of stopping short at "a line due north from a line drawn due north from the confluence of the rivers Mississippi and Ohio?" And what authority is there for saying that this line "forms the boundary eastward of the Province of Manitoba?"

If this is really the decision of the Privy Council, and not an erroneous version, we now see the mischief of Mr. Mowat's adherence to the line of the invalid award, and his neglect to press the full claim of our Province.

ON THE WAY TO KHARTOUM.

The Canadian Contingent Visited by Lord Lansdowne at Quebec.

QUEBEC, Sept. 15.—The Governor-General and the Militia Minister bade adieu to the Canadian voyageurs on board the Ocean King which arrived down from Montreal last evening, touching at Three Rivers, and bringing also Lord Melgund and Major Denison, the latter in command of the contingent. His Excellency addressed the officers and men of the contingent in well chosen words. He spoke of the dangers of the Nile, but remarked that he did not think they were any more dangerous than our Canadian rapids. In reference to Gordon, he remarked that he was a man of sterling worth, whose name was a household word wherever the British flag waves, and he felt proud to see that Canada was so fully represented in such an expidition as this. He stated that Gen. Wolseley, who had previously been among our boatmen when on the Red River expedition, knew what excellent qualities our men were possessed of, and it was partly through this that they had so earnestly been asked to accompany the expedition, and it was something of which they should be proud. He paid special tribute to the Indians, and spoke at some length upon their natural qualities which fitted them so much for the present undertaking. The Vice-Regal party and the Hon. Mr. Caron then left the steamer amidst cheer after cheer. Lord Melgund, who has been organizing the whole expedition, remained on board till the vessel drew up her anchor ready to sail, which was about 1.30 p.m.

FEARFUL CALAMITY.

Seventy Thousand Lives Lost--A Deluge in Japan Sweeps away Entire Towns.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—Advices from Yokahama of Aug. 16th says that information has reached Canton of a frightful inundation in the Kiang Sai province. The news is dated from King Tak, the chief centre of the pottery manufacture, and one of the great four markets of the empire. The floods lasted four days, and the entire country was submerged to a depth of sixty feet. Whole towns were swept away, and it is believed that seventy thousand persons perished. It was feared a pestilence would follow, as cholera had broken out at Amoy.

Details of Caceres' Raid on Lima.

PAMAMA, Sept. 6.—The following details have been received regarding Carceres' raid on Lima, August 29th, already noted by telegraph. On Aug. 24th Caceres sent a picked force of 1,300 men to make a flank attack upon Callao. Part of this force was defeated by the Government troops, and Caceres, finding his retreat threatened and being driven to bay, resolved to attack Lima. After his defeat, Caceres escaped to the interior with 80 horsemen. Nearly 500 persons were made prisoners, including 70 officers, some of high grade. Only a few of the Government soldiers were killed and wounded. General Iglesias' son was shot in the leg, and the member has been amputated. The people made no movement in favour of Caceres, although he was supposed to be their favourite. The superintendent of the Pico and Oroya railroad has been arrested on the charge of favouring Cacares. The prior of St. Augustine has also been imprisoned and the company mulcted for concealing Cacerists. A large quantity of ammunition and arms fell into the hands of the Government. This is the first revolution in Peru which has proved unsuccessful.

Going Over Niagara Falls.

BUFFALO, Sept. 15.—Oliver Wormald, a Buffalo fresco painter, intends going to Niagara Falls to-day to perfect arrangements for going over the cataract in a rubber ball, fifteen feet in dismeter, for a purse of $1,000. W. G. Graham, of Cleveland, and Peter S. Grant, a Buffalo business man, are managing the affair. Wormald's ball will be of rubber, ¾ of an inch thick, covered with closely braided tarred rope, and filled with compressed air. He expects the ball to receive sufficient momentum to hurl it a considerable distance beyond the falls, and he will be picked up by one of the ferry boats plying at the Prospect Park inclined railway.

Verdict on the Mystery.

STRATFORD, Sept. 15.—The inquest at Gadshill on the supposed remains of John Beller was concluded at an early hour Saturday morning. The following is the verdict:—That certain bones were found in a log pile in Ellice on the 5th day of September, 1884, and have been proved to human bones, but their is no evidence to show whose bones there were. The jury, however, are of opinion that foul play has been used, but that there is not sufficient evidence to commit any person or persons.

Weather in the East.

HALIFAX, Sept. 15.—An exceedingly cold wave is now passing over the Maritime Provinces. In several parts of Cumberland county several inches of snow have fallen, and on Sunday it was reported that a five inch fall of snow had taken place at Moncton, N.B. It is thought that the crops will suffer from the unseasonable change.

A Farmer Attempts Suicide.

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 15.—At an early hour this morning Mr. Patrick Nehan, a farmer in comfortable circumstances, residing in the township of Grantham, near this city, attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. Little hopes are entertained of his recovery. He recently lost two children, which is supposed to be the cause of the rash act.

Earl, Sacramento, Cala.; extra choice for table use; huckleberries, Lawton blackberries, oranges, melons, bannanes, grapes, &c., &c., tomatoes, green vegetables, fresh fish and fresh oysters. THE BOUNDARY CASE.

THOSE of Mr. Mowat's followers who are at present engaged in making a desperate effort to "boom" the Ontario Premier lay great stress on his "success" in having the boundary dispute settled. A glance at the facts will show how small a claim Mr. Mowat has to the thanks of the people for the part he took in that dispute, and will show that Mr. Meredith and the Conservatives alone are entitled to the gratitude of the Province.

In 1872 Sir John Macdonald, as Premier of the Dominion, urged the Ontario Government to refer the questions in dispute to the Privy Council.

When the Mackenzie Government came into power arbitrators were appointed,—an act by which the Dominion Administration exceeded its powers.

In 1874 the Ontario Legislature passed an act, in anticipation of the award of the arbitrators, confirming the award.

Mr. Mackenzie was in power for nearly four years after the Ontario Legislature had passed this Act, but he, "with his usual caution," as the Globe put it, introduced no such legislation into the Dominion Parliament.

The arbitrators made their award in August, 1878. Mr. Mackenzie was defeated at the polls in the following month.

In 1879 the Ontario Government had a second act passed confirming the award, in the words of the act, "whether the same increase, diminish, or otherwise alter the true northerly and westerly limits of the Province."

The Dominion Parliament took the ground that what was required was the true boundary, and not one that might diminish or increase the proper size of Ontario, and that a decision as to what was the true boundary should be obtained from the Supreme Court or the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

Mr. Meredith contended that, as the Dominion Parliament had not ratified the award, the dispute should be referred to the Privy Council.

Mr. Mowat contended that the award was legal and binding, for five years refused to refer the question to the Privy Council and attempted to take forcible possession of the territory. He failed to secure possession in that way.

Mr. Mowat then agreed with Attorney-General Miller, of Manitoba, for a reference of the dispute as to the boundary between Ontario and Manitoba.

The first question submitted was whether the award was legal. The Privy Council decided that it was not.

They recommended that an Imperial Act of Parliament should be passed to make their decision binding "without expressing an opinion as to the sufficiency or otherwise of concurrent legislation of the Provinces of Ontario and Manitoba and of the Dominion of Canada."

Now, what do we see? That Mr. Mowat confirmed an award before it was made; that Mr. Mackenzie refused to pass an act confirming the award; that Mr. Mowat wished the award confirmed although he claimed that it did not give Ontario all the territory that belonged to it; that he contended that the award was legal and binding, when it was not legal and binding; that it is not decided that an act passed by the Dominion Parliament ratifying it would have made it binding; that Mr. Mowat tried to take forcible possession of the territory on the strength of an illegal award; that for years he kept the Province out of possession of the territory; that after attempting to cause a civil war and creating an ill feeling between the provinces, by at last adopting the policy which the Conservatives had urged him to adopt the dispute with Manitoba was settled.

The Reformers are therefore calling on the people to do honor to an unpatriotic blunderer.

Honor is alone due to the men and the party who all along advocated the policy by which Ontario obtained the territory, which policy, if adopted at first, would have saved a great deal of time, expense and trouble, and would not have created an ill-feeling between the Provinces as Mr. Mowat's blustering did.

Brown v. Nelson.

The net result of the recent decision is that Gorden Brown will get back his $22,000 worth of stock, while Mr. Nelson is given a verdict against him for $38,000. In the meantime, so it is said, Mr. Brown will be able to sell his stock if he sees fit. He has also the right to enter an action against Mr. Nelson for breach of contract. —Toronto World.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

A GREAT IMPOSITION.

The reception to the Hon. Oliver Mowat promises to be a very imposing affair.—London Advertiser (Reform).

AND STATESMANSHIP.

Sir John's inimitable tact and genius.—Kingston Whig (Reform).

DISGRACEFUL CONDUCT.

As a result of the evil effect of the N.P. some stupid people in Hamilton have started the manufacture of "iron and steel forgings." If this disgraceful conduct is continued the calamity man of the Globe will be left without a situation.—Dundas Standard.

A "SPONTANEOUS" OVATION.

Get to work now and canvass the city thoroughly for delegates to the Mowat demonstration.—Guelph Mercury.

HOW TO DO IT.

Sarah Barnhardt is coming. The Grits are going to give her an ovation as a fat woman. They will get the necessary crowd by offering half-price tickets to her performance.—Hamilton Spectator.

CONTRADICTORY, AS USUAL.

The Kingston News says that at the Reform demonstration at Kingston, "while Mr. Blake denounced the Federal Government for having a surplus, Mr. Ross gloried in the fact that the Ontario Government had a surplus." This is characteristic of the Grits, who consider that which is praiseworthy in themselves an offence in others.—Belleville Intelligincer.

A POPULAR MINISTER.

The announcement that the Hon. Mr. Costigan's friends are about to present him with a residence at Ottawa will be received with satisfaction all over the country. As the leading representative Irish Catholic in Dominion affairs he has preformed the duties of a difficult and enerous post in a manner that has won the approval of his own people and the admiration of all.—Ottawa Sun (Indep.).

THE FARMERS' FRIEND.

There is no Minister, there is no public man in Canada at this moment to whom the farmers of Canada are more indebted for the position they occupy in respect of the cattle export trade to Great Britain than they are to Mr. Pope. He has been unceasing in his watchfullness of their interests in this respect, and that without reference to any other interest which might seem antagonistic to them.—Montreal Post (Indep.).

A CANADIAN TRIUMPH.

It is expected that the Pacific Railway will make the connection between Montreal, Ottawa, and Winnipeg by next June. This will be the greatest triumph of railway building on record. A gentleman just returned from a trip to the end of the track informs us that the track is built 100 miles west of Sudbury and that rails are being laid at the rate of two miles per day. How is that for Canadian enterprise?—Ottawa Sun (Indep).

THE FACTS STATED.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Having seen a paragraph in last week's Examiner over the signature of Charles Byers, charging me with telling a deliberate falsehood, I will claim your indulgence.

Being so well known both in town and country, it would be out of place for me to vindicate my own character, but I simply will state facts and let others corroberate or deny my statements.

On Saturday, the 23rd of August, Mr. Wm. Rutherford and my self went to Peterborough to charter a steam boat and engage the Fire Brigade Band for the South Monaghan Harvest Home Festival. We were given full liberty to do anything which, in our judgment, would be for the interest of the society or enhance the pleasure of the day.

In consultation with Mr. Calcutt we decided to have a lacrosse match to entertain the people on the grounds in the afternoon of the festival, and, in order to make sure of a lacrosse team from Peterborough, Mr. Calcutt went with us to see Mr. Sanderson to see if a team could be got. We were assured by Messrs. Calcutt and Sanderson that they would send a team. On that assurance we bought a cup, and I went on the next Monday morning to Millbrook and arranged with the Millbrook team to play. On the following Wednesday I was sent to Peterborough to get the posters and programmes for the festival. While in town I called to see Mr. Sheehey, field captain of the lacrosse team, he told me that he could not promise a team, as they were in communication with the Ottawa Mets. to play a return match in Peterborough, and that the Mets. had the choice of the day, and it might be on the 9th, but if not there would be no trouble in sending a team, and I left with the assurance that Mr. Sheehey would do his best to come.

On Saturday, the 6th of Sept., I went to Mr. Hackett's to give Mr. Sheehey complimentary tickets for the lacrosse team, and promised them free tickets for the festival, and while there Charles Byers came in. I left with the assurance that Mr. Sheehey would do his best to come.

On the morning of the 9th I went to Peterborough to take charge of the excursion, and called on Mr. Sheehey to see if the team were ready. Judge of my surprise when he told me he could not come. He gave several reasons why they could not come, and said after I left him on Saturday that Charles Byers told him not to go because a crowd was coming from Millbrook to clean them out, and if they did not want to be abused to stay away. I assured Mr. Sheehey that such was not the case, and promised him that no person would be allowed to interfere. We then went to see Mr. Fortye, where I repeated Mr. Sheehey's statement, assuring them that they would be well used. We spoke to four lacrosse men, but none would come, and one distinctly said he would not go to get abused. I had delayed the boat one hour to try and get a team. When I saw we could not I said to Myers, Sheehy and Fortye that all that could be said was that they were afraid to go, and they admitted it.

My thanks are due to Captain Carson, who, after so much delay, safely landed our party at Faucher's Park at 12.15 p. m., where carriages were waiting to receive us.

On being asked why the lacrosse team did not come, I repeated Mr. Sheehey's statement, and believed it to be the real cause. I will leave the public to draw their own conclusions, and I ask Mr. Sheehey and Mr. Fortye to corroborate or deny my statements; also to say if the stories circulated through Peterborough was or was not the real cause of the lacrosse team not coming.

I remain yours, &c.,
THOMAS MARSHALL WILLAN.

FALL OF A TUNNEL ROOF.

Narrow Escape of Several Scientists at the End of the Track.

LAGGAN, N.W.T., Sept. 15.—The special excursion train with the members of the British Association on board arrived at Stephen on Friday night, and were on Saturday morning taking thence to the Kicking Horse Pass at the end of the track. The excursionists separated into exploring parties, and rambled over the mountains to the first tunnel. Three miles west of here, the Canadian Pacific crosses the Bow River which flows from a northerly direction in the Rockies. At the summit of the Rockies lies the station named Stephen at an altitude of five thousand feet above the level of the sea, and on the boundary line between the provinces of Alberta and British Columbia. Three miles west of Stephen begins the Kicking Horse river, whose waters flow west. Fourteen miles below is Tunnel city, which is the end of the present track. On Saturday a number of excursionists went through the tunnel on foot.

Immediately after several professors and journalists had passed the exit, fifty tons of rock, gravel and clay of which the roof is composed fell with a terrible crash, carrying away a bridge. Drs. Selwyn, of Ottawa, and Boyle, of Manchester, Eng.; and Messrs. Lawson, of Toronto, Stockwell, of the Western Morning News, Plymouth, Eng., H. A. Calder (journalist), W. Barnasse, of Essex, Eng., and others narrowly escaped being crushed to death. Dr. Selwyn perceiving some rock dropping, called out and darted forward just in time to escape. Several tons of rock fell between the gentleman named, utterly wrecking the bridge, which, with the rock, went down into the valley. No one was hurt except Mr. Lawson, who had his hand slightly bruised. All western communication has been temporarily blocked.—Ottawa Free Press.

THE SILVER LINING.

There's never a day so sunny
But a little cloud appears;
There's never a life so happy
But has had its time of tears;
Yet the sun shines out the brighter
When the stormy tempest clears.

There's never a garden growing
With roses in every plot;
There's never a heart so hardened
But it has one tender spot;
We have only to prune the border
To find the forget-me-not.

There's never a cup so pleasant
But has bitter with the sweet;
There's never a path so rugged
That bears not the print of feet;
And we have a helper promised
For the trials we may meet.

There's never a sun that rises
But we know 't will set at night;
The tints that gleam in the morning
At evening are just as bright;
And the hour that is the sweetest
Is between the dark and light.

There's never a dream that's happy
But the waking makes us sad;
There's never a dream of sorrow
But the waking makes us glad;
We shall look some day with wonder
At the troubles we have had.

There's never a way so narrow
But the entrance is made straight;
There's always a guide to point us
To the "little wicket gate;"
And the angels will be nearer
To a soul that's desolate.

There's never a heart so haughty
But will some day bow and kneel;
There's never a heart so wounded
That the Saviour cannot heal;
There's many a lowly forehead
That's bearing the hidden seal.

KILLING A BEAR.

Two Young Men Have a Hard Fight With a Bear at White Lake.

The Kingston News tells the story of the exciting experience of Maurice A. Viele, of Lyons, and DeWitt Parshall, of Geneve, N.Y., while hunting at White Lake. It was about seven o'clock in the evening, and the hunters were just about getting out of their boat upon the shore, when they were startled by a noise in the thicket not a dozen yards away, and on looking around they beheld a bear and her two cubs. The mother immediately arose on her hind legs, her head and neck just showing above a fallen tree. Instantly Parshall seized his gun and fired and down went bruin, and Parshall leaped out of the boat and ran towards the spot where she fell, thinking that he had shot her through the head, but such was not the case, for no sooner had he reached the tree than she appeared at the root of it, walking erect, and with part of her lower jaw carried away. As quick as lightning she was upon him, and quicker still Parshall was upon the ground, but he hugged her closely and seized her hair in his teeth, so that she could not get at his face and throat with her claws. Her mouth was harmless. Viele hearing the cries of his companion was soon at his side, rifle in hand, but all he could do he dare not fire into the bear, as one minute Parshall was on top of her and the next she was uppermost. They rolled on the ground like two dogs fighting. Seeing that his gun was of no use, Viele threw it down, and, seizing a huge club, watched his opportunity and gave bruin a terrific blow across the back, which almost paralyzed her for a second or two. During this brief interval Parshall drew his knife and buried it in her just below one of the fore paws. Another terrific struggle commenced, this time the bear succeeded in grabbing Parshall by the shoulder and whirling him about ten feet, when he fell upon a knot and hurt his side. Viele being the nearest to her she rushed at him, when he ducked, and, seizing her by the middle, raised her upon his shoulder and then called upon Parshall to take his gun and shoot her. The latter got the gun, but before he got close to the brute she had ripped all the clothes off Viele's back and was attempting to sink her teeth into him, but as her lower jaw was gone she could not do so. Taking quick aim Parshall sent a bullet through her head and Viele held her upon his shoulder till she kicked her last. Both young men are very powerful and either would prove a match for a small bear. At the conclusion of their fight they looked for wounds and it was found that Viele's back was slightly lacerated, and that Parshall, besides having a badly sprained ankle, had several scratches on the back of the neck and head, His side was also injured. The animal they thought would weigh about 180 pounds.

Samuel Heath, a Bigamist, Confronted by His Wife.

Nearly sixteen years ago Samuel Heath cleared out and left his wife and family at St. Thomas Not hearing from him they thought he had been killed, and his family removed to Hamilton. A St. Thomas despatch says: "Heath meantime had been sent to penitentiary for burglary committed in cobourg. After serving 4½ years he was released, and went to Cayuga, thence to Hagersville, from there to Simcoe, and subsequently to Waterford. He adopted the alias of Samuel Stewart, and starting to work at his trade and began life anew. Being a good workman, he was able to get employment. Seven years ago he married a Miss Covel, daughter of a farmer near Villa Nova, who working as a domestic in Waterford. The couple were married in this city by a Methodist minister, at the Lisgar House. They returned to Waterford, where they lived a year, and then removed to London, where they resided until two months ago, when they came to St. Thomas, bringing with them two children, the result of the last marriage. Since his release from the Penitentiary, now more than eleven years ago, Heath, alias Stewart, has always borne himself irreproachably in the various places where he has lived, but made no effort to trace his first wife and child. Three months ago Heath's legitimate son came here from Hamilton and obtained a situation on the Canada Southern. Saturday young Heath's mother came to visit him. Before Mrs. Heath had been in the city twelve hours, she saw and recognized her truant husband who was living in the house adjoining that in which her son boarded south of the Canada Southern shops. Mrs. Heath No. 1 revealed her husband's perfidy, and there upon Mrs. Stewart, or Mrs. Heath No. 2, left him and returned on the C. S. R. express broken hearted to her father's house in Norfolk. Her two children, a boy and a girl, accompanied her, while Heath went forth an outcast from home and family, buying a ticket for St. Louis. Mrs. Heath No 1 refuses to prosecute her husband, so strangly found after an absence of sixteen years.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

They Didn't Go.

Owing to unforeseen events, our baseball team could not possibly assemble so as to take part in the tournament which is being held at Lindsay to-day and to-morrow. As most of the members of the first nine hold positions in business houses it is no easy matter to get them all together.

For the Championship.

As we go to press a lacrosse match, Checkers of Beaverton vs. Peterboroughs, is being played on the Ashburnham grounds for the championship of Central Ontario. The Checkers arrived on the Grand Trunk noon train, and are registered at the Grand Central Hotel.

Not the First Twelve.

"The Cobourg Lacrosse Club defeated the Peterboroughs." This sentence is from the Kingston News, and several other papers have made the same mistake, owing to the wording of a despatch sent from Cobourg to the Globe. It was a junior team of the Peterboroughs that played at Cobourg.

Cancelled.

The westward bound No. 5 mixed train of the Ontario and Quebec Railway due in Peterborough at 8 a. m., and the eastward bound No. 8 mixed train due here at 8 p. m. have been cancelled for Thursday. Those intending to patronize those trains will govern themselves according to the above.

Postponed.

The single scull race between J. Mercer, of Peterborough, and A. Strickland, of Lakefield, which was to have come off at Chemong Lake this morning was, on account of the roughness of the water, postponed until to-morrow, when it is to be hoped more favorable weather will prevail. Quite a number of people had assembled this morning to see the race, and considerable excitement existed.

More Window Breaking.

On Monday afternoon at about 4 o'clock a rencounter occurred on Simcoe Street, near Mr. T. Kelly's dry goods store. During the row one of the combatants shoved the other through the side window of the store and broke a large pane of glass. The culprit was promptly taken in charge by Chief Johnston, but on his paying $2, the price of the glass, he was allowed to go.

Artillery Competition.

The Durham Field Battery will leave town to-morrow at 11.30 a. m. on the Grand Trunk Railway, to take part in the Ontario Artillery competition in Toronto on the 17th and 18th. The team of the Durham Field Battery will be composed of 16 men, 8 from Peterborough and the rest from Port Hope and vicinity. The following are the events in which the battery will participate:—Shooting, target practice, dismounting gun and carriage, and changing gun and limber wheel. The battery will remain in Toronto for three days.

Surprising Activity.

The Belleville Intelligencer of Sept. 13th says:

"The Ontario and Quebec Railway, which is really a part of the great Canadian Pacific line, is now open for passenger and freight traffic. The roadway is said to be first-class in every respect, and the carriages accommodations excellent. A gentleman who lately observed the arrival of an evening passenger train from the east at Peterborough, informs us that the bustle and business activity at the depot was somewhat surprising. A number of persons were waiting for passage to Toronto, and the cars—five in all—were well filled. The train consisted of two 'sleepers,' two first-class coaches, and an 'emigrant car,' all being exceedingly neat and commodious. It is quite evident that this road will soon develop a strong opposition to the Grand Trunk between Ottawa and Toronto, and indeed between Montreal and Toronto. The passenger station being erected at Peterborough will be a substantial and attractive structure. It is built of brick, with cut stone foundation reaching up to the window sills, and is twice as large as the Grand Trunk station here. The freight sheds, which are completed, are frame structures. Many of our readers scarcely realize the strength of this rival to our frontier line."

BEAUTY AND BRILLIANCY.

Our Town Filled with Visitors to See the Great 4-Paw Show.

On Monday afternoon and evening Adam Forepaugh's mammoth circus and menagerie exhibited in this town. The circus was decidedly above the average, both as to quality and quantity of talent and equippage.

THE VISITORS

commenced to arrive from the country at an early hour, and the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific regular trains brought large numbers of people. Several of the surrounding villages held their civic holiday on Monday, and this circumstance caused many more to be present. A special train from Lakefield was loaded with human freight, and it would be difficult to arrive at a conclusion as to the approximate number of the floating population. The streets were closely crowded and the business men appeared to be reaping a harvest.

AFTER THE PROCESSION

had moved through the various thoroughfares it slowly proceeded down George street, followed by crowds of foot passengers, together with hacks and busses laden with people who were bent on "seeing the circus." The menagerie alone was well worth the admission fee. It was capacious and comprehensive, including a great variety of animals from all quarters of the globe, from the sea lion of the polar regions to the chattering parrots and monkeys of the tropics. The blue faced mandril, a species of gorilla, attracted a continual crowd. The nondescript, of the hog family, was also a noticeable feature among the multitudinious and interesting collection.

IN THE ARENA

two rings encircled by a third were almost constantly occupied by rounds of equestrian talent. The trained elephants were an important feature. The performance which Mr. A. Forepaugh, jr., the trainer, put them through was truly wonderful, especially the pyramid, the clown elephant, and the elephant band. The acrobatic performance of a troupe of Arabs caused much merriment and considerable admiration.

The trapeze performance of the Silbon family was looked upon with breathless interest. Many other attractions worthy of praise made up a programme which none, we may say, disliked.

THE LIGHT OF ASIA

is a rather small elephant; it is of a slate color, and its skin is almost as soft as kid. It would make only about a quarter of Boliver's massive and towering frame.

The Bat and the Ball.

A telegram has been received to the effect that the Lindsay base ball tournament has been postponed for one week. Efforts will be made to send a representative team from Peterborough.

Dress Goods.

Ladies please note, Fair, VanEvery & Co. are showing most elegant designs in new Dress Goods with beautiful Trimming to match. Dress and mantle making on the premises under the supervision of experienced artists.

Gone with the Great Show.

Mr. E. Brown, of the Little Windsor Hotel, has disposed of his little brown bear "Bruno," Mr. Adam Forepaugh being the buyer. Henceforth Bruno, the pet of the Little Windsor, will form an interesting feature in Forepaugh's great menagerie.

Room Paper.

The wall paper trade is booming, and our remnants of eight, ten and twelve rolls are fast disappearing. We have sampled all these papers so that they can be readily seen. Now is the time to paper your houses cheaply. Call, see the goods, you will be satisfied and buy. A. L. DAVIS & Co.

The Weather.

The readings of the Thermometer and Barometer in Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store today were as follows:—

One o'clock	69°	28.81

Sympathy.

The deep regard in which the teachers and pupils of the Public School hold their principal, Mr. H. Kay Coleman, was manifested to-day by their anxiety to express their sympathy with him in his bereavement, in the loss of his child, by sending flowers. They were greatly disappointed on finding their contributions to be too late, the funeral having taken place.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the following twenty-four hours, counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Strong winds and moderate gales from the south-west and northwest; warm, with occasional rains, followed by clearing and cooler weather towards evening.

An Excellent Choir.

The choir of St. John's Church, having been reinforced by the addition of new members and the return to town of old ones, will now settle down to steady practice through the coming winter, and will (D.V.) advance along the road to musical proficiency, till the summer of '85 comes around to disperse the members again in search of pleasure. It is the intention of Mr. Charles W. Ewing, the organist, with the hearty co-operation of all the members, to bring the choir to a higher state of efficiency than ever, and cause it to be one of the first, if not the first, in the Province.

Scotch Tweeds.

Gentlemen please note Fair, VanEvery & Co's large importation of Scotch Tweeds for suits, panting, overcoating, etc., well worthy of your attention. They make tailoring a specialty. A first class cutter at your command, and a fit guaranteed.

POLICE COURT.

TUESDAY, Sept. 16.—Mr. J. Stevenson occupied the bench this morning.

D. AND D.

John Harris was charged with having been drunk and disorderly. He pleaded guilty and was fined $1 and costs.

Thos. O'Brien was charged with a similar offence. Penalty, fined $1 and costs or leave town before 2 o'clock p.m.

James O'Brien was charged with vagrancy. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded until Saturday.

SOME HISTORICAL ANTIPATHIES.

The celebrated Erasmus, though a native of Rotterdam, had such an avesion to fish, that the smell of it threw him into a fever. Ambroise Pare had a patient who could never see an eel without fainting; and another who would fall into convulsions at the sight of a carp. What would have been the effect of an electric eel on these gentlemen? Joseph Scaliger and others could never drink milk. Garden was disgusted at the sight of eggs. A king of Poland and a secretary of France bled at the nose when they looked at apples. Henry III. of France and many others had a great aversion to cats, mice, spiders, etc. A great huntsman in Hanover who would attack a wild boar valiatly, always fainted at the sight of roasted pig if he had not time to run away. These antipathies have been humorously accounted for by the doctrine of the transmigration of souls. Those who had been flies in a former state were horribly afraid of spiders; those who had been mice did not like cats; and those who had been cats did not love dogs, etc. Amatus Lusitanus knew a person who fainted whenever he saw a rose, and always kept his house when they were in bloom. Scaliger mentions the same about lilies, and Bayle about honey. Bayle himself turned pale at the sight of watercress. Tycho-Brahe fainted at the sight of a fox; Henry III. of France, at that of a cat; Marshal d'Albret, at a pig. A lady, wonderful enough, could not endure the feel of silk or satin. A man, not so strangely, was known to faint whenever he heard a servant sweeping. Nicanor swooned whenever he heard a bagpipe. Bayle fainted when he heard the splashing of water.

GOODNESS

Runs Through Our Stock From Silks and Broadcloths to Spools and Suspenders.

We combine with this virtue low prices—though people are often more impressed with the latter than the former. But our prices are high enough to make sound business! low enough to make business grow! Isn't this logic? and logic applied to business. Logic alone won't sell the goods, so we combine the goods and the prices, and take our customers' orders.

We're selling everything at fully a third off—in some cases one-half off.

Our goods were not bought to sell so, but they're just the same, in material and work, as when they bring more money.

What we want to make sure of is that you know of the opportunity, and can use it if you need.

THREE STRAIGHT GAMES

PETERBOROUGH RETAINS THE LACROSSE CHAMPIONSHIP OF CENTRAL ONTARIO.

A Hot Match with the Beavertons—Good Play on Both Sides—No Rough Play—J. Garvin's Opinion of the Play.

The Lacrosse Championship of Central Ontario was contested between the Checkers, of Beaverton, and the home team, on the Ashburnham Cricket Grounds, on Tuesday afternoon. At two o'clock the Checkers went over to the grounds to prepare for the match, and were followed by the home team and the City Band at about three o'clock. Some difficulty was encountered in getting the Peterboroughs together, and finally a member of the second twelve was called on to play 1st home. The prevailing opinion in town in regard to the result of the match was, that in consequence of want of practice, and owing to the absence of some of the best men, the Peterboroughs would loose the match. The result (three straight games), proved to be a surprise to the boys themselves.

At half-past three o'clock the opposing teams took up their positions as follows:—

BEAVERTON.		PETERBOROUGH.
J. McLean	Goal	J. Joyal
K. Davidson	Point	P. Myles
D. McKinnon	Cover Point	M. Tierney
D. McMillan	Defence Field	J. Howden
S. Weeks	" "	M. Halpin
J. Kennedy	" "	R. S. Kelly
P. McMillan	Centre Field	J. Sheehy
M. C. Cameron	Home Field	R. H. Fortye
J. Birchard	" "	W. J. Scott
A. Cameron	" "	J. Henderson
W. K. Cameron	2nd Home	C. Rutherford
A. F. Birchard	1st Home	J. Canning
A. H. Wheeler	Field Captain	J. Coughlin
A. Kennedy	Umpire	G. S. Perkins

Mr. J. Garvin, of the Toronto Lacrosse Club, acted efficiently as Referee.

THE FIRST.

At 3.45 o'clock the ball was faced by the two centres. Sheehey drew it forth and gave it over to Kelly. The rubber next advanced to Henderson's stick, and then went down to the Checker's goal, thence, propelled by McLean, to centre field, where Fortye came into possession and tossed it over to Henderson, who made another attack upon the Checker's goal. After some little trouble D. McMillan passed the sphere to Weeks, who threw it up to centre field. Kelly neatly stopped it and threw, but "Supple" Cameron was in the way. He travelled with it on his stick, and when it touched the ground again the Peterborough defence was warmly working. Howden pushed his way into the hottest of the fray, and came out with the ball on his 'crosse. He made a fine run eastward, threw the ball, and again it was the turn of the Checker's defense to get to work. Davidson now distinguished himself in a long shot on the Peterborough's points. His play was unavailing, for Myles at once picked it up, ran towards the elm tree and delivered it to Henderson. "Jonnie" Kennedy attempted to check the holder, and the two "little fellows" played the whole game for a short time. Finally Scott dropped the ball to Canning, and through the stakes it rolled. Time, 29 minutes.

THE SECOND.

At 16 minutes past four the invincible Sheehey again rolled out the ball, but Weeks was on the qui vive. He secured it and after a short run—threw it to a Checker man. Fortye, however, was the lucky man this time. He did not keep it long; it passed from one to another till A. F. Berchard, alias Jumbo, made a straight, low shot on the Peterborough goal. Joyal stopped the rubber, and immediately it was coursing through the air at lightning speed. A short time after another desperate attempt was made by M. C. Cameron to force the Peterborough's goal. The defense seemed to be impenetrable; it again went to centre. Fortye made a fine run with it and dropped it within a few feet of the Checker's flags, but the Peterborough home was not strong enough to put it through. It came out to centre and Scott returned it. Again it shot out of a scrimmage and passed to the east end of the field. Here some cool, collected field play was made. Kelly gently tipped it to Sheehy and he in his turn eluded checking by throwing it to "Kit" Rutherford. Kit dropped it directly in front of goal, but despite every exertion it again passed out. Kelly now secured it in centre field, made a low well directed swoop, the Peterboroughs homes "checked sticks" and the ball went through on the fly. Time, 15 minutes.

THE THIRD.

The "invincible" again drew the ball at the face and this time Kelly received it. He ran towards the grand stand, suddenly turned, and made a side drop on the Checker's goal. D. McKinnon did not allow it to pass him, He nabbed it and it travelled out beyond centre field. Rutherford returned the caoutchouc, but the goal was again relieved. Several times during the rest of the game "time" was called so as to attend to the slight wounds of players on each side. At one time, for a few minutes the ball passed from one defense to the other, Howden on the first defense catching in superb style, P. McMillan and J. Kennedy played to each other instinctively, and McMillan made shot after shot at the Peterboroughs goal. Halpin staved off several "balls" and did some effectual work. Joyal, as goal keeper, proved to be the right man in the right place when a man like McMillan was on the opposing centre. At last in a heated scuffle in front of the Checkers goal, Henderson tapped the ball lightly and scored the third and deciding game in favor of Peterborough. Time, including stoppages, 46 minutes.

NOTES.

"Mr. Garvin," said a REVIEW reporter to the referee, "what is your opinion of the play?" "Well," said Mr. Garvin "I have heard a great deal lately said about 'Peterborough slugging' and all that sort of thing, but I must confess that after watching carefully, I have been unable to discover any intentional rough play on either side. It was a square match all through, and the playing was very fair."

Undoubtedly the Checkers have pluck and grit, this being the third match they have played with the Peterboroughs this year. They are gentlemenly and courteous, and some of the members became quite "popular" with the home team.

"Billy" Rudkins was noticed comfortably reclining on the grand stand. The injuries he received during the last match are gradually cicatrizing but it is feared he will not be able to play again this fall.

On account of the circus showing the day before, the attendance was not so large as one would expect at so important a match.

FIRE AT LINDSAY.

The Government Drill Shed Burned—Agricultural Machinery Destroyed.

LINDSAY, Sept. 16.—A somewhat dangerous fire occurred here at one o'clock this morning. The Government drill-shed caught fire from some cause at present unknown, and in a little more than an hour was consumed with all its contents. It had for some time been occupied by R. Sylvester as an agricultural store-room, and contained some $6,000 worth of agricultural machinery besides casting and iron work not made up. The loss on the building will be about $1,500. It also contained 1,200 rounds of ammunition and rifles and clothing belonging to company No. 6, of the 45th battalion of Victoria. Mr. Sylvester had an insurance of $2,000 in the City of London on the contents. There was also a small insurance on the building in favour of the county. The Sylvester works were only saved by the greatest exertions of the foreman, Mr. Robert Sylvester, Mr. Dangle, the bookkeeper, and the employees, assisted on every hand by the Lindsay citizens. The fire brigade being in Toronto made matters doubly difficult. Four railway cars standing on the Sylvester siding were also burned, and the old fire hall and hose-tower caught fire in several places, but the citizens put it out after the greatest exertions. A more handsome drill shed will be immediately erected.

SOUTH RENFREW.

THE unseating of Dr. Dowling by the election court sitting in the South Renfrew case, is not the simple matter of another Reform candidate being added to the long list of those who have had to pay the penalty of their corruption. The fact that Dr. Dowling was run as the Reform candidate, and was warmly supported by Reform leaders, shows the general sympathy of the Reform party with corrupt methods and with those who make use of them.

It will be remembered that Dr. Dowling was unseated and disqualified for personal corruption. One of his judges was disposed to give him the benefit of the mitigating clause, but the other was not, and thus the disqualification remained. In spite of this personal corruption the Reformers of South Renfrew and the Reform leaders of Ontario thought that he was a proper person for a representative. The judges, on a protest against his second election, have decided that he was not a fit person to be even a candidate, and that his election is void.

Thus justice has been done, but it is only thanks to a blunder of Mr. Mowat that there has not been a miscarriage of justice. Mr. Mowat, his colleagues and supporters, endeavored by a most iniquitous measure hurriedly passed at the very end of last session, to snatch their corrupt friend from the hands of the judges. They had all the will, but not, it seems, the knowledge to aid him in his corruption. The section upon which he relied, and to which his counsel appealed in his behalf was, in the language of the judge, "planned by someone who was unaware of the existing state of the laws." Thus it was the ignorance as to our laws of our Attorney-General, and his legal colleagues who pack his Cabinet, to which was due their failure to frustrate those laws and to legalize corruption.

There is another point that is worthy of attention. Dr. Dowling was one of the chief informers and "traps" employed by Mowat & Co. in their bribery conspiracy. As the disqualification pronounced now by four of our judges is founded upon charges of corruption which Dr. Dowling swore to be untrue, it is evident that he has committed perjury. Can we doubt then that he also committed perjury when he was endeavouring to carry out the bribery plot of Mr. Mowat and his colleagues?

NORTH WEST ONTARIO.

THE London Advertiser having exceptional means of information on the subject, makes the following contribution to the Boundary question:—

"We observe that many of our contempories speak of the new territory obtained by Ontario. Ontario has obtained no new territory. It always belonged to her. Her boundaries at one time stretched over very much more extensive dominions. But those who lost by acquiescing in the exercise of authority by other parties. But, deprived as she is of all means of customs revenue, the territory which remains to her is quite as extensive as her resources will permit her to satisfactorily govern."

If Ontario has only got a portion of her old territory, we cannot see why Mr. Mowat should be called a hero for obtaining it, especially as he kept us out of it by his obstinacy for long years, till at last he adopted the sensible Conservative policy of an appeal to the law.

As to our abandonment of our rights to the more extensive boundaries, which, according to the London Advertiser should have been ours, the most important instances were when Mr. Mowat made an unconstitutional arrangement with Mr. Mackenzie for the settlement of our limits, and when Mr. Mowat neglected to urge our rights to anything refused us by the invalid award.

The Advertiser excuses this abandonment of our right by declaring that our territory is now quite as large as can be governed satisfactorily with our limited resources. What is the extent of territory that we can thus utilize? According to Reform journals it seems to be just that which may suit the varying views of Reform politicians. We all remember how the Globe argued that even the award gave us more country than was desirable, that much if it was sterile and not fit even to be traversed by our great transcontinental railway, and that in short we might as well abandon part of it to the Dominion.

A WRITER in the Toronto World asks the following question, which the Reformers who are "booming" Mr. Mowat will have some difficulty in answering:—

"When or where, or in what terms did Sir John Macdonald say that he was unwilling to have this (boundary) question settled as it has been?"

The cable informs us that the Czar has pardoned forty-two Nihilists at Warsaw. Moral suasion could no further go, unless it should go the length of inducing the Nihilists to pardon the Czar, which is most unlikely.—Toronto World.

A CONSOLATION PRIZE.

At Kingston the other day Mr. G. W. Ross said Sir John, in 1872, proposed that the case should go before the Privy Council. As for Mr. Mowat, what did he do? "All along," said Mr. Ross, "he urged a settlement of the boundary question by arbitration." As the case did go to the Privy Council Sir John won in the contest. It looks very much as if the Mowat demonstration was a sort of consolation prize for the man who lost.—Toronto Mail.

It may be that the iniquitous N. DOWN ON DOWLING

It may be safely said that any man whose personal integrity is of so questionable a character that his vindication hinges upon a technicality is not a fit representative for any honest constituency. THE SCIENTISTS' VISIT.

The visit of the English scientists to Montreal cannot but be of immence profit to us from a political point of view. We have already said that they are not politicians, but in spite of this, perhaps even because of it, they will exercise on the minds of Englishmen, through the reviews and publications of all kinds, an influence of which we shall before long feel the beneficial effects—at any rate, most certainly in all cases in which our interests in the metropolis may be concerned.—La Minerve.

ENGLISH LITERATURE

We again give to our readers an instalment of Mr. B. Earl's questions in English literature, the following questions being on Shakspere's

JULIUS CÆSAR:

1. Give a resume of the history of Rome embraced in the drama of "Julius Cæsar."
2. When was the play of "Julius Cæsar" first printed?
3. What evidence have we that it was written as early as 1601?
4. Whence did the dramatist derive his historical materials?
5. Mention any instances in which Shakspere has departed from the facts of history, and assign reasons where you can.
6. Over what period do the events of the drama extend?
7. Who is the hero of the play? Shew that the play is rightly named.
8. Compare and contrast the Cæsar of the drama with the Cæsar of history.
9. "The murder of Cæsar hastens and cements the empire." Explain.
10. Account for the unfavourable light in which the dramatist represents Cæsar, especially just before the assassination.
11. By what motives were Brutus and Cassius, respectively, actuated in the assassination of Cæsar? Quote passages in illustration.
12. Compare and contrast the characters of Brutus and Cassius. Quote passages.
13. Sketch fully the character of Brutus.
14. "It has been truly said that the murder of Cæsar was the most senseless act the Romans ever committed." Justify.
15. Justify the title "Tragedy" applied to this play.
16. "In Julius Cæsar, Shakspere makes a complete imaginative study of the case of a man predestined to failure, who nevertheless retains to the end the moral integrity which he prized as his highest possession, and who, with each new error, advances a fresh claim upon our admiration and our love." Justify.
17. "Does Shakspere in this play mean to signify to us unobtrusively that the philosophical creed which a man possesses, grows out of his character and circumstances as far as it is really a portion of his own being; and that as far as it is received by the intellect in the calm of life from teachers and schools, such a philsophical creed does not adhere very closely to the soul of a man, and may, upon the pressure of events or of passions, be cast aside." Cite passages to justify your answer.
18. "It is idealists who create a political terror; they are far from all desire for bloodletting; but to them the lives of men and women are accidents; the lives of ideas are the true realities; and armed with an abstract principle and a suspicion, they perform deeds which are at once beautiful and hideous." Illustrate from this play. Name a prominent example in English history.
19. How are the characters of Cicero, Cassius and Brutus brought out by the dramatist on the night before the assassination?
20. "No relation of man and woman in the plays of Shakspere is altogether so noble as that of Portia and Brutus." Write a note on the nature of this relation. Sketch the character of Portia.
21. "Brutus is the political Girondin. He is placed in contrast with his brother-in-law, Cassius, the political Jacobin." Explain and justify.
22. Sketch the character of Antony.
23. "He (Cæsar) was great in everything he undertook; as a captain, a statesman, a lawgiver, a jurist, an orator, a poet, an historian, a grammarian, a mathematician, and an architect." Justify.
24. "Cassius is much the better conspirator, but much the worse man; and the better in that because the worse in this." Explain and illustrate.
25. "The events of Roman history connect 'Anthony and Cleopatra' immediately with 'Julius Cæsar'; yet Shakspere allowed a number of years to pass . . . before he seems to have thought of his second Roman play." What, according to Dowden, is the significance of this fact?
26. "Brutus lives in the abstraction, in the idea; Cassius lives in the concrete, the fact." Explain and illustrate.
27. "It is the spirit of Cæsar which is the dominant power of the tragedy." Justify.
28. "Nor is Brutus, though he worship an ideal of Justice, quite just in matters of concrete, practical detail." Illustrate.
29. In every case where Brutus and Cassius differ in opinion, Cassius is right, if success be the object aimed at. Give instances.
30. "I know no part of Shakspere that more impresses on me the belief of his genius being superhuman than the scene between Brutus and Cassius." Briefly criticise this scene.
31. "The want of unity of interest is the common objection that has been most frequently brought against Julius Cæsar." Discuss this question.

Killed, by a Scratch.

READING, Pa., Sept. 15.—Jacob Smith a farmer of North Heidelburg, skinned his arm while threshing. A poisonous plant came in contact with the wound. Smith died to-day in great agony. Mrs. Mell, who nursed him, was stricken down this morning and is dying from the effects of the poison contracted through a cut on the hand.

Pale, Poor, Puny, & Pallid.

Considering all the ills that attack little children, it is a wonder that any of the poor little youngsters live to grow up.

There are children who are truly objects of pity. They seem almost bloodless. Their cheeks are thin and pinched; their eyes are hollow; and their skin is tightly drawn over their foreheads. There is nothing hearty about them. They do not enjoy their lives. They are suffering from the debility that leads to marasmus. Poor things!

Do a good deed for the pale, poor, puny, pallid child. Hand its mother a bottle of the Shaker Blood Syrup. Here is life even for the most delicate; the most debilitated; for the child almost given up for dead. Pure blood is what the child needs, to bring it up. The little digestive apparatus will recover. The pale cheeks will fill out. The weary groan of the child will be exchanged for the merry prattle of infantile gladness. Your druggist will tell what wonders the Shaker Blood Syrup has done for very sick children.

A HOME DRUGGIST TESTIFIES.

Popularity at home is not always the best test of merit, but we point proudly to the fact that no other medicine has won for itself such universal approbation in its own city, state, and country, and among all people, as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—

RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."

River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

SALT RHEUM. GEORGE ANDREWS, overseer in the Lowell Carpet Corporation, was for over twenty years before his removal to Lowell afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form. Its ulcerations actually covered more than half the surface of his body and limbs. He was entirely cured by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. See certificate in Ayer's Almanac for 1883.

He sank on his knees before her, and his handsome head fell upon the arm of her chair. She covered her face with her hands, and a smothered sob broke from her tortured heart.

"I have sinned, but not intentionally, against you. God is my witness—had I known all, twenty oceans could not have kept me from my wife and my baby. When you lived it all over again that night, when I saw you ill, deserted, in a charity hospital, with the child you say is mine, cradled in your arms, oh! then indeed I suffered, what all the pangs of perdition cannot surpass. When you and I married, we were but children, but I loved you; afterwards when I was a man, I madly renewed those vows to one, whom I was urged, persuaded, to wed. Ah, no language can describe my feelings, as I looked at that noble, lovely girl. Oh the fond pride of knowing that she is mine as well as yours! My wife! My wife! Let the holy blue eyes and pure lips of your babe, our daughter, plead her father's forgiveness."

Listening to the low cadence of the beloved voice that first waked her from the magic real of childhood, and unsealed the fountain of affection—the days of their courtship stole back; the blissful hours of the brief honeymoon. He was her lover, her noble young husband, above all—he was the father of her baby—and yielding to the old irresistible infatuation, she suddenly laid her hand upon his head. As yet she had not uttered a syllable since his entrance,—but the floodgates were lifted and he heard the despairing cry of her famished heart:

"Oh my husband! My husband,—my own husband!"

He threw his arms around her as she leaned toward him, and drew the head to his shoulder. So in silence they rested, and he felt that one arm tightened around him, as he knelt holding her to his heart.

"Minnie, your true heart forgives your unworthy husband. Tell me so and it will enable me to bear all that the future may contain. Say, Cuthbert, I forgive you."

She struggled up, gazed into his eyes, and exclaimed:

"No—I loved you too well, too insanely, ever to forgive. If I had loved you less I might have forgiven more. There is no meekness in my soul, but an intolerable bitterness that mocks and maddens me. I ought to despise myself, and I certainly shall, for this unpardonable weakness. But very precious memories unnerved me, and I clung—not to you, —not to Abbie Ames' husband, but to the phantom of the Cuthbert, whom long ago I loved so well, to the vision of the young bridegroom I worshipped so blindly. Let me go. Our interview is ended."

She withdrew from his arms and rose.

"Before I go, let me see our child once more. Let me tell her that her father is inexpressibly proud of the daughter, who will honour his unworthy name."

"She declines meeting you again."

"Minnie, don't teach her to hate me!"

"I gave her the opportunity, and she made her own choice, saying, she freely forgave the wrongs committed against her, but her mother's —she could never forget. You forsook and disowned me, repudiated your vows; offered them elsewhere, making unto yourself strange, new gods, profaning the alter, where other images should have stood. The banker's daughter, and the Laurance heiress she bore you, are entitled to what remains of your fickle selfish heart, and I trust that the two who supplanted my baby and me, will suffice for your happiness in the future, as in the past. Into my own and my darling's life you can enter no more. When you reach New York, Mr. Erle Palma, who is my counsel, will acquaaint you with the course he deems it best to pursue."

She looked calm and stately as the Ludovisian Juno, and quite as lovely in her pale pride.

"Minnie, do not part from me in anger. Oh my wife—let me fold you in my arms once more! And once, just once,—I pray you let me kiss you! Are you not my own?"

She recoiled a step, her brown eyes lighted, and her words fell crisp as icicles:

"Since I was a bride, three weeks a wife, since you pressed them last, no man's lips have touched mine. I hold them too sacred to that dear buried past to be submitted to a pressure less holy, to be profaned by those of another woman's husband. Only my daughter kisses my lips. Yours are soiled with perjury and belong to the wife and child of your choice. Go, pay your vows, be true at last to something. Good-bye."

He came closer, but her pitiless, chill face repulsed him. Seizing her beautiful hand, white and cold as marble, he lifted it, but the flash of the diamonds smote his heart like a heavy flail.

"The death's hand that you gave me as a bridal token! Is there not a fatality even in symbols? Upon my wedding ring stands the cinerary urn, that soon sepulchered my peace, my hopes. A mockery so exquisite could not have been accidental, and faithfully that grining skeleton has walked with me. The ghastly coat of arms of Laurance."

She had thrown of his clasp, raised her hand, and turned the ring over till the jewels glowed, then, it fell back nerveless at her side.

"Minnie."

His voice was broken, but her lustrous eyes betrayed no hint of pity.

"My wife has no pardon for her erring husband. I have merited none, still I hoped for one kind farewell word from lips that are strangely dear to me. So be it. Tell my daughter, if her unhappy father dared to pray, he would invoke heaven's choicest blessings on her young innocent head. And Minnie, love, let our baby's eyes and lips successfully plead pardon for her father's unintentional sins against the wife he never ceased to love."

He caught the hand once more, kissed the ring he had placed there eighteen years before; and, feeling his hot, trembling lips upon her icy fingers she shut her eyes. When she opened them she was alone.

"We twain have met like ships upon the sea,
Who hold an hour's converse, so short, so sweet;
One little hour! and then away they speed,
On lonely paths, through mist, and cloud and foam—
To meet no more!"

Murdered by Drunken Men.

Information has been received in Montreal that a man named Rouleau, living on the roadside near Ormstown, in the County of Huntington, was shot and killed instantly, in his own home, late on Saturday night, by a band of violently drunken scoundrels, who attempted an entrance by battering his door. Finding that deceased and his young son offered a stern resistance, one of the party fired a pistol through an opening in the door, putting an end to the life of the head of the family. So far there have been no arrests, and full particulars have not been received. The parties had been drinking heavily previous to going to the scene of the fatal event, but there is no news obtainable as to the object of the maraunders in attacking the house.

ALLANDALE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PICNIC.—A temperance picnic was held in the grove opposite the railway station on Friday, Sept. 12th. A large number were in attendance, among whom we noticed a good turnout from Keene. Four swings were put up and kept busy, croquet, races and other games indulged in, after which the company, at the word of command, rallied round the tables, richly furnished with dainties, and made terrible slaughter among the cakes, pies, etc., but retreated in good order, leaving the ladies grandly bringing up reinforcements for a fresh attack. As night cast its sombre shades around, the forces withdrew well pleased with the day's proceedings. The temple has now 100 members.

TERPSICHOREAN.—On the evening of 12th Sept. a number of young people assembled in the hall and spent a few pleasant hours in "tripping the light fantastic toe." While happiness and good order reigned within the hall, a few young men made things rather lively on the streets. In justice to our village we may say that the "lightning tags" were brought here in bottles, &c., from other parts.

SAVED ARMY.—Lieut. Miss McCormack announced that religious service would be held (D.V.) next Sabbath evening, but by whom she could not say, as the time had come for her to change quarters, according to the Saved Army rules.

PERSONAL.—Dr. Harrison, Keene, is on the sick list. He was not able to take his place in the Methodist Sunday School on Sunday. Dr. Snaw is looking after some of the patients until Dr. H. is better. May Tom have the pleasure, before many days, of taking the doctor on his rounds of duty at his usual lively pace.

ALLANDALE SUNDAY SCHOOL.—Your correspondent had the pleasure of visiting the Sabbath school held in the hall in this village; Mr. L. Glover, superintendent. He found everything working harmoniously, and was well pleased with the proceedings, especially the singing. There are about 90 scholars and 8 teachers in connection with the school. May success attend their labors in this great work.

More Storms Coming.

Mr. Perrin's last depression brought lightning and wind storm and rain as predicted last week. He writes us, under date of the 15th:—

Sir,—There is now a depression extending from Manitoba to Kansas: it has a very important centre, which will cause a very severe storm of rain, wind and thunder, with hail or sleet in a few sections over Iowa, Minnesota, Illinois and Wisconsin to-day and to-night, reaching the Lakes and extending from Northern Ontario to Ohio to-night and to morrow; the St Lawrence, New York State and Pennsylvania about to-morrow night; the New England states, Maritime Provinces and Gulf of St Lawrence to-morrow night or Wednesday. The important centre will cause moderate to heavy gales in the Western States and Upper Lake region, moderating somewhat as it moves East over New York and New England States. The storm will be preceded by rising temperature and followed by sharp frosts from Manitoba and Dakota east to the Atlantic, and from the St. Lawerence south to Pennsylvania.

Another Bank Defaulter Absconds.

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—Another absconder has turned up in the person of L. P. Herbert, an accountant in La Banque du St. Hyacinthe, who is understood to have embezzled or made away with between $30,000 and $40,000 of the bank funds. It appears the defaulter has been giving his relatives large advances without any security whatever. He is also charged with forging customers' names to cheques to cover up his own delinquencies. It is not yet known whether the loss will embarrass the bank and cause it to suspend, but it is expected there is enough left to meet all liabilities. The Bank of Montreal acts as agent here for the defrauded bank.

Bank of Toronto Counterfit Notes.

A well-executed photographic forgery of five-dollar notes on the Port Hope issue of the Bank of Toronto has been detected in circulation. Eight of these forgeries found their way into the Port Hope agency and one into the Standard Bank in this city. The counterfeit is not very well executed on the back, but the front has a genuine appearance, barring a certain greasy covering, which however makes detection harder.—Toronto World.

Centenary of Ballooning.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The first public balloon ascent on record was made by Montgalfius in 1783, and yesterday the Balloon Society of Great Britain celebrated the centennary of ballooning, by a fete on the grounds of the Honourable artillery company at Finsbury square. The entertainment included the sending up of three balloons, which carried carloads of eager amateurs, and made very satisfactory flights.

Four Men Killed by the Explosion.

MONTGOMERY, Ala, Sept. 15.—The boiler of the Central railway compress at Eufala, Ala exploded to-day, killing four men and wounding several. About four hundred bales of cotton were burned. The compress, recently erected, cost $65,000. The total loss is $100,000. The chief clerk and three colored laborers were killed. The boiler was defective.

Give them All a Slice.

KINGSTON, Sept. 16.—A man named Graham, living in the township of Sidney, near Belleville, and claiming to be a descendant of Sir Robert Graham, the famous Scottish chieftain, says he is heir-at law to the immense estates of his grandfather, and goes to Kingston shortly to prosecute his claim.

The idea that hogs not fattening are injured by high living is a great mistake, and is not nearly as prevelent as formerley. In this country it is recognized as a fact that Indian corn, or corn meal, is not good food alone to keep any stock in growing condition. A mixture of oats and barley makes excellent food for growing pigs, making them long and thrifty rather than round.

THE St. Marys Carriage Manufacturing Company, an enterprise managed by capitalists of that town, is meeting with great success, having sold already over twenty-three thousand shares. The surplus stock of the Company amounting to $106,000 will be divided on October 22nd. Shares are $2 each and all those desiring to participate in this Grand Division, should buy a share at once. Address: H. A. L. WHITE, Sec'y., St. Marys.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain and cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething. Its value is incalculable It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Another Postponement.

The Mercer-Strickland single scull race has been again postponed on account of the roughness of the water. The race will probably take place this evening or to-morrow morning.

P. E. C.

There will be a meeting of the Club at the boat house at 8 o'clock this evening, to make arrangements for the regatta to take place to-morrow. All oarsmen and canoeists are particularly requested to be present.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the following twenty-four hours, counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Fresh to strong south-west to west winds; generally fair weather; stationery or slightly lower temperatures.

Artillery Competition.

The Peterborough contingent of the Durham Field Battery left town on the 11.30 a.m. Grand Trunk train. They will go as far as Port Hope and when there will practice dismounting gun and carriage with the Port Hope men this afternoon. Capt. Sanderson will go down to-morrow to take charge, and all will go to Toronto to participate in the Ontario artillery competition.

The Jacks Lose Their Way.

While the process of loading the equippage of the Forepaugh Show was being gone through on Monday four little donkeys lost their way in the dark and were left behind. On Tuesday a Forepaugh agent, in company with Mr. R. N. Roddy, made a search for the missing stock and found them in the vicinity of the circus ground. They were loaded on the 2 o'clock p. m. Grand Junction train and shipped for Belleville.

A Big Smash.

Sometime during last night the large plate glass window in front of Mr. J. Mills' hat store was smashed. It appears that something massive must have come in contact with the window, as it is shattered beyond repair. There was no insurance on it. It was broken by five young men who were scuffling in front of the window shortly after ten o'clock, and who were seen there. It would be to their advantage if they would call on Mr. Mills and settle the matter.

Left Home.

A boy fifteen years of age named James Johnson, living in the southern part of the town, left home about two weeks ago, and has not been since heard of. His parents surmised that he had gone with Forepaugh's advance corps of billposters, but on inquiry Mr. Forepaugh informed them that his men were forbidden taking any boys unless with the full consent of their parents. The parents of the boy are very anxious, and would be thankful for any information regarding him.

The Firemen in Toronto.

The members of the Peterborough Fire Brigade, accompanied by the Fire Brigade Band, went to Toronto on Monday to take part in the firemen's demonstration in that city. The demonstration consisted of a monster procession and races. The team which entered in the international race failed, by 10½ seconds, to win a prize. In the tug of war the Peterborough team took second prize, defeating Port Hope. In the band competition there were a number of entries and the Peterborough band carried off the second prize. The firemen returned on Tuesday night. While in Toronto the band was engaged to play in the Mowat demonstration.

The Oar and the Paddle.

The Peterborough Boating Club will hold their annual regatta on the Little Lake to-morrow afternoon. The first race on the programme will be a matched single canoe race between Messrs. G. Fitzgerald and J. Weller for a beautiful silver cup, now on exhibition at J. McClelland's jewellry store. This race promises to be most interesting. Both men are in excellent condition and are adepts at wielding the paddle. A great many other events will make up a programme worthy of being seen. Mr. Wm. Rutherford, the secretary of the regatta committee, informs us that everything is now in readiness and an enjoyable afternoon may be spent by those interested in acquatic sports.

GEN. GORDON'S RESCUE.

The Canadian Contingent on the Way—A Letter from One of Them.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—We have just arrived at Quebec, but have not landed yet, and for fear we do not get a chance to, I write to you now.

To continue my account of the trip, we got together in front of the Parliament House in Ottawa and our photos. were taken in gangs, each foreman at the head of his own men, but I don't think it will amount to much, for the boys were restless and excited, and the crowd of outsiders would not keep back. We then formed a line and marched to the station where they had large marquette tents pitched and gave us a good dinner. Then we boarded the train and were off. The whole city seemed to have turned out to see us off, and from the many anxious looking faces, one would think it was to prison we were going instead of on a holiday trip to see the Khedive. There are a lot of fine men on this trip. We took in some more at Montreal. After getting on board we were caught. Four police stood at the gang way and none could get off the boat, but in rambling up to the bow I thought I would slip ashore, and proceeded to skin the starboard line. It was a ticklish, descent but I managed it. I met Capt. Kennedy up town and had a good time, and among the places took in the celebrated Joe Beef's establishment, and if ever you wish to see food in profusion go there. You can go in, cut a chunk off a ham, raw or cooked, or beef, tomattoes, or in fact any thing, all you can eat for five cents. When I woke up in the morning we were too far away from the city to tell what it looked like. The trip down to Quebec was very interesting. At Three Rivers we took in more men. We have all got our bunks and our mess arranged and so far have had plenty of good food and our allowance of rum and water. I'd laugh to see the boys climb for the rum. After getting cleaned up one of the mates called for volunteers to go down the hold and sling up the bags. I slid down and doffed my coat and slung up three or four hundred, and you may believe it tried my staying powers. But I "got there Eli." This morning one of the Ottawa men fell down an open gang way into the hold. He was taken up for dead but came too in a short while. He is badly hurt but is able to walk around now and will soon be all right. Mowry, Ross, White and all the rest send their kindest regards to all their friends in Peterborough. I will not write any more to-night, but if I get a chance to see the city and send this to-morrow, I will.

Yours, &c.
J. A. SHERLOCK.

Quebec, Sept. 14, 1884.

THE WHEEL

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Allow me, through your valuable paper, to enquire what has become of our Bicycle Club? I suppose during the hot weather that bicycling loses its charms, but now that we have it cool, and, in fact, just the weather for the most healthful of all exercises, bicycling, I think there ought to be something done to revive the interest that was manifested in the beginning of the season. What has the Lieutenant been doing since the Captain left town? Why does he not call a meeting and have another Captain elected, or, if it is not his place to call the meeting, why does the Secretary hide himself? There should be a tournament here this fall, now that the driving park is completed; for I am sure the directors of the park would not refuse the use of it for such a purpose, but, of course, if there is no head to the club, it cannot be expected to thrive. It is strange that there has only been two respectable runs this season, and those were held when the late captain was here. Is it not as easy for the members to turn out all together as to be seen taking solitary rides in all conceivable parts of the town? But pardon me, perhaps they are learning to ride "straight," and when they can "walk a crack," so to speak, they will turn out for club runs. However, there should be better turn outs than there has been. Now, Lieutenant, or Secretary, wake up and try and make something of the club; and I may say the same to every member of the club, because if you do not all work together, the officers cannot be expected to keep it up alone and unaided. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space you have kindly allowed me,

I remain,
AN ADMIRER OF THE SPORT.

Important to Cricketers.

A grand two days cricket match will be commenced to-morrow on the Ashburnham grounds, between the Duke of York's Rangers, of the county of York, and the best cricket material to be obtained in Peterborough and district. The Duke of York Rangers are considered one one of the best if not the best in Canada, and our team will meet to-morrow, opponents worthy of their willows. The following are the names of those who represent Peterborough and district:—Messrs. D. Whitlaw, Uxbridge; T. Tate, Campbellford; G. T Hall, Port Hope; W. H. Cooper, Trinity College School; T. Rutherford, W. A. Stratton, J. Montgomery, Max Hamilton, H. Grundy, P. E. S. Cooper and Miles Hamilton, of Peterborough. A band of music will be in attendance each day. The Duke of York Rangers will arrive on the O. & Q. noon train, and the match will commence at 1.30 p.m. Ladies will be admitted free of charge.

A Reform Demonstration.

The Reformers held a demonstration in Toronto on Tuesday in honor of the Hon. O. Mowat. Deputations from various parts of the Province were present, but, judging from the number which the Globe states were present from this locality, its figures are not very reliable. The Mail states that, by actual count, 3,076 persons took part in the procession. Mr. Mowat was presented with addresses, and speeches were made by Mr. Mowat, the Hon. E. Blake, and Mr. Jos. Rymal. In the evening a banquet was held.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Members and friends of the Y.M.C.A. will please bear in mind the annual meeting to be held in the rooms on Thursday evening, 18th instant, at 8 o'clock. A large attendance is requested. The anniversary meeting will be held in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church on 25th inst.

CHOLERA

—IS—

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all remedies, and the natives place the most perfect confidence in it

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:

DEAR SIRS,—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants tell us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

Believe me, dear sir, gratefully and faithfully yours.

J. M. JOHNSON,
Missionary to Swatow, China.

Beware of counterfeits and imitations. Ask for the genuine Perry Davis' Pain-Killer and take no other.

25 CENTS will get you a copy of "OUR JOSHUA AS A REPORTER," and the person who discovers the largest number of typographical errrors in the first three chapters and will forward the list to the undersigned before 1st Oct. will receive an OIL PAINTING size 22x36 in, 5 in. gilt frame, and the two who find the next largest numbers will receive OIL PAINTINGS size 18x24 in. heavily framed. The book is just what every one having anything to do with newspaper work should have. The Scottish American Journal, New York, says of it:—

"'Our Joshua as a Reporter' is a new book by the author of 'Brother Jonathan Sketches.' It is a humorous description of the trials and troubles inherent to a newspaper office, and follows the hero from the time he enters as a novice until he becomes a full fledged reporter. Many of the incidents are intensely amusing, and the work is evidently written by one who is thoroughly acquainted with the practical details of a newspaper office. Address

POLICE COURT.

LARENCY.

THURSDAY, Sept. 18.—Frederick Cook was brought up on a charge of having on the 18th day of August stolen five silver watches, the property of James Renton. The prisoner pleaded not guilty and elected to have the case summarily disposed of by the Magistrate. Mr. Weller appeared for the prosecution and stated that sufficient evidence had not been as yet gathered. The prisoner was remanded for one week.

Robert Welsh was charged with having feloniously stolen and carried away a pair of pants, the property of Wm. Fairweather, on the 16th day of September. The prisoner pleaded not guilty and wished the case to be proceeded with at once. Three of Mr. Fairweather's clerks were sworn. The Magistrate, after hearing all the evidence, decided that Welsh should pay the costs ($4.10) and return the pants at once, otherwise he would be committed to gaol for one month.

A FATAL FIGHT.

One Man Killed and Another Probably Fatally Wounded.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Shortly before midnight information reached County Constable Brooks, of London West, from Nilestown, that during a street fight between a number of drunken men in that village a couple of hours previous one of them, named Rufus Eldridge, a farmer who resided on lot five in the second concession of Westminster, had received fatal injuries from a wound inflicted by a knife in the hands of one of the party. Constable Brooks lost no time in securing the assistance of Constable Allen, and the two proceeded to the village about eight miles east of here on the Hamilton road. On their arrival they found the residents in a great state of excitement, the injured man having died shortly after the row, and all kinds of rumours were afloat as to how the unfortunate man met his heath. From information gleaned from different sources, it was learned that during the evening Eldridge and Lorenzo Stephens, who are half brothers and live on adjoining properties, drove to the village in a waggon for the purpose of purchasing domestic supplies, and put up at McRobert's hotel, where they met five or six men, among them William Butt, Ed. Nelty, and H. Lansett, all of whom were drinking in the tavern, and enjoying themselves after their own peculiar style. While fraternizing among themselves, an argument arose between two of them—their indentity is not definitely ascertained as yet—as to which was the best man, and some angry words were exchanged between the couple. Two or three of the crowd, it is alleged, endeavoured to settle the dispute, and for a short time they succeeded and almost immediately afterwards the party left the bar-room and repaired to the road. Stephens went to the stable for the purpose of bringing the horses to where the waggon was standing, and Eldridge jumped into the vehicle and seated himself until Stephens had hitched the team. While Eldridge was sitting in the waggon, one of the opposing party, supposed to be the man who proclaimed himself the best man some time before, came up alongside the vehicle and dragged Eldridge out of his seat and on to the road. This was followed by an interchange of words and blows, and the friends of the couple gathered around the combatants, no doubt to see fair play. Stephens, it is alleged, endeavoured to keep the assailants away from Eldridge, his relative, but was prevented from so doing by the friends of the other man, who overpowered him. During the altercation Eldridge was stabbed with a knife in the left breast in the region of the heart, and lived only a short time afterwards. Edward Nelty, a laboring man, who was also in the crowd, likewise received severe wounds at the hands of one or more of the parties implicated, and fears were entertained at last accounts that his injuries would prove fatal. The wounded men were removed to the hotels near by and medical assistance summoned, but Eldridge expired before the doctors reached the place. Nelty's wounds were attended to, and during the morning he seemed to be as comfortable as could be expected under the circumstances. He has no fewer than seven stabs upon his body. Lorenzo Stephens, Wm. Batt and Henry Lansett have been arrested. An inquest was opened, and after hearing several witnesses, was adjourned until Friday.

STILL ANOTHER.

Verdant Greek who Falls into the Hands of the Enterprising Gambler.

With the examples which appear from day to day in the American and Canadian papers, it is a wonder that so many first-class "suckers" can be caught by the wily bunco men. In the United States papers the verdant youth who gets caught is usually the Canadian, but nine out of every ten of the victims which fall into the hands of the sharpers in Montreal are from the New England States, with a large per centage from the sharp city, Chicago, where, it is said, the children are born cutting their eye teeth. On Friday last a gentle and gushing youth arrived in this city from Roxbury, Mass., and put up at a good hotel in the city. He commenced to go around the city and in the billiard parlor of one of the leading saloons he met a nice fellow, who, seeing he was a stranger, asked him to play a game of pool. Verdant Green caught on and the pair played "pool for the drinks," till his new acquaintance lost four or five games. They became good friends and parted that night on the understanding that they should meet on Notre Dame street next day. It was in the afternoon as fate drew them together again, and the "gam.," who was playing the stranger, invited him to take a drink. They went into a saloon not far from the City Hall, where they had a liquor, and in a room off the bar-room two men were seated playing an innocent game of cribbage. An invitation from the gambler to join the pair was accepted by the Yankee, and the former going up apologized for disturbing the game, and asked permission to chip in, which was given with charming courtesy by the two "strangers," who told the pair their names. After two or three games of euchre one of the pair suggested a game of draw poker and the party was arranged, verdant green and his companion on opposite sides of the table. Ten cent ante was proposed as an innocent game and all took cards. Verdant green got a good two pair with his draw and "bucked" against his hand neighbor, the two others going out on a bluff of $1 from the Yankee. Raising commenced and there was $30 in the pool when the hands were called, and gambler No. 2 scooped in the pile. The same old story with variations was played on the unsuspecting stranger and when he rose to quit the table he was $213 out. He then began to suspect his "friend" and the two cleared out, and Verdant green went to police headquarters to complain to Detective Naegele, who took the case in hand and who has probably now pulled the gambler, who, from his description, is well known, unless that worthy has skipped to seek fresh fields and pastures new, or to prosecute his search for Yankees nearer home.—Montreal Post.

A Marine Earthquake.

PENSACOLA, Sept. 17.—The brig Charles Dennis, from Maine, reports that she experienced a marine earthquake off the coast of Virginia on Aug. 15. The appearance of the sky denoted a hurricane and the brig was put under short sail. The wind veered to every point of the compass and then lulled. Suddenly the roar of the sea was deeper than the loudest thunder that was heard. It boiled like a pot, heaping up great seas that tossed the brig like an egg-shell. The earthquake must have had its centre some four or five hundred miles east of Hatteras.

GORDON HEARD FROM.

CAIRO, Sept. 17.—A letter has been received from Gen. Gordon, in which he states that early in September he will submit a scheme for the pacification of the Soudan, and warns the Government that if it is rejected the consequence will be serious and that the Government will be answerable for the disasters, which he predicts will follow its rejection.

BREACH OF NEUTRALITY.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Besides the death of Lieut. Hubbard, of H. M. S. Zephyr, shot by Chinese at Foo Chow, another irritating occurrence is reported. Some coal and other supplies for the English gunboat off Sharppeak, were stopped by the native authorities. An explanation of this apparent breach of neutrality will be demanded.

DESPERATE FIGHTING.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—A despatch just received from Foo Chow says that the French fleet suddenly appeared at the mouth of the Min river this morning, and after landing 2,000 marines again proceeded to demolish the fortifications at Kingsai Pass which had been repaired since the recent bombardment. The landing party attacked the Chinese camps in the vicinity, and after desperate fighting the Chinese were defeated with great loss. The French were largely outnumbered, but the shells from the French men-of-war did such effective execution that the Chinese were compelled to abandon their works, and being dismayed at the onslaught of the land forces, retreated up the river in confusion. It is expected that the land forces will follow up their victory and entirely rid the river Min of Chinese soldiers from its mouth to the arsenal, so as to prevent in the future such mistakes of the Chinese as the killing of Lieut. Hubbard, of the British war ship Zephyr.

THE CAMEL CORPS.

CAIRO, Sept. 17.—General Wolseley's men are volunteering eagerly for the camel corps. More than the required number have offered themselves. The steamer Massfkir has successfully passed the second cataract of the Nile.

A FOUR HOURS' FIGHT.

SUAKIM, Sept. 17.—Two thousand men of the friendly Amarar tribe yesterday attacked the Haddendowas, and after an engagement of four hours defeated them, killing seventy and capturing many arms and camels. The Amararas had thirty killed and wounded.

CHOLERA IN SPAIN.

MADRID, Sept. 17.—Fifty-two fresh cases of cholera and 25 deaths are reported in Spain during the past 24 hours.

THE THREE EMPERORS.

SKIERNIWICE, Sept. 17.—The police were advised from Vienna that dynamite would be found secreted in the coal carried by the locomotives and they made a careful examination of the coal supplies, but discovered nothing of a suspicious nature. As a further precaution the officers of the railway trains were required to take an oath of allegience to the Czar before entering on their duties. All railway viaducts over which any of the Imperial passengers were to pass were carefully examined. The soil was cleared away to the depth of three feet around the supports to make sure that no dynamite had been lodged there. The Premiers of the three Emperors held a three hours' conference yesterday. The Emperor William left Skierniwice last night; the Austrian Emperor departs to-day.

A LEAGUE MEETING.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Wm. Redmond, speaking at a league meeting in Dublin yesterday, remarked that if parliamentary methods failed to solve the Irish problem, as surely as God made the earth the people would try other methods. The utterance evoked great enthusiasm.

THE SCOURGE AT NAPLES.

NAPLES, Sept. 17.—There is a marked decrease in the number of cases of cholera and deaths. Great quantities of sulphur are still burning to purify the atmosphere. The Hawaiian Prince died of cholera in Naples today.

THE GREAT ARMIES.

VIENNA, Sept. 17.—The Vienna Press referring to the possibility of a particle reduction of the great standing armies as the result of the conference of three Emperors, declares nothing would be more welcome to Austria.

A Bank Entered.

...ars broke into the Standard Bank at Cannington on Monday and made a bold effort to rob the vault, and departed without accomplishing their purpose. It was a narrow escape for the bank. Exactly how the burglars got into the building is not quite apparent. They seem to have had duplicate keys of the main entrance. The doors next morning were closed and everything about the premises with the exception of the vault was discovered to be in precisely the condition in which in which it was left on the night previous. A hole was made in the vault door large enough to admit a man's hand and arm, by means of which the withdrawing of the bolt was an easy matter. The inner door was opened in the same way. Having thus reached the safe they proceeded to make there way to the valuable contents therein. They destroyed the combination and began drilling the door. When in a fair way to get at the wealth beyond, for some reason not known they suddenly quit work and decamped, leaving their kit of tools behind. The character of these implements show that the workers were no green hands at the business. They were probably disturbed by some movement of the two clerks, who slept in blissful ignorance of what was going on, in the room immediately over the vault. Whatever the cause, the workers left the bank empty-handed and lost their tools for their pains.

A Fire at Penetang.

PENETANGUISHENE, Sept. 17.—A large fire started at 11 o'clock in the Enterprise block, and has burnt that block and the Arcade block. The Canada House is on fire, but will probably be saved. The parties burned out are James Firth, Geo. Harwood, A. C. Osborne, P. Lambert, F. J. Squire, W. F. H. Thompson, and G. H. Wright.

Daily Evening Review

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1884.

We learn from the Toronto Globe that Dr. Dowling has been "unseated on a technicality." This appears to be the latest Reform synonym for corrupting electors, if the corruption is practiced by a Reformer.

"Ontario does not raise its surplus by taxation but by husbanding its resources."—Trenton Courier.

Ontario, under its present rulers, does not "husband its resources," but lives on its capital—a system that must lead to direct taxation.

The Belleville Ontario refers to Justice O'Connor as a "nobody," and the Ottawa Free Press calls him a "politician of prominence." It is no wonder that the managers of Mowat's circus at Toronto sent out articles to the Reform press in the country, so as to be certain that they would not contradict each other.

The London Advertiser expresses a fear that Sir David Macpherson will be appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario "to put Mr. Mowat out" before a majority of the members are against him. The Advertiser need not be afraid of that. That sort of tyranny is a Reform specialty, and is only carried out by Reform Lieutenant-Governors, as was the case in Quebec.

The London Advertiser tries hard always to refer to its contemporaries as "esteemed contemporaries," but sometimes its natural vulgarity will force its way through this thin mask of culture, as it did the other day when the Tiser, referring to a contemporary, bawled out in a small cap heading, "He's an ass!" But the paper that confesses that it "esteems" a liar may love an ass. A fellow feeling, etc.

Mr. Blake is reported as speaking at the recent banquet in Toronto to Mr. Mowat, of thirteen men at Ottawa disallowing what provincial legislation they pleased. Mr. Blake might leave such clap-trap to his smaller and less scrupulous organ. When he was one of 15 or 14 or 13 men at Ottawa, Mr. Blake had no objection to their disallowing provincial legislation, and indeed he was personally responsible for much of such disallowance.

The leading Reform journal thinks that the last Dominion loan was placed at too low a figure, because with that growth of our credit which accompanies Conservative administration it is now quoted at an advanced price. While dealing with such matters, will the Globe kindly inform us as to the details of the placing of the loan by which Mr. Mowat is starting a public debt for Ontario, and let us know what "shave" we have to give to float our Provincial paper?

WHO IS RIGHT?

We are not in the habit of referring to Mr. Mowat as a "Christian statesman," lest the folly of some should lead them to imagine that we were sneering at religion. But in the Globe, which is very fond of bringing this charge against Conservative journals that quote this Pharisaic description, we find in Tuesday's issue some verses addressed to the Hon. O. Mowat, with the view of keeping up the artificial "boom," in which the Attorney-General is mentioned as "the Christian statesman."

We beg to ask whether it is the act of a "Christian statesman" to place a fraudulent treasurer on the Bench, or to justify his maintenance there in spite of his having misappropriated to his own use moneys entrusted to him, as Mr. Mowat did in the case of S. S. Peck?

We beg to ask whether it is the act of a Christian statesman to pass an act to relieve a corrupt follower from the penalties due to his corruption, and to reverse a judicial decision by legislation in order thus to reward electoral impurity, as Mr. Mowat did in the case of Dr. Dowling?

We beg to ask is it the act of a Christian statesman to employ men to induce others to pay or promise them bribes, in order to profit by a political opponent's wrong-doing, as Mr. Mowat did in the case of Informers McKim, Dowling and others?.

If these questions are answered we may have some others to ask, but they will not be met squarely, for even Mr. Mowat's own followers are ashamed of his actions in these respects, and only venture to hint with bated breath that he was led astray by bad companions.

GLOBE MORALITY.

Mr. Mowat's chief organ has some remarks on the South Renfrew election, which would be comic if they did not evince such depraved notions. We are told that Dr. Dowling is eligible for re-election because the law has been so changed since his first election as to render necessary the concurrence of two judges for disqualification. This is the jaunty way in which a leading Reform journal alludes to the iniquitous legislation by which Mr. Mowat sought to relieve Dr. Dowling from the penalties of his corruption, when brought home to him by our law and our judges.

We are also told that the judges have become witnesses to the purity of Dr. Dowling's contests. Two judges found that in his first contest his regard for purity did not prevent him from practicing corrupt acts, which our law holds to disqualify a candidate. Two judges found that in his second contest the Reform party had such a regard for purity as to run a candidate who was disqualified for corruption. An ex-judge and present Attorney General showed his regard for purity by passing a law to whitewash this corrupt man and render of no effect the decision of a court of law.

We are also told that Dowling, McKim and Balfour committed "self-sacrifice" in the matter of the bribery conspiracy. They did sacrifice themselves—sacrificed their honour, if they had any, by becoming informers and decoys, by running after men to induce them to commit bribery, and then running to their employers, Mr. Mowat and his colleagues, for their pay for this dirty work.

ELECTORAL INEQUALITIES.

It was pointed out by Mr. Blake the other day that out of thirty seats in Eastern Ontario only three are occupied by Reformers, although in these thirty constituencies the number of votes cast was sixty-five thousand. He showed that if the Reformers were represented in proportion to the number of votes they received, the seats would be divided between fourteen Reformers and sixteen Conservatives. From this fact Mr. Blake argues that the present system of carrying on elections is imperfect. But the truth is that all systems are imperfect. If the counties were grouped as has been proposed, a single county might cast a larger number of Conservative votes, or Reform votes, as the case may be, than the combined majorities in all the other counties in the same group. The "hived" Grit counties, for instance, would furnish a majority large enough to swamp the majorities in a dozen ordinary ridings. Where the minority clause is adopted, the minority has a chance of success in a general election by combining on a third candidate, but a by-election in the riding upsets the whole arrangement. In regard to the present system of returning representatives, it is claimed by a Conservative journal that an exact division of members on the basis of the popular vote in Ontario in 1883 would have given the Conservative Opposition five members more that they obtained, and possibly have caused the downfall of the Mowat Administration. The country could not be parcelled off by arbitrary lines, according to numbers, without regard to the convenience of the people in towns and cities; and if the cumulative system were adopted, by which each elector would vote for half-a-dozen members instead of for the member in his own riding, the country would be held more tightly in the grasp of the party than ever. The reign of the campaign ticket would be inaugurated, the names on the ticket being all arranged by the party leader.—Toronto Telegram (Indep.).

THE CANADIAN CONTINGENT.

Mr. Archibald Campbell, one of the prothonotaries in the Superior Court, Quebec, writes as follows to the Chronicle regarding a statement made by a citizen to one of our reporters that immense mortality took place among the French Canadians who flocked to Australia during the gold fever and who feared a similar result for the Egyptian contingent:—

I was in Australia during the height of the gold fever and from the position I there occupied—first, as Assistant Gold Commissioner and then as Police Magistrate, and known as a Canadian naturally attached to my countrymen, I was in daily communication with all or nearly all Canadians in the Ovens gold fields where I was stationed, and which were the hottest of the gold fields. There I met Canadians from near Sarnia in Western Canada, from the Ottawa, the St. Maurice, Yamaska, Montreal, Trois Pistoles and elsewhere. I crossed over the Murray River with a Canadian from Victoria into New South Wales, and I must say that I found their constitutions as capable of withstanding the effects of the climate there as those of the strongest Europeans or Asiatics. There I met with many Indian officers who had served on many a battlefield in the hottest parts of Hindostan, who told me that the heat of India was no greater than that of the Ovens district. Now we know that the heat of Egypt is no greater than that of India. I may add that I have been with Canadians in Brazil, within the tropics, in the hottest season of the year, in December and January, and they appeared to me to be as capable as any to go about their daily duties. The fact is, nurtured in a healthy clime, of a hardy race, their constitutions being sound, they can endure more than any other race. Lord Wolseley with his large experience of the physical capacity of men has seen this, and in acknowledgment of their pluck and endurance in the Red River expedition and desirous of having the aid of men on whom he can depend to relieve the noble Gordon, has called Canadians to the fore. Wolseley knows what he is about, he is fond of the Canadians, and he is not the man to risk their lives in a climate unsuited to their constitutions. By all means, then, I would urge upon the friends of our hardy raftsmen not to dissuade them from responding to the call a grateful companion in arms has given them, and to those that go to Egypt, though it may not be, in the words of the great Napoleon, "that from the summit of the Pyramids forty centuries contemplate your actions," certain it is that your admiring countrymen will, all Europe will, and your friends and dear ones at home, will pray for the success of your expedition and give you a triumphant welcome on your return. Lieut.-Col. Vohl, Chief of the Quebec Police Force, was in Australia at the same time I was, and I think will bear same testimony I do as to the stamina there of our Canadian countryman.

In Love with the North-West.

Rat Portage, Sept. 17.—The Members of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, returned here from the Rockies yesterday. They one and all are in love with the North-west, and predict a glorious future for the country. Its resources were magnificent, and only wanted to be laid before the English people, to be filled up with substantial immigrants.

AN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY.

Laying the Corner Stone of a New Church at Millbrook—A Handsome Edifice.

Millbrook, Sept. 16.—The corner-stone of the new church of St. Thomas was laid here today with proper religious services by Colonel Williams, M.P., in the presence of a large and enthusiastic assemblage. The weather, which had not been promising in the morning, was all that could be wished for at the time of the ceremony. In addition to Col. Williams, there were present from a distance Rev. Messrs. Bradshaw, of Ashburnham, Cooper, of Cambray, Chafer, of Perrytown, Judge Benson, of Port Hope, and others, while all parts of the surrounding neighborhood were well represented. The rector and Rev. Messrs. Cooper, Bradshaw, and W. C. Allen took part in the impressive devotional services. Interesting addresses were delivered by Colonel Williams, Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, Judge Benson, and the rector, and the whole proceedings was marked by an earnest Christian spirit of hopefullness and congratulation. The worthy rector received on all hands the warmest praise for the zeal and energy which he had shown in his parochial work, he having already erected five fine churches and a handsome and commodious school-house in his parish during his incumbency. The Christian good will existing in the parish on the part of the catholic Church was shown by the presence of representative men belonging to the other Protestant churches.

The new church of St. Thomas will be a handsome white brick structure, faced with cut stone, built in a correct ecclesiastical style. It will cost about $10,000, and will seat about 500 persons. The architect is Mr. Belcher, of Peterborough, and the contractor Mr. Alford of the same place.

TESTIFIES.

Popularity at home is not always the best test of merit, but we point proudly to the fact that no other medicine has won for itself such universal approbation in its own city, state, and country, and among all people, as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—

RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your Sarsaparilla, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. Harris."

River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

SALT RHEUM. George Andrews, overseer in the Lowell Carpet Corporation, was for over twenty years before his removal to Lowell afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form. Its ulcerations actually covered more than half the surface of his body and limbs. He was entirely cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. See certificate in Ayer's Almanac for 1883.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

PROTECTION AND COTTON

A number of New England cotton mills have shut down lately because the goods they made could not be sold except at a loss. But it won't do to say that protection is to blame. For a cable despatch dated London, Sept. 13, says: "The cotton industry in Lancashire is suffering the severest depression which has overtaken it for many years. Mills are working short time, and only four a week in general, and many mills are closed altogether. In Rosendale district thirty mills have closed down." To which we may add that, with a volume of over-production as now exists in both England and the States, every cotton mill in Canada would most assuredly be shut down were we to open our ports. It is only through such protection as we have that there are any cotton looms and spindles kept going at all. And all the time the cheapness of cotton cloth to the consumer is perfectly phenomenal.—Toronto World (Indep. Ref.).

AN INTERCEPTED VISIT.

It will be a subject for deep regret that Sir David Macpherson, Minister of the Interior, has been prevented from paying his intended visit to the Northwest. The disappointment would be an aggravating one under any circumstances, but intensified by the knowledge that his plans were disarranged by the vindictive partisanship of the managers of the Ontario bribery case, who caused Sir David to be subpœnaed with no other apparent object than to annoy him.—Winnipeg Times.

MR. BLAKE IGNORED.

Some distance behind Mr. Mowat came Hon. Edward Blake's carriage. It passed along amid dead silence. Throughout the entire march not a cheer was given him, and leading Liberals looked surprised and apparently felt that this absence of recognition of the supposed leader of the party was significant.—Toronto News (Indep.)

THE CZAR'S COMFORT.

The Czar of Russia is bad enough, but he has an able and agreeable partner with whom to divide his honors.—Kingston News.

WHAT THEY SHOULD THINK.

The British Association should come to the conclusion that Canada is young, but no longer a child, that it is enlightened, if it is not learned, that it is patriotic without being abject, that it is believing without being fanatic, and that it is loyal without being servile.—La Minerve.

THE EFFECT OF DISTANCE.

Strange how slight a ripple passes over the consciousness of the ordinary reader when he hears that seventy thousand Chinamen have been engulfed in a deluge. It has probably excited more remark to learn that there have been some grains of snow in Nova Scotia.—Montreal Witness.

TO THE MOWAT YOUNG MEN.

But just here, we would like to call the attention of the young men who are so anxious to honor Mr. Mowat to one fact, namely, that while most of you are permitted to shout you are not allowed to vote. Isn't it about time Mr. Mowat gave you the franchise? If you are sufficiently intelligent to comprehend the details of the boundary award, you are certainly intelligent enough to be entrusted with the ballot. We believe in giving the ballot to the young men of the country. The politicians, however, content themselves with offering taffy in lieu thereof.—St. Catharines Journal.

HE WAS TOO ANXIOUS.

An exchange says of Mr. Mowat that "his measures always bear the impress of mature consideration." The judges do no seem to have thought so of his measures for the relief of Dowling.—Toronto Mail.

Hair-Brushing and Infection.

Any traveller in England has of course observed the sign, "Hair-brushing by machinery," in London and elsewhere. A revolving brush, propelled by a foot-treadle or other motive power, is employed for the purpose. A recent writer in the London Times says:—"Speaking to a lady a few days ago on the subject of an outbreak of scarlatina in our neighbood, she mentioned casually that last year a friend living in London had told her, that finding her boys, on recovering from a severe attack of scarlatina, suffered much from scurfiness of their heads, she took them to ———'s (mentioning one of the leading West-end hairdressers), and 'had a good brush-out with the machine brush.' Could one conceive a more effective cause of widespread infection? And it is quite possible that the above is far from being a solitary instance. No doubt other mothers of the wealthier classes find the revolving brush a most efficient cleaner-out of scurf after scarlatina, and patronize it accordingly."

Mrs. Garfield and the Crank.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 16.—Shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon a well dressed man, of about sixty years, with the bearing of a southerner, was observed to alight from a hack on Prospect street, near the ferry, and proceed eastward to No 948, the residence of Mrs. James A. Garfield. Advancing to the doorway he rang the bell when the porter responded. The stranger enquired for a Miss Piper. Being informed no such person lived in the house he turned away, but did not leave the premises. About seven o'clock in the evening he was noticed prowling about the lawn carrying in his hand a thirty-eight calibre revolver. Mrs. Garfield immediately communicated with the police and an officer was sent to arrest him. He was captured without difficulty and taken to the fourth precinct station, where he refused to divulge his identity or purpose and was locked up. Nothing was found on his person to afford any clue to his name. He is believed to have been a crank bent upon shooting the widow of the late President.

The Suicide at the Falls.

BUFFALO, Sept. 16.—The body of a man found at Youngstown, opposite Queenstown, Ont., was undoubtedly that of Francis F. Taylor, of New York, who threw himself over the falls on Sept. 8th. The body was nude, but hanging to the ankles were a pair of cotton drawers and dark pants. One shoe, nearly new, lined on the inside with silk braid, also remained. The collar was still on, and retained two gold studs, one of them bearing the initials "F. F. T., Oct. 29, '69." The scull was badly fractured, otherwise the body remains perfect. The remains were buried on the bank of the river, and the articles mentioned retained by the coroner.

Supposed Wreck of a Steamship.

QUEBEC, Sept. 16.—Captain Hazleton, of the barque Hollinside, from London, July 26th, states that on July 31st, while off Portland, Great Britian, after a fog, they saw a large number of live cattle swimming in the sea, also a quantity of wreckage floating. They picked up a life-boat with a gold streak running round the rim, marked "Britannia, of Newcastle," on the stern. She was cut down on the port side as if by a recent collision. He sent out a boat in search, but could find no trace of any living person. The captain believes it to have been a steamship that was wrecked but a short time, as the cattle seemed to be quite lively.

THE MAN IN THE MOON.

Some Curious Notions—Theories Advanced by the Esquimaux of Labrador.

By the Hurons the moon is called the creator of the earth and the grandmother of the sun; in the myths of the Ottawas it is an old woman with a pleasant white face—the sister of the day star. The Chiquitos call the moon their mother, and the Navajos made it a rider on a mule. Where the planets are worshipped, preference in honors is generally accorded to the brighter and most conspicuous star of the day. But the Botucudos of Brazil give the higher place to the moon and derive most of the phenomena of nature from it, and in Central America and Hayti are also people who hold the moon in no less honor. Curiously, these people find their counterparts among the tribes of Western, Southern and Central Africa, who rejoice with dancing and feasts at each appearance of the new moon, and expect an improvement of their condition from its beneficent influence; and they are not so far removed from the superstitucous women of civilized Europe and America who wait for the increase of the moon to change to, to cut their hair, to be married, and to baptise their children. A belief existed among the ancient Mexicans and Peruvians, the Natchez of the Mississippi and the Appalachians of Florida, that the sun was the radiant abode of dead chiefs and braves. To the Esquimaux of Labrador belongs the honor of having discovered that the moon was the paradise for the good while the wicked were consigned to a hole in the earth; although some of the South Americans Indians and the Polynesians of Tokelau may be nearly abreast of them in the competition.—Popular Science Monthly.

Betrayed by a Tooth.

Guibal, the assassin, has been convicted at Perpignan of the murder of a girl named Marie Cerbere. The evidence which proved him to be her murderer was very curious. Guibal had been suspected of having killed the girl, as she had never been seen since one day she was known to have been in his company. But he strenuously denied all knowledge of her, and the case was abandoned for want of proof, when a girl came forward who had been Marie's intimate friend. "Search among the possessions of the accused," she said, "and see if you can find among them a gold ring set with a woman's tooth instead of a stone. The tooth is mine—here is the space from which it was taken—and I had it set and gave it to Marie Cesbere as a token of friendship." The ring was found among a board of trinkets belonging to Guibal, and on hearing of its discovery he at once confessed.

Shot by His Son.

An inquest having been held on the death of the man who was reported to have been shot near Ormstown, Quebec, by rowdies, it was discovered that he was shot by his son, while the son was endeavouring to keep back the rowdies who had attacked the house. The jury after deliberation returned a verdict that the said Louis Rouleau was shot by his son, Narcisse Rouleau, on the 13th day of September, while he, Narcisse Rouleau, was in the act of defending the property of his father, then and there unlawfully attacked by Narcisse Berthiaume, Richard Travers, Thomas Lavery and James McCracken, all parties now in custody and who are responsible for the death of Louis Rouleau.

The International Cricket Match.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—The international cricket match has been won by the Canadian team after a brilliant match in which good points of play were displayed on both sides. NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Rosa Sickles, daughter of George C. Sickles, one of the wealthiest men in New Rochelle, is one of the parties to an elopement sensation just now agitating that town. The father of the young lady concluded to forgive the couple. Miss Sickles is a step-sister of General Daniel E. Sickles.

Daily Evening Review

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1884

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Temperance Lecture.

Mr. Thos. McMurray will deliver a lecture on behalf of the "Christian Temperance Society" in the Baptist Church, Peterborough, on Monday evening at eight o'clock.

Result of Advertising.

On Tuesday a citizen caused a small advertisement to be inserted in the DAILY EVENING REVIEW, setting forth the loss of a child's shoe. The paper appeared about five o'clock, and at six o'clock, or about one hour after publication, the advertiser was in possession of the lost article. A word to the wise, etc.

Honoring the Visiting Team.

A pic-nic assembly will be held in the Town Hall, Ashburnham, this evening in honor of the Duke of York's Rangers cricket team. Representatives of the cricket element in the surrounding towns and villages are expected to be present, and doubtless this will be "the event of the season" in cricket circles.

Not Satisfied.

At the football match, Town vs. County, which took place on the Ashburnham grounds on Saturday afternoon, the County men came out a considerable number of points ahead. The Town boys are not satisfied with the result and therefore another match will be played at the same place at 4.30, next Saturday afternoon. No admittance fee will be charged and doubtless the match will be watched with keen interest by large numbers.

An Attractive Front.

Mr. Joseph Mills has had the plate glass front of his store replaced by a very handsome six light window. Although the plate glass was broken on Tuesday night, yet, by the promptness of the workmen engaged, on Wednesday night the front presented a business like appearance. The ancient six light window looks quite attractive among all its more modern brethren, the plate glass fronts. The frame of the window has been adorned by the brush of Mr. J. W. Watson.

That Race.

During the past week it has been found impossible to "get water" for the Mercer-Strickland single scull race. For the past few day a constant breeze has been stiffly blowing, and consequently the water is in an unfit condition. This afternoon the wind has abated somewhat, and the race will probably take place on Chemong Lake at about 6 o'clock. If the water is too rough this evening the oarsmen will remain at the lake to-night and row the race early in the morning.

Lacrosse at Ottawa.

We understand that the Peterborough Lacrosse Club will play a return match with the Mets. at Ottawa, on Thursday, Sept. 25th. They will leave Peterborough on Wednesday evening. It is expected that special rates for the club and all who wish to accompany them will be arranged for. This will be a splendid opportunity not only to witness a fine exhibition of lacrosse, but also to visit the Provincial Exhibition in Ottawa. The club—especially the first twelve—are requested to meet at the Little Windsor on Friday evening, when the final arrangements for the trip will be completed.

Agitation but no Destruction.

On Wednesday evening several hotel hacks and 'busses were standing at the Ontario and Quebec station. Presently the train came in and the porters left their rigs to call out for their respective houses. Another 'buss came up at a rapid pace, and in hurrying to get into position the wheels of the 'buss touched a horse attached to Mr. A. P. Morgan's hack, and in consequence of no person being on hand to check them, they started up George street on a full gallop. The way was clear until they reached Messrs. T. Dolan & Co.'s dry goods store. Here two ladies sat in a buggy. On the back came, and in passing the buggy the wheels of each vehicle barely touched. The buggy was turned around a little but no one was hurt. The horses were turned up Hunter street, and when they reached Water street an attempt was made to catch them. They eluded all catching, turned down Water street, and at Simcoe street again ran towards George street. Mr. Wm. Rothwell sped out from Messrs. Ormond & Walsh's drug store and succeeded in bringing the animals to a standstill. No damage was done to either horses or rigs.

If you want

They have Arrived.

The Duke of York's Rangers cricket team arrived in town this forenoon. This afternoon, as we go to press, the two day's match has commenced between the above team and Peterborough and district.

Street Repairs.

A correspondent writes to the REVIEW wanting to know why the Street and Bridge Committee do not set about getting Charlotte street, from Park to the railway track, watertabled.

Whistle-Wing.

The above steamer will discontinue her regular excursion trips, but will carry any passengers the days she may be going up and down. To find the days she will leave here telephone the office at Calcutt's Brewery. She will be employed in bringing up wood for sale.

The Golden Lion.

Gent's Furnishing's and tailoring a specialty at the Golden Lion. A choice lot of Scotch Tweed Suitings, Pantings, and Overcoatings, &c., to choose from. Also Mantle and Dress Making on the premises, with a large assortment of new patterned Cloaking, Ulstering and Mantling, etc., direct importation.

Personal.

Mr. A. J. Brazier, inspector of the Northern and Caledonian Fire Insurance Companies, was in town yesterday.

Mr. A. Kelly, of the London branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, will relieve Mr. G. A. Smith, teller of the Peterborough branch, for a few days.

An Evening on the Lawn.

A lawn social will be held this evening at the residence of Mrs. Gilmour under the auspices of the ladies of the Baptist Church. The grounds will be beautifully illuminated, and the Fire Brigade Band will furnish music in their well known good style. The gates will open at 7 o'clock and a small admission fee will be charged. No doubt a large number of people will attend.

The Fourth Tournament.

The fourth grand lacrosse tournament for the Calcutt Brewery Cup will be held on Tuesday, the 30th of September, on the Ashburnham grounds. The young Peterboroughs have won the cup once, and the Cobourgs have won it twice. If the Cobourg team wins it this time it will become their property, so wake up boys. Several clubs have signified their intention of entering for this tournament, and it will be an interesting day for those concerned in promoting our national game. All entries must be made before the 27th of September. See posters.

If you want
A Nobby Pair of Pants
go to McNEIL'S.

Steam Heating.

Among the symptoms of the progress that is being continuously made in Peterborough, is the flourishing business that has been established by Mr. James McAndrews, on Simcoe street. The business comprises plumbing in all its branches, but Mr. McAndrews makes a specialty of heating by steam or water on the latest improved system. Among other important contracts that he has now on hand is the steam heating of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, the steam heating of Messrs. Hall & Innes' business block on Simcoe street, and the heating of the residences of Mrs. R. Nicholls, Mrs. Scott, and Mr. Richard Hall. By this method of heating great comfort is ensured, combined with economy and ease of management. Mr. McAndrews is therefore not likely to suffer from lack of business.

MR. SHEEHY EXPLAINS.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—In reference to the letter of Mr. Willan, which recently appeared in the REVIEW, I beg to make an explanation. In justice to Mr. Byers I may state that I overheard a conversation between Mr. Byers and another gentleman, in which the former mentioned the fact that he had heard that a crowd from Millbrook was going to the festival for the avowed purpose of taking the lacrosse cup home with them. The mere fact of Mr. Byers mentioning the matter did not in the least deter a Peterborough team from going down and competing in the match. The true reason why one did not go down was because the Peterboroughs had at the time two matches on, with the Ottawas and Cobourgs, which was of far more importance to them than the match at Centreville.

I remain,
Yours, etc.,
JAMES SHEEHY,
Peterborough, Sept. 17th, 1884.

BAD SIDEWALKS.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Kindly allow me a small space in your valuable paper for the purpose of drawing the attention of the Street Inspector to the state of the sidewalk on Stewart street, from Charlotte to Sherbrooke street, which is indeed badly in need of repair. From time to time there has been a new plank put down, but I think it would be better this time if they could manage to give us a new sidewalk. To-day, at noon, two young ladies who had occasion to pass along that street, were thrown violently to the ground, by the springing up of a loose plank, and narrowly escaped injury.

Yours, &c.,
STEWART STREET.
Peterborough, Sept. 18th, 1884.

POLICE COURT.

OBTAINING GOODS UNDER FALSE PRETENSES.

FRIDAY, Sept. 19.—Robert Welsh was charged with having obtained, under false pretenses, on the 16th of September, a pair of boots from the store of A. C. McConnell. The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and wished the Magistrate to dispose of the case. From the evidence taken it appeared that about four weeks ago the prisoner had left his order for a pair of boots at Mr. McConnell's store, and while Mr. McConnell was away from home he had gone to the store and represented to the foreman of the shop that he had arranged with Mr. McConnell for the boots. The boots were given him, which Mr. McConnell found, to his surprise, when he arrived home yesterday. The Magistrate reserved judgment for three hours to allow the prisoner to pay costs and pay for the boots.

ASSAULT.

James Reardon was charged with having assaulted his sister, Mrs. McAuliffe, on the 18th September. The Magistrate said the prisoner was well known to the Court. He had been before it eight times. Penalty: three months in gaol at hard labor.

George Madens and Norman Madens, 9 and 7 years of age respectively, were charged with having assaulted Johnnie Garrety on the 5th September, with intent to do grevious bodily harm. The boys all live at Bridgenorth. Mr. W. H. Moore appeared for the prisoners. Several witnesses were examined, and Dr. Kincaid testified that he had examined Johnnie Garrety and found him suffering from traumatic erysipelas.

The MAGISTRATE said that it was a common school boy fight, out of which grew serious results. He could not fine the boys, nor would he send them to gaol. He warned the boys not to appear again in Court, or he would deal severely with them. He admonished them to treat the other boys in a friendly way and then discharged them.

The Annual Business Meeting—Reception of Reports and Election of Officers.

The annual business meeting of the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association was held on Thursday evening in their rooms. The meeting was for the purpose of hearing reports of the last year's work, the election of new officers, etc. In the absence of the President, Dr. Fife, one of the Vice-Presidents, Mr. W. J. Minore, took the chair. The meeting was opened with devotional exercises, after which the reports of the various committees were read. Mr. I. Richardson read the report of the Devotional Committe, of which he is chairman. It gave particulars of the religious meetings held by the Association during the year, and was encouraging in tone. The report of the Invitation and Reception Committee was read by its chairman, Mr. A. W. Jones. The work of this committee is to distribute printed invitations to the meetings, and to welcome young men coming into the rooms. The Secretary reported verbally for the Lecture and Entertainment Committee, that they had not done as much as they would have liked, on account of the smallness of their rooms. Two social meetings, one lecture, and an art exhibition was the record of work done. The report of the Finance Committee and the Treasurer's statement were given. Owing to the committee not having had sufficient time to devote to this work, the Association is in arrears to the extent of $178.64. The General Secretary, Mr. G. E. Williams, then read his first annual report, showing that considerable progress had been made in the work. It showed a large increase in membership and number of workers, and dwelt on the religious meetings and Bible classes, temperance work, boys' work, secular agencies, and other means used by the Association. It also contained thanks to all who had in any degree helped the Association. All these reports were duly adopted. Messrs. Gardner, Collins, Jones, Richardson and Rossiter spoke in commendation of the Secretary's work, and urged the members to increased effort.

A change was made in the constitution, whereby the Executive Committee numbers were increased to fifteen, instead of ten, as formerly. The election of officers and committee for the ensuing year was then proceeded with, the following being the result:—

PRESIDENT—J. Frith Jeffers, M. A.
VICE-PRESIDENTS—D. B. Gardner, Dr. Fife.
TREASURER—J. C. Turnbull.
GENERAL SECRETARY—Geo. E. Williams.
COMMITTEE—G. M. Roger, I. Richardson, M. Cummings, Sheriff Hall, H. Rossiter, W. W. Johnson, A. W. Jones, W. A. Smith, John S. Hall, Dr. Clarke.

Messrs. J. D. Collins and J. W. Bennett were elected auditors. The meeting was closed with devotional exercises.

The public are cordially invited. Admission 15 cents, children 10c.

"The Girl I Left Behind Me."

It is related an effecting scene took place just before the departure of the "Ocean King" from Quebec for Egypt. It seems that one of the Canadian contigent had enlisted without the knowledge of his wife. On learning the startling fact, almost at the last moment, the poor woman went in haste on board the steamer and implored her fugitive spouse to return home with her, but he was inflexible to all her entreaties, proceeding with the expedition, while she had to be removed in a state of great excitement from the vessel as it moved out of the harbor. In another instance a poor girl had followed her lover, it said, all the way from Manitoba. She tried hard to induce Chief of the River Police to put her on board with the Governor-General's party, only to say "good-by," but he would not, though he allowed her to write and send a farewell letter.

The Canadian Voyageurs.

The "Ocean King," with the Canadian contingent en route for Egypt, arrived off Sidney on Thursday morning before daybreak. Owing to the fog they had to wait some time before being able to get into the harbour. There has been a great deal of sickness on board, and the gallant voyageurs are suffering the first tortures of a sea voyage, many of them not being at sea before. The vessel will coal at Sidney, and, ere this meets the reader's eye, have proceeded on her passage to the east.

The Grand Trunk.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders was held to-day in the offices of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, when the dividends on the first preference shares was declared in full. On the second preference shares the dividend was passed, only £500 remaining after that on the first was met. The net loss on the half rearly receipts is £49,000. The Grand Trunk stocks are falling in consequence of the showing made.—Globe.

Lunatic Asylums.

Owing to the number of cases which have been recently brought to light of sane persons being confined in lunatic asylums in the Province of Quebec, and more especially the notorious Lyman case, which is now before the courts in Montreal, the Provincial Government have sent two commissioners to make an official investigation at Longue Pointe asylum.

Ambassador to England.

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—It is said that Count Herbert Bismarck will certainly be appointed ambassador to England. The Government is negotiating.

THE LATEST TELEGRAMS

CABLE.

CHOLERA IN NAPLES.

NAPLES, Sept. 18.—Excessive heat prevails, but the general condition of the city is improving. The streets are regaining their customary activity. Some alarm was felt at the increase in number of the cases in the suburbs.

THE FIGHTING AT KINPAI FORT.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—Report of the fighting near Kinpai forts yesterday was greatly exaggerated. Only 200 French troops landed and they defeated a few villagers. The object was to keep open telegraphic communication.

GEN. GORDON'S LETTERS.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—The News gives this version of Gen. Gordon's letters:—Gen. Gordon asks England to send Turkish troops to occupy the Soudan, and to remit £250,000. The alternative proposed by Gen. Gordon was to make Zebehr Pasha King of the Soudan, with a salary of £3,000, the Soudan being held as a fief of Egypt. This being accomplished Gen. Gordon will return to England.

ATTACKING A CHINESE JUNK.

HONG KONG, Sept. 18.—The French man-of-war Atlante, yesterday boarded a Hong Kong trading junk and threw its cannon, guns, and ammunition overboard. The merchants are greatly irritated. Junking is the only trade left and the junkmen are afraid to venture outside the harbour without cannon for fear of pirates. The disgust at the indecision of the French is increasing daily.

A REBEL DEFEAT.

WADY HALFA, Sept. 17.—The Mudir of Dongola says he pursued the rebels to Assel, killing and capturing a large number. He received a message from Gordon, saying he had occupied Holfish. The Nile is rising again. A force has arrived at Wady Halfa to begin the construction of a railway.

PRICES OF WHEAT.

In his speech to the Haldimand farmers not long ago, Mr. Blake made some references to the price of wheat. The N. P., he intimated, had not kept up the price. In 1877, it was so much; now it was so much lower. Well, the N. P. has done for the price of wheat everything that its advocates predicted—everything that they expected. It has kept the Canadian market for the Canadian farmer. It has kept the average price above the average price ruling before. During the past year it has kept the Canadian price at least ten cents above relative prices in other markets. Had it not been for the duty the Canadian farmers would not only have suffered during the past year because of their short crop, but they would have been compelled to compete with foreign wheat at 90 cents a bushel.

But a few comparisons may not be uninteresting:—

In the middle of September, 1878, red wheat at Liverpool was worth 8s. 10d. per cental, or say, $1.28 per bushel; at Hamilton it was worth 90 cents. Hamilton less than Liverpool, 38 cents.

In the middle of September, this year, red wheat at Liverpool is worth 6s. 11d. per cental, or say, $1 a bushel; at Hamilton it is worth 77 cents. Hamilton less than Liverpool, 23 cents.

Compared with the Liverpool price the Hamilton price is better by 15 cents than it was in 1878.

In the middle of September, 1878, red wheat at New York was worth $1.08 per bushel: at Hamilton it was worth 90 cents. Hamilton less than New York, 18 cents.

Yesterday, red wheat at New York was quoted at 86⅜ cents: in Hamilton at 77 cents. Hamilton less than New York, 9⅜ cents.

Compared with the New York price, the Hamilton price is better than it was in 1878 by 8⅜ cents.

In the middle of September, 1878, the price of red wheat in Chicago was 90½ cents: in Hamilton, 90 cents. Hamilton less than Chicago, half a cent.

Yesterday red wheat in Chicago was quoted at 75½ cents: in Hamilton at 77 cents. Hamilton higher than Chicago, 1½ cents.

Compared with the Chicago price, the Hamilton price is better than it was in 1878 by 1⅜ cents per bushel. Chicago is just now enjoying exceptional advantages in low freight rates, or the difference would be very much greater.—Hamilton Spectator.

THE NEWSBOY'S CAT.

From the Western Plowman.

Want any paper, Mister?
Wish you'd buy 'em of me—
Ten years old, an' a fam'ly,
An' bigness dull, you see.
Fact Boss! There's Tom, an' Tibby,
An' Dad, an' Mam, and Mam's cat,
None on 'em earnin' money—
What do you think of that?

Couldn't Dad work? Why yes, Boss,
He's working for Gov'ment now—
They give him his board for nothin'
All along of a drunken row.
An' Mam? Well, she's in the poorhouse—
Been there a year or so;
So I'm takin' care of the others,
D'ain't as well as I know.

Oughn't to live so? Why, Mister,
What's a feller to do?
Some nights, when I'm tired and hungry,
Seems as if each one of 'em knew,
They'll all three cuddle around me,
Till I get cheery, and say:
Well p'raps I'll have sisters and brothers
An' money an' clothes, too, some day.

But if I do get rich, Boss,
(An' a leaturin' chap one night
Said newsboys could be Presidents
If only they acted right):
So, if I was President, Mister,
The very first I'd do,
I'd buy poor Tom an' Tibby
A dinner—an' Mam's cat too!

None o' your scraps an' leavin's,
But a good square meal for all three;
If you thing I'd skimp my friends, Boss,
That shows you don't know me.
So 'ere's your papers—come, take one,
Give me a bit if you can—
For now you've heard my story,
You see I'm a fam'ly man!

Daily Evening Review

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1884.

THE London Advertiser is still quoting the Boundary Award as efficacious. The Advertiser does not seem to be aware that the highest Court of the realm has declared that the Arbitrators were appointed without proper authority and that they exceeded their instructions, that their award was irregular and invalid.

AMONG the parts of the evidence given before the Bribery Commission which the Reform journals have ignored, is the statement of Mr. Meredith, that an Order-in-Council was passed previous to the election allowing the Commissioner to dispose of timber in the Thunder Bay district without putting them up at auction. They do not like to mention that.

JAMAICA.

THE London Advertiser "supposes" that it has not occurred to us that "Jamaica would insist upon being represented in proportion to its population." It certainly never occurred to us that Jamaica would ask any less. The Advertiser also asks if we believe that "the white rulers of Jamaica would consent that the majority in the island should choose the representatives." Does our contemporary mean a majority of population or a majority of voters? We are not aware that in any part of Canada a majority of the population chooses the representatives, and in Ontario Mr. Mowat was supported at the last general election by a minority even of the voters. It is not probable that any arrangement for union with Canada could be made with Jamaica before a Dominion franchise act would be passed, and then the voters for Dominion representatives would be men with a substantial interest in the country. The fear of colored voters may be dismissed, but there are graver reasons why we should fully consider this project before accepting it.

DRUMING THEM INTO LINE.

THE Ontario Gazette of the 13th inst. contained the following notice:—

"Hugh Gallagher, of the township of Grattan, in the county of Renfrew, to be Bailiff of the Sixth Division Court of the said county of Renfrew, in the room and stead of Michael J. Kearney."

The first thing that will strike the reader in connection with the forgoing notice is that it is ominously silent as to whether "Michael J. Kearney" has departed this life, was dismissed, or has resigned the office to which a successor has been appointed. The inference is: That he has not been dismissed, doubtless because no charge could be brought against him in his official capacity; and that he would not and did not resign! As a matter of fact we do not think we shall be far astray if we assert that it was for none of those reasons that Mr. Kearney has been removed, but for the simple and sole reason that he supported and worked for the notorious Dr. Dowling's opponent in the election of last January. If so, may we not fairly ask when and where this system of political terrorism is to stop.

Surely these officials should be either disfranchised altogether, or allowed to exercise their franchise as their own judgment, not that of their political superiors, for the time being, dictates.

OUR VIRTUAL INDEPENDANCE.

THE interview of a deputation of representatives of the West Indies, and especially of Jamaica, with Lord Derby, is in several respects of interest to Canadians.

We learn from it, and from other sources, that the bounties given by foreign nations by which refined sugar is artificially cheapened till the British refineries are unable to compete, is not looked upon as an unmixed good, nor its evil effect upon an important industry as a matter of no moment, so long as the consumer is benefitted, as our rabid free-traders allege.

The question of the proposed union of Jamaica and other islands with our Dominion, is also worthy of careful consideration before it is decided in the affirmative or the negative.

But there is another matter to which we would call the attention of our readers. Lord Derby, according to the report of the London Times, in the course of his reply expressed himself as follows:—

"Something was said as to the expediency of bringing about a closer connection between the West Indies and the Dominion of Canada. That was not a matter which had come before the Colonial Office in any formal or official shape, and, therefore, he was not in a position to speak upon it except in the vaguest and most general terms. He could not conceive any objection on the part of the Colonial Office to a drawing closer of the ties between two parts of the Colonial Empire. So far from objecting to that, it was what the Government had always desired, and what they had always promoted as as far as lay in their power. But they must remember that in financial and administrative matters Canada was virtually an independent country; and, therefore, the assistance which he could give the deputation in this matter would be of a very negative character. If the West Indies and Canada could come to terms as regarded a closer connection, he might venture to say that under hardly any conceivable circumstance would the Colonial Office desire to oppose itself to such an arrangement. But the question rested, in the first instance, with Canada; and it was to Canada that they must address themselves rather than to the Colonial Office."

Now Lord Derby is known to be a very careful and cautious politician. He is not one who speaks for mere rhetorical effect without weighing his words, and any expression of his opinions may be looked upon as deliberate and unexaggerated. We find this cautious official not only asserting that "in financial and administrative matters Canada was virtually an independent country," but showing his practi acquiescence in this position, by referring the deputation to Ottawa instead of Westminster.

Does it not seem strange that knowing as we do our own virtual independence in matters of the greatest importance to ourselves, and having that independence so authoritatively acknowledged by the imperial authorities, it should be deemed necessary to clamour for further independence? It is true that it is only a mere handful of our population that is raising the outcry, but the noise is more than proportionate to the numbers, and may give a false impression to those who are not fully acquainted with the circumstances.

The truth is that the great majority of Canadians are satisfied to be "virtually independent" while still retaining our place in the glorious empire to which we are proud to belong.

ANNUAL FALL REGATTA.

A Hot Contest Between Fitzgerald and Weller—Other Interesting Events.

On Thursday afternoon, the annual fall regatta of the Peterborough Boating Club was held on the Little Lake. The chief attraction was a matched one mile single canoe race, with double paddles, between Messrs. Geo. Fitzgerald and J. Weller. It is to be regretted that sufficient entries were not made for the single scull and four oared races; nevertheless, the three or four hundred people who assembled on Burnham's Point were well repaid for their trouble. Messrs. H. Winch and J. Z. Rodgers were chosen as judges, and at about half past three o'clock all arrangements were completed and the matched single canoe race was called. The two men took their positions and an even start was made. Soon Weller slightly gained and at about an ⅛ of a mile up the course, there was one boat length between them. Before the buoy was reached, however, Fitzgerald had closed the gap, and had a boat length in his favour. This advantage he lost in turning the buoy, but both got away almost even. The excitement now ran high. Each man strained every nerve and muscle to get the lead, while the crowd on shore wildly cheered on their respective favorite. Weller was now paddling at 64 strokes to the minute, and Fitzgerald at 66. When the ⅔ of the course was covered, Fitzgerald stood two lengths in advance. Weller now put on a spurt and was gradually closing on his opponent. The excitement was tremendous. The backers of each man cheered themselves hoarse. Fitzgerald won by half a boat length, Time, 9.37 minutes.

DOUBLE SCULLS.

There were only two competitors for this race, namely, Messrs. G. Lech and F. Adams, and F. Cox and W. Rutherford. A good start was made, but it was evident from the beginning, judging from the form of the men, that Lech and Adams had it all their own way. Lech and Adams pulled a long, clean, sweeping easy stroke, while their opponents pulled one-third more strokes in number in a short and ineffectual way. Lech and Adams won easily by about three boat lengths. Time, 7.10 minutes.

SINGLE CANOES.

Messrs. H. Evans, A. Blade and F. Adams entered for the above event, Evans being allowed about fifteen lengths of a start. Adams on the start led out well, and held his advance on Blade until the buoys were reached, both men having overtaken Evans on the way up. After the buoys were turned Blade gradually advanced and won the race by about five boat lengths. Time, 10.26 minutes.

REVIEWS.

EXCELSIOR RECITATIONS.—We have received from the Toronto News Company the first number of the "Excelsior Recitations and Readings," comprising numerous selections in prose and poetry. Most of them seem to be of a humorous character, but this will make them all the more acceptable to many, as the majority of such collections err in the other extreme.

CAMPBELLFORD.

ACCIDENT.—On Saturday, a young woman named Hubble, daughter of Mr. B. Hubble, of this village, who was employed in the Trent Valley Woolen Mills, lost all the fingers of her right hand except a portion of the little one, by getting them jammed in the machinery.

CURIOUS CORN.—Mr. LeVesconte has shown us an ear of Minnesota white corn of peculiar shape which he plucked from a stalk in his garden a few days since. The ear bears some resemblance to a human hand, having a thumb-like growth from the main part, and three other small sprouts answering to three short fingers. There are nineteen rows of kernals on the ear.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC RIDING.—In the columns of the Toronto Daily Globe of a late issue, there appeared an item which is certainly new to the people of this locality. It reads thus:—"The popular member of the Local Legislature, from East Northumberland, Mr. J. M. Ferris, was in town, and in conversation with a reporter, stated that the people of his riding were enthusiastic over the coming Mowat demonstration. He expected to attend at the head of one hundred mounted men from his constituency, and there will be a large turnout of other citizens." We fancy this must have been some other Ferris and some other riding; for we are certain there are no such enthusiasts about here who would indulge in political foolishness of that kind.—Herald.

ONTARIO CHEESE IN EUROPE.

Mr. T. D. Millar, the celebrated cheese maker of Ingersoll, has just received a cablegram, stating that he has obtained the first prize for his cheese at the Amsterdam exhibition. This is good news for Mr. Millar, but it is more; it is great news for the cheesemaking interest of Ontario, as showing that this province can produce under proper conditions of manufacture, as good, if not better, article of cheese than the best dairy regions of the world. Who would have thought it possible that Canada could come out at the top in this matter right in the heart of the finest Dutch dairy centres? Yet Mr. Millar's success, brilliant as it is, is but the last of a series of such triumps for Ontario cheese. At the Philadelphia exhibition, the best cheese exhibited was from Canada. Again in 1878 there was an International dairy fair in New York, there being cheese from every dairy state in the Union, from Canada and England, both Chesire and Cheddar. The sweepstakes prize was then given to England, but the judges were very particular to say that the next best samples were those from Canada. In 1880, again, a similar fair was held in New York, and the sweepstakes were awarded to three Canadian cheeses. But to Mr. Millar great credit is due for his enterprise in even facing at very considerable expense so fierce a rivalry as must have marked the Amsterdam World's Fair, where the best dairy products of European nations were on exhibition, and his triumph is deserving of more than ordinary recognition. It is stated that he sent seven boxes, one weighing 645 lbs., another 628, and 5 boxes of 65 lbs. each. The expenses were about $220. It is a fair question whether under the circumstances the Government should not reimburse Mr. Millar for these outlays, as an encouragement to the enterprise of a progressive citizen, and the acknowledgment of the good that will be done to Ontario and Canada, in adding to her fame and attracting the notice of the more desirable class of immigrants. The cheese interest of Canada has made very remarkable strides since the factory system went into operation. Twenty years ago we exported but 1,100 cwt. We now send away annually between 40 and 50 millions of lbs., valued at about five or six millions of dollars. There is nothing to prevent the extension of the business indefinitely, thus adding a vast source of wealth to the country.—Guelph Herald.

CHAPTER XXXV.

From the window of one of those beautiful villas that encrust the shores of Como, nestling like white birds at the base of the laurel and vine-clad hills that lave their verdant feet in the blue waters, Regina watched the sunshine falling across the placid bosom of the lake. Far away, on the sky-line opposite, and towering above the intervening mountains, glittered the white fire of the snowy Alps, as if they longed to quench their dazzling lustre in the peaceful blue sleeping beneath.

Luxuriant vines clambered along the hillsides, and where the latter had been cut in terraces, and seemed swinging like the gardens of Semiramis, orange, lemon, myrtle and olive trees showed all their tender green and soft gray tints, and long-haired acacias waved in the evening air, that was redolent of the faint delicious vesper incense swung from the pink chalices of climbing roses.

"No tree cumbered with creepers let the sunshine through,
But it was caught in scarlet cups, and poured
From these on amber tufts of bloom, and dropped
Lower on asure stars."

Never weary of studying the wonderful beauty of the surrounding scenery, Regina surrendered herself to an enjoyment that would have been unalloyed, had not a lurking shadow cast its unwelcome chill on all. Mr. and Mrs. Waul had returned to America, and for a month Mrs. Laurence, accompanied by Mr. Chesley and Regina, had been quietly ensconced in this lovely villa, whose terraces and balconies projected almost into the water, and commanded one of the finest views of the lake.

But anxiety had followed, taking up its dreary watch in the midst of that witchery which might have exercised the haunting gray ghost of care, and though shrouded by every imaginable vail and garland of beauty, its grim presence was as fully felt as that of the byssus-clad mummy that played its allotted part at ancient Coptic feasts.

The steamer in which Mr. Laurance embarked with his family for America, had been lost in mid-Atlantic; and only one boat, filled with a portion of the passengers and crew, had been rescued by a East Indian ship bound for Liverpool. Among the published names of the few survivors that of Laurance did not appear.

Had old ocean mercifully opened its crystal bosom and gathered to coral caves and shrouding purple algæ the unfortunate man, who had quaffed all the rosy foam beading the goblet of life, and for whom it only remained to drain the bitter lees of public humiliation and social disgrace?

When Mrs. Laurance received the first intimation that Cuthbert had probably perished, with his wife and child, she vehemently and stubbornly refused her credence. It seemed impossible that envious death could have so utterly snatched from her grasp the triumph upon which her eager fingers were already closing.

Causing advertisements to be inserted in various journals, and offering therein a reward for information of the missing passengers, she forbade the topic broached in her presence, and quitting Paris, retired for a season to Lake Como; vainly seeking that coveted tranquility which everywhere her own harrowing thoughts and ceaseless forebodings effectually murdered.

As time wore on she grew gloomy, taciturn, almost morose, and a restlessness beyond the remedy of medicine, robbed her of the power of sleep. To-day she clung convulsively to her daughter, unwilling that she should leave her even for an instant; to-morrow she would lock herself in, and for hours refuse admittance to any human being. The rich bloom fersook her cheek, deep shadows underlined her large melancholy eyes, and her dimpled hands became so diaphanous, so thin, that the black agate ring with difficulty held its place upon the wasted fingers.

With patient, loving care, Regina anticipated her wishes, indulged all her varying caprices, devoted herself assiduously to the task of diverting her mind and comforting her heart by the tender ministrations of her own intense filial affection. By day, she read, talked, sang to her. When in the tormentingly still hours of the night, her mother refused the thorns of a sleepless pillow, the daughter drew her out upon the terrace, against which the wavelets broke in a silvery monologue, and directed her thoughts to the glowing stars that clustered in the blue dome above, and shimmered in the azure beneath; or with an arm around her mother's waist, led her into the flowery garden, and up the winding walks that climbed the eminance behind the villa, where oleanders whitened the gloom, and passionate jasmines broke their rich hearts on the dewy air; so, pacing to and fro, until the moon went down behind the myrtle groves,—and the bald dew of distant Alps flushed under the first kiss of day.

For Mrs. Laurance, nepenthe was indeed a fable, and while she abstained from an indirect allusion to the subject that absorbed her, the nameless anxiety that seemed consuming her, Regina and her uncle watched her with increasing apprehension.

This afternoon she had complained of headache, and throwing herself on a couch in the recess of the window that overlooked the lake, desired to be left alone, in the hope of falling asleep.

Stooping to kiss her, Regina said:

"Mother, let me sit by you, and while I fan you gently, read the 'Lotos Eaters.' The drowsy rhythm will lull you into that realm of rest:

"'In which it seems always afternoon.'

May I?"

"No. To-day your blue eyes would stab my sleep. I will ring when I want you."

Dropping the filmy lace curtains, in order to lessen the reflection from the water, Regina softly stole away, and sat down at the window of the salon, where satin-leaved arums, and dainty pearly orchids embellished the consoles, and fragrant heliotrope and geraniums were blooming in pots clustered upon the stone balcony outside.

Each day the favorite view of the lake and bending shore line, upon which she gazed from this spot, developed some new beauty, hidden hitherto under leafy laurel shadows, or behind the snowy sail of some fishing boat, rocking idly upon the azure waves.

Now the burden of her reflection was:

"If we could only spend our lives in this marble haven, away from the turmoil and feverish confusion of the outside world; forgetting the past, contented with the society of each other, and shut in with God and nature—how peaceful the future would be, nay, how happy all might yet become."

THE MODEL SCHOOL.—Mr. Tilley, Inspector of County Model Schools, visited the Peterboro' Model Schools at this place on Tuesday, and expressed himself as highly pleased with the staff and the buildings. The object of his visit was the organization of the school.

THE ELEVATOR.—Another week will complete the carpenter work of the elevator being built by Messrs. Roxburgh and Rork. The building is well and substantially built, and does credit, not only to the contractors, the, Messrs. Harpers, but also to the proprietors, who have spared no expense to make the building one of the best along the line. It will be finished in time for the fall trade.

METHODIST PICNIC.—On the afternoon of Monday, civic holiday, the scholars of the Methodist Sabbath School of this place spent a pleasant afternoon in the grove adjoining the residence of P. M. Grover, Esq. Additional swings were erected and other enjoyable pastimes provided. All of which were duly appreciated. Ample justice was done to a creditable spread prepared by the ladies of the school, and when we say that an enjoyable afternoon was spent, we express but feebly the sentiments of those who attended.

ORANGE DEMONSTRATION.—The members of L. O. L. No. 34, of this village, are making preparations for holding a grand Orange picnic here on Wednesday, October 1st. Mr. White, M.P., Mr. Johnston, of Belleville, Supreme Grand Master of British America, and other noted and prominent members of the order will address the gathering. No pains are being spared to make this the most successful demonstration of the kind ever held in this part of the country. Dinner and supper will be served in the drill shed.—Register.

HASTINGS.

KILLED BY THE CARS.—Mr. James Leahy, who lives a few miles west of Norwood, had two valuable cows killed by a train on the O. & Q. on Saturday morning.

RUN OFF.—An open switch west of the station caused engine No. 618, which was attached to a freight train going west, to leave the track, on Saturday. It was hauled on by a special which came from Belleville for the purpose.—Star.

PORT HOPE.

BODY FOUND.—The body of the sailor, Myron Enos, who was drowned off the schooner Fred. L. Wells, on Wednesday morning, was found next morning by Michael O'Mealey. It was coffined by Mr. J. T. George, undertaker, and forwarded to friends at Putneyville. It was not thought necessary to hold an inquest.—Guide.

HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

To write upon terra-cottta tablets—Dip the clay tablet in milk, and then dry. When this is done you can write upon it as easily as upon paper.

A CURE FOR SORE THROAT.—Take a teaspoonful of black currant jam or jelly; put it in a tumbler, and fill up the tumbler with boiling water. Take this several times in a day, and drink whilst hot.

FOR CHILBLAINS.—Take a turnip; boil it with the skin on; then take out the pulp, and beat it up, and add to it half a teaspoouful of grated horseradish. Lay this on a rag, and tie it on to the part affected.

SAGO JELLY.—Put half a pint of water on the fire, to which add a table-spoonful of lemon juice, an ounce and a half of sugar, and a little lemon rind; let it boil till it looks quite clear; then ponr it into a mould; when it is ready for use.

SUGAR.—As a matter of economy, many housekeepers use brown sugar for cooking, but the additional moisture which it contains more than equals the difference in price. Granulated sugar is the purest sugar for ordinary use, while pulverized is better for meringues and frosting.

DIGESTIBLE BISCUITS.—Take one pound of brown flour, then put it in a basin; add a pinch of salt; put two ounces of butter in a saucepan; add to it a half a pint of water, and make it boil; mix it with the flour, and beat it up until it is quite stiff; then roll it out with pastry-cutters, and bake ten minutes.

HAM STEAKES.—Cut some slices of raw ham, and put them into a fryingpan with half a teacupful of water. When the water has boiled away, and the stakes—which should be turned—have become a light brown, dredge them with flour, and pour over them the following sauce: Take a teacupful of milk, put it into a saucepan with a small piece of butter, a teaspoonful of mustard, and a dish of cayenne. Let it just boil, and pour over the ham.

Pale, Poor, Puny, & Pallid

Considering all the ills that attack little children, it is a wonder that any of the poor little youngsters live to grow up.

There are children who are truly objects of pity. They seem almost bloodless. Their cheeks are thin and pinched; their eyes are hollow; and their skin is tightly drawn over their foreheads. There is nothing hearty about them. They do not enjoy their lives. They are suffering from the debility that leads to marasmus. Poor things!

Do a good deed for the pale, poor, puny, pallid child. Hand its mother a bottle of the Shaker Blood Syrup. Here is life even for the most delicate; the most debilitated; for the child almost given up for dead. Pure blood is what the child needs, to bring it up. The little digestive apparatus will recover. The pale cheeks will flush out. The weary groan of the child will be exchanged for the merry prattle of infantile gladness. Your druggist will tell what wonders the Shaker Blood Syrup has done for very sick children.

RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. Daily Evening Review

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1884.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Ancient Capital.

A party of Peterborough young men who have returned from a holiday trip to Montreal and Quebec, speak highly of the pleasant time they had, and especially mention the genial proprietor of the "Au Chien D'or" restaurant in the ancient capital.

Closing of the Midland Workshops.

The Port Hope Times says :—

"Mr. Douglass, foreman of the carpenter workshops, Midland Railway, has received orders to complete all the work in hand, as the shops will have to be closed in two weeks. The men have been offered work at the company's works near the Don station, Toronto. The other shops here will, no doubt, soon follow in the wake of the carpenters."

Handsome Lettering.

Mr. J. N. Watson has for the past few days been engaged in doing some very elegant gold leaf lettering on the plate glass window in the store of Messrs. Sailsbury & Son. The letters are systematically framed and are shaded in rainbow lines. The background is of black, and the lettering is exceedingly attractive.

An Enjoyable Evening.

On Monday evening next a musical entertainment will be held in the Lake Street School House. The best local talent, both vocal and instrumental, has been secured. After the entainment refreshments will be provided, and those who attend will doubtless spend an enjoyable evening. The doors will open at 8 o'clock, and everybody will be hartily welcomed. Admission 25cts. The proceeds help to swell the St. Peter's Cathedral building fund.

Railway Accident.

Mr. Ed. Sailsbury, express agent on the O. and Q., is in town under medical treatment. A train on the O. and Q., owing to a broken rail, left the track on Saturday morning last at 5 o'clock, about three miles this side of Carleton Place, and the express car, in which Mr. Sailsbury was at the time, was precipitated down an embankment. Mr. Sailsbury had two ribs broken and was otherwise shaken up. We are glad to learn that he is convalescent.

Methodist Church of Canada.

The Rev. Doctor Douglass, of Montreal, so widely known as the most eloquent Methodist Minister in Canada, is to preach in the George Street Methodist Church on Sunday night, and on Monday night he delivers in the same place an address, on behalf of the educational interests of the Methodist Church of Canada. No doubt many will be glad to hear this grand old man, now unfirm of body and nearly blind, yet undeniably eloquent.

Cancelled Cobourg.

The Cobourg Sentinel-Star, referring to the recent match between the Peterborough Juniors and the Cobourg Lacrosse club, says :—

"We believe the Cobourg team could beat the Peterborough first twelve, and would like to see a friendly contest arranged between them. Send them a challenge."

If the club have as much faith in themselves as the Sentinel-Star has in them, a match is certainly the way to settle the question. Perhaps the Cobourgs might try for higher honors than they have yet won and play a match for the championship of Central Ontario. If they can defeat the Peterboroughs that honor can be theirs. While referring to this subject we would inform the World that there are no professional players in the Peterborough club.

Football.

The first match of the Ontario Rugby Football Union for this year has now been definitely fixed to take place in Peterborough, on October 11th, between the Torontos (the present champions of Ontario, and holders of the Union cup for last year), and the Peterboroughs. The home club have the material amongst them to make a very strong team, and it is hoped now that they have only three weeks more practice that every man will turn out promptly at the appointed times. Practice in future will be held on Monday and Thursday mornings at six o'clock, and on Tuesday and Saturday afternoons at 4.30. Those who cannot get to the grounds on time are requested to come as soon after as possible. The return match, Town vs. County, has been arranged for to-morrow, at 4.30 p.m., sharp. Any one wishing to join the club can give their names to the Secretary, Mr. P. E. S. Cooper, for proposal.

The Light Weight Champion.

Harry Gilmour, the champion light weight pugilist of Canada, arrived in town to-day, and took quarters at the Oriental Hotel. He came to Peterborough for the purpose of training for his fight with Geo. Fulljames.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the following twenty-four hours, counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows :—Moderate winds, fine weather, stationary or slightly higher temperature.

The Weather.

The readings of the Thermometer and Barometer in Mr. G. W. Morgan's drug store today were as follows :—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
Nine o'clock	55°	29.42
One o'clock	62°	29.35

The Cricket Match.

The two days' cricket match between the Duke of York's Rangers and Peterborough and district was commenced on Thursday afternoon. The Rangers (only five arrived, the rest of the team being made up from Peterborough players) went first to the bat and scored 196. In their 1st innings the Peterboroughs made 216. As we go to press the Rangers are playing their second innings, having eight runs with no wickets down.

Severely Injured.

On Thursday evening Mr. Harry Niblock, of Toronto, who has been in town for several days visiting friends, was crossing George street at the intersection of Brock, a horse attached to a buggy came up at a rapid rate, and it being dark, the driver perhaps not seeing the pedestrian. Mr. Niblock was knocked down and the wheels of the buggy passed over his body. He painfully walked to Dr. Clarke's surgery, and it was found that he had been severely bruised at the elbow joint. The Doctor made a careful examination, and discovered several body bruises, but happily no bones were broken.

Lawn Social.

A very pleasant and enjoyable lawn social was held at the residence of Mrs. Gilmour, under the auspices of the Ladies of the Baptist Church. The grounds were realy beautifully and tastefully illuminated by chinese lanterns, and lanterns and artifices of other descriptions. Tables containing refreshments and flowers were standing here and there and each appeared to do a flourishing trade. The beautiful residence was thrown open to the public, and everybody seemed to enjoy themselves. Contrary to expectations the Fire Brigade Band were not present, which together with a slight coolness of the air, were the only draw-backs. We are informed that the entertainment was a financial success.

A Meeting of General Freight Agents.

A meeting of railway freight agents was held in the head offices of the Grand Trunk Railway in Peterborough on Thursday, Sept. 18. The following gentlemen were present :—Messrs. E. Tiffin, Canadian Pacific; J. Earls, Grand Trunk; T. Tandy, Great Western Division, G. T.R.; R. Quinn, Northern and Northwestern; R. Derole, Great Western Division, G.T.R.; J. McMullen, Central Ontario; A. White, Midland Division, G.T.R. The subjects considered were grain rates, coal rates and coal oil rates. The grain rates were equalized and somewhat reduced, owing to the reduced price of grain. Coal rates were likewise somewhat reduced, and coal oil rates were similarly dealt with.

If you want

Single Sculls.

The long delayed Mercer-Strickland single scull mile race, was rowed on Chemong Lake on Thursday evening. Immediately after the matched canoe race on the Little Lake, a large part of the sporting element departed to witness the much talked of event. Chemong Lake was reached at about five o'clock, and the appetites of the people, sharpened by the drive up, had first to be satisfied. After tea, considerable talk was indulged in, and before the men touched water, the shades of evening had begun to fall. Mr. P. Myles consented to start the men and Messrs. J. J. Lundy and R. B. Lundy were the judges. The oarsmen pulled up the course till the starting point was reached. The starter, seeing that darkness was rapidly setting in, asked the men if they were both willing to row, and both men replied in the affirmative. The pistol was fired and Strickland caught the water first, leading by about a length. They were soon lost to view in the darkness. At the finish the judges could not see either men come in. Strickland landed his boat first and in a few minutes Mercer appeared, he having taken a circuitous route in the dark. The judges declined to decide the race, preferring to let the men themselves settle the point. A meeting was held at the hotel and Mercer acknowledged Strickland's coming in first.

Nothing Like Leather.

Mr. B. M. Wylie, a Keene shoe dealer, arrived in town on Thursday in search of a "side" of leather which hah been stolen from his shop in that village. It seems that Mr. Wylie had a man in his employ named Alex. Evans. Evans left about two weeks ago and came to Peterborough, having in his possession a side of leather valued at $6.50. Being scarce of funds he went to the harness shop of Mr. Metcalfe, and there told a pitiful and plausible story, saying he had no money to buy his supper or to pay for lodging, and that he was going to work in the morning. If Mr. Metcalfe would lend him fifty cents he offered to leave the side of leather for security, which he explained had been given to him by his former employer as part payment of wages, to make a pair of boots for himself. Mr. Metcalf pitied the fellow and gave him the fifty cents. In the morning the man came back and stated that he had lost his situation and that he could not return the money. He said that he wished to go to Toronto, and if Mr. Metcalf would give him $2 he might keep the leather. Mr. Metcalf at first objected, but seeing that he could not get back his 50c., he finally gave him the $2 so as to enable the man to proceed on his journey. Mr. Wylie, after some enquiry, went to Mr. Metcalf's store, and when showed the side recognized it. Mr. Metcalfe offered to give up the leather, but Mr. Wylie, when he heard the circumstances of the case, offered to pay over the $2.50 which Mr. Metcalfe had paid for the leather, if the culprit, Evans, was not to be found. Up to date no trace of him has been received.

CORROBORATION.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—In reference to Mr. Willan's letter, in regard to the South Monaghan Harvest Home Festival, I might say the statements which Mr. Willan made at the festival, to the effect that a team from Peterborough could not be obtained on account of a rumor that if they went they would get rough usage, was correct, as I personally asked two or three players to go, and that was the reason they gave why they would not. I do not know who originated the report, but such a report there was, and that was the explanation made to Mr. Willan why the team did not go.

Yours truly,
R. H. FORTYE.
Peterborough, Sept. 20, 1884.

THE LADIES of Peterborough and vicinity will be glad to learn that Turnbull is making preparation for adding a Dress Making Department to his business, which will be under the management of a thorough dress maker. Worth Knowing.

Some of the finest flavoured teas to be had in Peterborough are for sale at Carton Bros., opposite the Market Square. Housekeepers, hotel keepers, and boarding house keepers who have tried in vain for a sample of tea to suit them, should try Carton's. Training for the Coming Matches.

At a meeting of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club on Friday evening it was finally decided that a match should be played in Ottawa with the Mets. of that city on Thursday next. A resolution was also passed to the effect that the first and second twelves should turn out for practice in the mornings, Monday and Tuesday. The second twelve need practice as much as the first twelve. They should exert themselves to the utmost, and wrest the Brewery Cup from the Cobourgs in the coming tournament. The first twelve will leave over the Ontario & Quebec railway on Wednesday night, and the next day they will have the honor of displaying their dexterity in handling the lacrosse before His Excellency the Governor-General and Lady Lansdowne.

Opera Company Coming.

The St. Quinten Opera Company are booked to appear in Bradburn's Opera House on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. They will produce the operas of "Olivette" and "Mascotte." We observe from the newspapers that the St. Quinten Company have created a furore in operatic circles wherever they have been. Miss St. Quinten's conception and rendering of the role of Olivette is highly spoken of, and in the Mascotte her Bettina has marked her as an artist of more than ordinary genius. No doubt there will be a large attendance of the music loving public on this occasion to enjoy the operatic treat. Miss St. Quinten is ably supported by a full company. Of this company the Toronto Globe has the following:—

"Olivette was again produced by the St. Quinten Opera Co., at the York Street Pavilion last evening, before a large audience. The performance was loudly applauded. Olivette will be repeated this evening. On Monday Mascotte will be produced, Miss St. Quinten in the role of Bettina, and Mr. Woiff in that of Gaspard. In these characters Miss St. Quinten and Mr. Wolff have achieved great reputations."

THE MOROSINI ELOPEMENT.

Sad Effect of the Daughter's Conduct on Her Mother—A Raving Maniac.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The truth about the recent severe illness of Mrs. Morosini, mother of Victoria Morosini, who eloped with a coachman a few days ago, comes out at last. It appears that she has on three occasions since her daughter ran away attempted suicide. Thursday morning, September 11th, she drank a large quantity of laudanum. It was discovered, and medical aid restored her. The same day she again attempted suicide, but was discovered in time to be prevented from swallowing the fatal draught. On the 13th, when alone, she got a more powerful opiate than laudanum. Of this drug she took a large dose, and was discovered insensible on the floor. A doctor, who was at once summoned, worked over her an hour before he succeeded in arousing the faintest spark of life; before morning, however, she was out of danger. From that time she has not been left alone a moment. Last Sunday Mrs. Morosini was a raving maniac, and she has had relapses ever since. On Wednesday Mrs. Morosini and her daughter Julia sailed for Europe on the steamer Auranis. The entire family will soon go to Florence, where they will henceforth make their home.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCK.

Western Ontario and the United States Visited—People Frightened.

A perceptable shock of earthquake was felt in London on Friday about 3.20. It was most distinctly perceptible in the telephone office, where all the young ladies employed felt it distinctly, and some of them became ill in consequence. A young man employed in the bank below also was affected so as to become ill. In the upper apartments of the newspaper offices a similar sensation was experienced, but as it was attributed to some of the machinery in the building no particular attention was paid to it. According to despatches received from various quarters, it seems that shocks were also felt throughout Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. The time of the shock is variously reported at from ten to twenty seconds. It was violent at Defiance, Ohio, where the swaying of the buildings caused much consternation. People hastily abandoned their houses, and the Methodist conference in session in the church immediately adjourned to the street. A meeting of the Ladies' Missionary Society, in progress at the time, was also quickly dismissed.

BASE BALL.—A game was played on Wednesday between the Uxbridge and Lindsay teams on the agricultural grounds, which created a good deal of interest. The Uxbridge club is one of the best in the district and usually a close match for Lindsay. This time, however, Lindsay was ahead a little. The Uxbridge boys on their side affirm this would have been impossible had they their best pitcher with them, who unfortunately had to remain at home. At the close of the game the score stood 17 to 18 and an innings to spare in favor of Lindsay. This is the first time the Uxbridge club has been defeated this year. For the Lindsay club Mr. G. Little pitched a good game, but was not accorded good field support.—Warder.

Killed by a Threshing Machine.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—A terrible accident occurred this morning in the township of Dorchester, about a mile and a half east of the Dorchester station, to a farmer named Saunders. It appears he was attending to a threshing machine, and after putting on the belt instead of stepping around the cylinder to get on the feed board, he unfortunately stepped into the cylinder and was mangled to death before the machine could be stopped, being literally torn to atoms. He leaves a wife and a family of small children.

CHURCH UNION.

It is probably too soon yet to decide positively on the results of the union of the Methodist bodies, recently consummated, but the short time that has elapsed since the union was accomplished has sufficed to show that no serious trouble will arise. In fact, the entire success of the union appears to be assured. Many things that those who opposed the union feared would cause trouble have been overcome with little difficulty. The stationing of the clergymen, the control and disposal of church property, the admission of laymen into the Annual Conferences, and other things which it was feared would cause friction, have hardly interrupted the smooth working of the church to a perceptible degree.

Many feared that because certain clergymen opposed so strongly the union, which they believed was not in the interest of the church, there would be a separation if the union was carried out. But there has been no separation. The gentlemen who opposed the union did so conscientiously, and when they found that they were in a minority, they united heartily with the majority to promote the interests of the church and the religion which they were ordained to preach. One of the clauses of the basis of union most strongly objected to in the Methodist Church of Canada was the one which provided for the appointment of General Superintendents, but when the churches were united and the Superintendents were appointed, they were welcomed wherever they went by clergymen and people, and their counsel and assistance received with pleasure.

The success of this union has caused many to ask, Why should the union sentiment die out? The Methodist bodies in Canada are now united, but there are several Christian denominations still existing in the Dominion. If the Methodists are stronger and can do more work being united, would not the whole Christian church have more power for good if it was united in one body? If a divided Methodism was a reproach to the followers of Wesley, is not a didided Protestantism a reproach to the whole body? And if by uniting, the Methodists silenced one of the objections of opponents of their system, would not a union of all the Christian churches crush the edge of much of the sarcasm of infidelity? These are pertinent questions. Nearly all, if not all, the arguments used in favor of the union of the Methodist churches would apply with equal force to the more comprehensive union. The funds of the churches, were they united, could be better husbanded, and could be applied in such a manner as to be more beneficial, as there would be less waste through two churches occupying the same field, and they would have the advantage of concentrated effort. Even now in places where two or more of the former Methodist bodies were represented, and where, as an effect of the union, one church takes the place of several, other denominations are coming in and again dividing the people. No one would say that they have not a perfect right to do so, yet it neutralizes the results which it was expected would follow this union, and leads people to enquire more strongly why the Christian church should be divided into so many different bodies.

If the union of the various churches is desirable, however, even the most sanguine unionist could not expect it to be accomplished at once, unless he were a fanatic. It must come, if it comes at all, by degrees. All the churches could not be expected to unite at once, and the unionist must look to those bodies that are more nearly alike to join hands first.

Without considering which of the churches are most akin to each other in doctrines and forms of government, it might not be out of place to ask what there is essentially different in the Methodist and Presbyterian churches to keep them apart? If a Presbyterian clergyman can occupy a Methodist pulpit and preach to a Methodist congregation, and a Methodist clergyman address a Presbyterian congregation on their religious duties, why could not the two men work hand in hand, in one church and among a united people? The Methodist and Presbyterian forms of church government are not very much dissimilar: there is nothing so essentially different in them that they could not agree upon one form. Neither does there appear to be any insurmountable difficulty in regard to doctrine. Both churches believe in man's free will and God's sovereignty, yet if one asked in what particular they differed, these very doctrines would probably be the ones that would be mentioned.

And if the Presbyterians and Methodists could unite and work together, in one church and under one name, why not the Congregationalists, the Baptists and the other churches? Then if these churches became one, would anyone dare to call a man a fanatic for dreaming of a united Christian church in Canada without one division?

Several different bodies of Methodists have united and are working harmoniously together, and two Presbyterian churches formed a union and found it to be to their advantage. Then why should not these churches amalgamate with others? It might, of course, be said that the churches, although formerly separate bodies, were all Methodist, or were both Presbyterian, and, therefore, their union was not so difficult. But are not all the churches Christian, believing in the same Bible and teaching the people to seek salvation in the same way?

This subject opens a wide field for consideration. It is not our intention to open a controversy. These thoughts are presented for the consideration of the people, and if properly considered, even if they do not lead to the union which many desire, they will, we believe, increase the friendly and brotherly feeling now existing between the members of the different denominations.

TWO DAYS' CRICKET.

The Duke of York's Rangers Play Peterborough and District—Excellent Play.

A two days' cricket match was commenced on the Ashburnham grounds on Thursday afternoon, between the York Rangers, and players from Peterborough and district. It is to be regretted that the Rangers had not a complete team, only four of them having taken their stand on the field. The team, however, was made up by cricket material from Peterborough and the match was proceeded with. The Rangers went first to the bat and scored 190 runs, of which Ray alone made 101. In their first innings the Peterboroughs made 216, all of the noted players doing well. Tait, of Campbellford, also did effectual execution.

The Rangers commenced their second innings on Friday afternoon and played until 4 o'clock, when the stumps had to be drawn so as to allow the visitors to get away on the evening train. The following is the score:—

Sensational Suicide.

Pittsburg, Sept. 18.—Lizzie Baxter on Tuesday morning went into a grocery store at Elliott's Station, on the Baltimore & Ohio R.R. where she washed and dressed herself in the height of fashion. She then went to the telegraph operator and requested him to telegraph to her father in New York. She acted queerly all day, appearing intoxicated or insane. In the evening she went to the telegraph office and asked whether the money had been received. The operator answered in the negative. She then walked out to the track just as the express came along, and laid her head on the rail holding the rail with her hands. Two men tried to pull her off, and nearly lost their lives in doing so, but they were unable to get her loose. The locomotive cut off her head and arms killing her instantly. The coroner held an inquest. It was learned that she was 25 years of age, married, and had lived in Cumberland, Md., with her husband. A few weeks ago her husband left her for reasons unknown, and she took to drinking, which probably rendered her partially insane. Her relatives have been telegraphed to. Her father's name is John Conlon, of Elmira, N. Y.

The Cattle Trade.

The Montreal Gazette has, with commendable enterprise, introduced a feature into its commercial reports, which must render them of exceptionally great value to all persons engaged or interested in the cattle trade. The Gazette has for some time had a correspondent at Liverpool, who sends weekly letters on the subject of the cattle trade, and the letters have shown that the correspondent is remarkably well informed upon the subject, and must have exceptional facilities for obtaining precise and accurate information. To this has now been added a weekly cable letter on the position of the cattle market, which is published in the Gazette every Tuesday morning, giving the fullest particulars up to a late hour on Monday night.

Nihilists Threaten Cuba.

Key West, Sept. 19.—Orders have been promulgated by the Nihilistic societies in Cuba tending to the advancement of Cuban independence by the destruction of property by simultaneous fires and explosions throughout the island. The police of Matanzas arrested 24 persons on the 10th Sept. for attempting the destruction of the city. The members of the society here claim to have received private advices of other similar attempts in the interior of Cuba, accompanied with great destruction of property.

Postal Savings Bank Deposits.

The deposits in the postal savings banks during the months of August amounted to $535,969, and the withdrawals to $386,851. As compared with August of the last year, the deposits last month were $40,500 more and the withdrawals $23,500 more. There has, therefore, been a large proportionate increase in the deposits in the postal savings banks.

ANNEXATION OF JAMAICA.

Hon. Mr. Solomon Appears Before the Privy Council—Not Yet Ripe for Discussion.

Ottawa, Sept. 18.—Hon. Michael Solomon, a member of the Jamaica Council, appeared yesterday before the Privy Council and made an interesting statement respecting the desire of Jamaica to join the Canadian Confederation. He came to Ottawa in an informal way, not having been deputed by the Government of Jamaica, but having been asked by the Board of West India Proprietors, a permanent body holding their meetings in London, to see the Government of Canada on his way back to Jamaica. After hearing his statement the Cabinet decided that no steps could be taken by Canada in the matter until the aquiescence of the Imperial Government was first definitely given to the idea of union between the West Indies and Canada. Until it should appear that such an arrangement was consonant with imperial policy it would be premature to discuss the question. Its importance demanded that the initiatory step should be most carefully studied, and that the subject should be viewed in all its aspects, Imperial, Canadian, and Jamaican, before the Government of Canada could take into serious consideration the overtures that might be made to them.—Mail.

A Dangerous Sleep.

A partially intoxicated Indian had a narrow escape, a few evenings ago, while crossing the river from Lachine to Caughnawaga. When he was half way over he was overcome by the liquor he had been inbibing, and laid down in the boat for a sleep. The boat was drifting swiftly towards the rapids, when his dangerous position was noticed by three young men, who at once sprang into a boat, and succeeded in bring the canoe and its occupant ashore. The Indian did not awaken until he reached the shore, and when apprised of his narrow escape, expressed gratitude to his preservers.

CHAPTER XXXV—CONTINUED.

Sympathy with her mother, had forced her to put temporarily aside the contemplation of her own sorrow, but in secret it preyed upon her heart; and whenever a letter arrived, she dreaded the announcement of Mr. Palma's marriage.

His parting allusion to a brief European visit she had by the aid of her fears, interpreted to mean a bridal tour, curtailed by his business engagements; and thus she never mentioned his name when it could be avoided, she could not hear it casually pronounced by her uncle or mother without feeling her heart bound suddenly.

Once, soon after her arrival in Paris, her mother in reading a letter from Mr. Palma glanced at her and said:—

"Your guardian desires me to say, that in your disguised devotion to uncle Orme, he presumes that he is completely forgotten; but consoles himself with the reflection that from time to time immemorial wards have been like the Carthaginians, proverbially ungrateful."

Regina made no response, and since then, she had received no message.

While she sat gazing over Como, a mirage rose glistening between her eyes and the emerald shore beyond; the dear familiar outlines of that Fifth Avenue library, the frescoed walls, polished floor, mellow gas lamps, and above all, the stately form, massive head, high brow so like a slab of marble, and bright black eyes of the master.

She was glad when Mr. Chesley came in, with an open book in his hand and stood near her.

"Is your mother asleep?"

"I hope so. She sent me away that she might get a nap."

"Just now I stumbled on a passage which reminded me so vivedly of the imaginary home you last week painted for us, somewhere along the Pacific shore, that I thought I would show it to you. The home, where you hope to indulge your bucolic tastes, your childish fondness for pets, doves, rabbits, Pheasants, and similar rustic appendages to our cottage—in—the—air. Here, read it aloud if you will."

She glanced over the lines, smiled, and read:

"'Mong the green lanes of Kent, stood an antique home
Within its orchards, rich with ruddy fruits;
For the full year was laughing in his prime.
Wealth of all flowers grew in that garden green,
And the old poorch, with its great oaken door
Was smothered in rose-blooms, while over the walls
The honey suckle clung deliciously.
Before the door there lay a plot of grass
Snowed over with daisies, flower by all beloved,
And famousest in song, and in the midst,
A carved fountain stood. * * * *
On wich a peacock perched and sunned itself;
Beneath, two petted rabbits, snowy white,
Squatted upon the sward.
A row of populars darkly rose behind,
Around whose tops, and the old-fashioned vanes,
White pigeons fluttered; and over all was bent
The mighty sky, with sailing sunny clouds."

"Thank you, Uncle Orme. The picture is as sweet as its honeysuckle blooms, and some day we will frame it with California mountains, and call it Home. I shall only want to add, a gently sloping field, wherein pearly short-horns stand ankle deep in clover, while my dear old dog Hero basks upon the doorstep; and upon the lawn.—

'An almond tree
Pink with her blossom and alive with bees,
Standing against the azure.'"

"Yonder comes the letters."

As he spoke Mr. Chesley left the room, and soon after, a servant entered with a letter addressed to Regina.

It was from Olga, dated Baden Baden; and the vein of subdued yet hopeless melancholy that wandered through its contents, now and then intertwined strangely with a thread of her old grim humour.

* * * * *

"Do you ever hear from that legal sphinx—Earle Palma? Mamma only now and then receives epistles fashioned after those once in vogue in Laconia. (I wonder if even the old toothless gossips in Sparta were ever laconic?) I am truly sorry for Erle Palma. That beautifully crystallized quartz heart of his, is no doubt being ground between the upper and nether millstones of his love and his pride; the Hymen ought to charge him heavy mill toll. My dear have you seen Elliott Roscoe's little tinted-paper poem? Of course his apostrophe to, 'violet eyes, over-laced with jet!' will sound quite Tennysonian to a certain little shy girl, now hiding at Como, and who 'inspired the strain.' But aside from the pleasant association that links you with the verses, they are, pardon me, dear, as thin, as flavourless, as, well, as the soup dished out at pauper restaurants. You are at liberty to consider me consumed by envy, green with jealously, when I here spitefully record, that Elliott's ambitious poem reminds me of M. de Bonold's biting criticism on Mme. de Krudener: 'I make bold to declare with the Bible in my hand, that the poor we shall always have with us, were it only the poor in intellect.' Coke and Story will befriend poor Elliott much more effectually than the Muses, who have most ingloriously snubbed him. Are you really happy, little snowbird, nestling in the down of mother-love, which, like the veritable baby you are, you so pined for?

"Regina, I am going to tell you something. Bar the windows, lock the doors, shut it up for ever, close in your own heart. A few nights ago, I went with an English friend to the Conversationshaus. When we had leaned awhile against one of the columns, and watched the dancers in the magnificent saloon, he proposed to show me the grand gambling room.

"As we walked slowly along, listening to the click of the gold, that pattered down from trembling hands, I saw sitting at a Roulette table, deeply immersed in the game (never tell it) Belmont Eggleston. Not the same classic god-like face, that I would once have followed straight to Hades; not the man upon whom I wasted all the love that God gives a woman to glorify her life and home, but a flushed, bloated creature, as unlike the Belmont of my hopes and dreams, as 'Hyperion to a Satyr!' I watched him, till my very soul turned sick, and all Pandemonium seemed to have joined in a jeer at my former infatuation. Next day, I saw him reel from a saloon to the steps of his wife's carriage. Years ago, when Erle Palma told me that my darling drank and gambled, I denied it; and in return for the warning, emptied more wrath upon my informer, than all the apocalyptic vials held. Ah! for poor Belmont, I fought as fierce as a tawny tigress, when her youngest cub is captured by the hunters. Ashes! Bitter ashes of love and trust! Truly 'there is no pardon for desecrated ideals.' I have lived to learn that:

'Man trusts in God;
He is eternal. Woman trusts in man,
And he is shifting sand.'"

READING FOR SUNDAY.

THE "THANK-YOU" PRAYER.

Once upon a time I listened,
Listened while the bright tears glistened
Neath the drooping lids that hid them, a little prattler said,
While a father's arm carressing,
Round the precious form was pressing,
And against his pillowing bosom lay a dainty
curl-ringed head;

"Papa," spoke the little trembler,
"Papa, dear, do you remember
When that gentleman was here to tea, his sober solemn air?
How he bent his head down lowly,
And his words came soft and slowly,
As he prayed to God in heaven such a pretty thank-you prayer?

"And I wondered all about it,—
For, of course, I couldn't doubt it
Was a funny way that make us be so kind to one another,
To say 'thank you' for each present,
In a way so very pleasant,
And forget that God might like it,—so I asked my darling mother.

"But she looked at me so queerly,
And her eyes were very nearly Full of crying, and I left her but I want to know real bad"—
Here the shy eyes lifted brightly—
"Is it treating God politely,
When he gives us things, to never mind, nor tell him we are glad?

"And since then I've been a thinking—
Papa, dear, why are you winking!"
For a slow sob shook the strong man, as each keen, unconscious word
Pierced him, all the past unveiling,
And the cold neglect and failing,
All the thoughtless, dumb receival—how the heedless heart was stirred!

"God is good, and Jesus blessed them,
And his sacred arm carressed them," Murmuring thus he touched the child-brow with a passionate, swift kiss
Of the little one beside him,
Of the angel sent to chide him,
And a "thank-you prayer" ah, never more his loving lips shall miss!

The Uses of Adversity.

The breaking up of the family circle on earth often is the means of reuniting all the beloved ones in heaven. The treachery of earthly friends has often driven us to closer communion with the faithful and true Friend on high. The work of earthly hopes has often enriched our immortal hopes. The vanity of this world has led us to seek more earnestly for the solid realities of the world to come.—Dr. Peck.

Carlyle on the Bible.

Speaking of the Bible, Carlyle said: "It is a wonderful book, that. Some years ago I read the four gospels through, and I wept a great deal over it. It is full of sincerities and everlasting truths. I did not find Christ that pound-of-fresh-butter character which people have made of Him. On the contrary. He is a man with a great deal of anger in Him, but the anger all on the right side. He always has a sharp word to return to the Pharisees. When one who has kept the Ten commandments asks Him whether that is not enough He tells him no—'Leave all thy riches and follow me' " * * Speaking of the indifference of the people of our times toward high-minded men, he said: "If Jesus Christ were to come to-day people would not even crucify Him; they would ask Him to dinner and hear what He had to say, and make fun of it."—Macmillian's Magazine.

Praying and Giving.

A youth in Rome had suffered from a dangerous illness. On recovering his health his heart was filled with gratitude, and he exclaimed, "O Thou all-sufficient Creator! could man recompense Thee, how willingly would I give all my possessions!" Hermes, the head-man, heard this, and said to the rich youth, "All good gifts come from above; thither thou canst send nothing. Come, follow me." He took him to a hut, where there was nothing but wretchedness and misery. The father lay on a bed of sickness, the mother wept, the children were destitute of clothing and crying for bread. Hermes said, "See here an altar for the sacrifice; see here the Lord's representatives." The youth assisted them bountifully, and the poor people called him an angel of God. Hermes smiled, and said, "Thus turn always, thy grateful countenance first to heaven, and then to earth."

It Made the Engineer Cry.

"Yes, indeed, we have some queer incidents happen to us," said the engineer. "I was running along one afternoon pretty lively when I approached a little village where the track cuts through the streets. I slacked up a little, but was still making good speed, when suddenly about twenty rods ahead of me, a little girl, not more than three years of age, toddled on to the track. There was no way to save her. It was impossible to stop or even to slack much in that distance, as my train was heavy and the grade descending. In ten seconds it would have been all over, and, after reversing and applying the brake, I shut my eyes. I didn't want to see any more. As we slowed down my fireman stuck his head out of the cab window to see what I'd stopped for, when he laughed and shouted to me, 'Jim, look here!' I looked, and there was a great big black Newfoundland dog holding that little girl in his mouth, leisurely walking toward the house where she evidently belonged. She was kicking and crying, so that I knew she wasn't hurt, and the dog had saved her. My fireman thought it funny and kept on laughing, but I cried. I just couldn't help it. I have a little girl of my own at home."—Chicago Herald.

This One Thing.

All profitable, successful lines of business are special lines; so, if we would be earnest servants of God, we must be specialists. Having one thing to do, understand it thoroughly, and do it as unto the Lord, casting off the unprofitable words of darkness, and putting on the armour of light.

Two Scotchmen in the north of Scotland went fishing one day, and, as men sometimes do there, as well as here, got drunk. When it was time to go home one of them cast off the head-line, and they got into the boat, took the oars, and began to pull towards home, as they supposed. After some time was thus spent one said: "Sandie, is it not time we were home?" The other agreed with him, and they redoubled their efforts, but without making any progress. At last morn dawned, and the effects of the whisky passed off and they found that while casting off the head-line they had forgotten the stern-line, and were fast to the shore, while they thought they were homeward bound.

So it often is with Christians; we cast off the head-line and wonder we do not make faster progress, when all the time the stern-line is holding us fast to the shore. That stern-line interferes with us wonderfully. We are fast somewhere, and we can't go where the Spirit leads us. Some compromise with the world, some thread—a silken one, perhaps—some church, something holds us back, and till we cut loose from everything we are shore-bound.

THE St. Marys Carriage Manufacturing Company, an enterprise managed by capitalists of that town, is meeting with great success, having sold already over twenty-three thousand shares. Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—

RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still maintains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."
